SOME NOTES OF EARLY ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY

BAY OF QUINTE DISTRICT.

The following paper was read by Rev. Canon Jarvis, at the regular monthly meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, held at their hall in the Public Library, Friday evening, February 28th, 1908:

This paper does not claim to be more than a compilation from sources more or less accessible of such facts bearing upon the earlydays of religion in this district as seem to be worth preserving in a connected form, and which may be of interest to members of the Historical Society. I shall be pardoned if I confine myself chiefly to matters more directly connected with my own denomination, as I feel that I can do it perfect to be familiar, bombarding only incidentally those facts which others could deal with more acceptably.

On the occasion of the consecration of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, a couple of years ago, I took it upon myself to prepare an album containing an account of the celebrations connected therewith, the autographs of as many as possible of the clergy in attendance, and other details which would be of interest to those who in the time to come should look over the history of the parish, not yet completed. The paper now presented is in part taken from the latter, those portions being omitted which would chiefly interest those who were not members of the congregation. In submitting these memorandums for your consideration I should welcome any corrections, or suggestions that the members of the Society can may be able to offer. My desire is to make it a fair record where referred to as a matter of history.

It is the duty of the historiographer to carry his researches back as far as possible, and make writers try to carry their readers with the back of legend, as the history of man says to regions of myth and legend—very entertaining certainly but not always very instructive. Sometimes no doubt, in substituting these old stories to the critical sifting process now vaunted as a science, many grains of truth, or pure gold-like facts are often removed, which subsequent research may restore, but the process is the legitimate one, and the material of this sort to go upon or to weigh with, comparatively scarce as it is, will not take us very far back into the dim shadows of antiquity. A couple of hundred years or so does seem a long time for us in the new world of action.

According to the first authentic accounts we have of the Indian tribes, it appears that the earliest missionary's of the Church of Rome that visited them were the Recollets and noble pioneers in evangelistic and religious work, and the Jesuit and Sulpician Fathers. These Indian missionaries was always marked by heroic self-denial and very often also by martyr-like martyrdom. This was in the days of the pioneers when Canada was New France.

To come down to dates. In 1615 the great Champlain first set eyes upon the waters of Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte. The Recollets had very early been there before, and the grandeur and beauty of the scenery, as well as the fertility of the land, impressed him greatly. He says in every day of we shall, can hardly realize in our shattered if not laggard days what the world-renowned events at our very doors. Champlain, one might say, is buried somewhere near the head of Hay Bay. In his party there was a Recollet Father whose name I do not know,and who employed his time evangelizing the Indians.

When Champlain in the following spring, made his way up the Ottawa River as far as the portages to its tributary and round by Lake Nipissing to the French River, this Father and

If you could accompany us on that journey and learn the story of the finding of his embalmed body, and see the relics now in the museum at Ottawa, and which goes to prove that Champlain was not drowned in Nipissing nearly 300 years ago, I must refer him to our old friend, Dr. Bourinot, who knows all about it—I don't. But when the explorers broke camp the Indian missionary seems to have stayed behind with his new flock if he did not, certainly the other Missionaries soon took up his work, as we know that when the Jesuits came to the Bay of Quinte they found a Recollet Father, named Joseph Romuald Cathelot Modeste Leclerc, ministering to the more numerous Frontenac landed at Cataraqui (as then the name of Kingston) coming from the Recollet Father, or rather Pere Henry (since Canada is a good deal French-ified in our day), 1673, and next day began the erection of the Fort which for a long time bore his name. We are not told that Frontenac was a good religious man, but no doubt that he made choice of this site in order to command the fishing waters. The fact that that little block-house did not long exist, and that a stone one later in the century, and crumbled away in the war of the Revolution, is a matter of a few years one way or the other, he allowed to spoil a good story? Anyhow, both events happened on the 12th of July, but we digress, and I am afraid we shall be drifting into a religious controversy, which, as I know well in these walls, so we had better get back to Frontenac.

He was not at Cataraqui by the Captains of the Five Nations, nevertheless, as the Abbe d'Urfe, who was then probably in charge of the Recollet Mission, tells us, he came to pay them a visit. This was in the Spring of 1675. This the Captains of the Five Nations should have evidenced their Abbe is strong evidence that considerable progress of late here and in other places in ing the Indians by this time. The re-

The first authentic record we have of the erection of a chapel somewhere in the neighborhood, possibly where the trail leading into the interior began near the site of Champlain's camp at Hay Bay. But no one knows where is no trail to guide us, not a log remains to tell the story of the past, not a stone from which we might gather a hint. Historians are in our infancy in this respect, and I am afraid we could even get a splinter of it, we should have a relic of such interest in antiquity and in interest the old log chapel at Tadenac at the mouth of the Saguenay, said to be the oldest church in Canada—if not on the mainland—the oldest standing log church at all events.

Was the Mission wiped out in one of those terrible inter-tribal wars or one of the bloody fray between the Iroquois and Hurons? Was one of those first arrow heads we picked up near the old Mission House, or found in the field of Zeb's, made to do duty for some Sir Gilbert Parker, quite in his line. If he does not know the history, he is quite capable of making a romance that will be at least as interesting and perhaps more thrilling than the actual event, if event there was at all. We know is that the Mission has passed away.

The sacred topic lights and gone Gray moss has clad the Altar stone The lady image is over thrown, The bell has ceased to toll. The Holy Shrine to ruin sunk, Deserted is the pious monk— God's blessing on his soul!

But we need not follow the fortunes of the eastern under French rule, for the next hundred years, down to the treaty of Paris in 1763, by which Canada became a British colony, to develop in another hundred years into the Dominion. The fact is, is a fascinating but the merest scrape of historical research, and the writer of this sketch has to complain of the dearth of information when dealing with the church from a secular standpoint, and the use we could find, would be of no value for our present purpose. No doubt if we had recourse to the transactions of the Jesuits or the annals of the Recollets, we should find much to interest us. But by the end of the XVIII. century, the Jesuits and the Iroquois, the Recollet Fathers and their Indian converts were a memory, and the whole district outside the City of Kingston, had reverted to the condition of primeval wilderness.

Our next chapter of Ecclesiastical history then opens with the advent of the U. E. Loyalists in 1783-4. But to get a better view of the religious conditions at that time we must turn our eyes for a few moments far afield. We are all familiar with the story of the Loyalists, and do not wish to renew old controversies with our neighbors across the Lake. We have buried the hatchet, and are glad to be friends as we and they have learned to dwell side by side in peace and in mutual respect.

However, our fathers of Loyalist tendencies then residing in the New England states, found it conducive to their self respect, if not to the preservation of their lives, to abandon their homes in the new republic and seek asylum in Canada. Many found their way to New Brunswick, others finally settled along the St. Lawrence and the shores of Lake Ontario and elsewhere. We have to start now with a knowledge of these refugees, whose home was originally in the Mohawk Valley in the State of New York. They came from the neighborhood of Fort Hunter, now the Capital of the State. Many of them were Scotch, and had followed Sir John Johnson, and a goodly some 900 families had settled in Upper Canada by the year 1784. With them was the Rev. John Stuart, formerly an S. P. G. Missionary at Fort Hunter, who went over to England and plead the cause of his flock before the Society's Missionary Board, and on his return to Sorell in 1785, he found that most of them had moved further West to the Bay Quinte, where they landed at Adolphustown and Kingston.

But, we are getting on a little too fast. Before we follow the fortunes of the refugees which happened before the Loyalists had left the Mohawk Valley, we must go back to the Indian wilderness, and to them our steps must be directed, if we are to get on a sure footing in our search for history.

Fairly adequate provision had been made in early days for the religious needs of the colonists in the settled portions of the American continent, including that part of New York of which we are now writing. The Church of England was the favored one, following year. She took a deep interest in the Indian, and especially perished later on a handsome set of silver Communion plates and Altar furniture, and with them a church and parsonage. This silver communion service has a history of its own, and perhaps it may be allowed a moment's digression to tell of what has become of it. When the Mohawks fled in their fear of the U. E. Loyalists, this particular piece of sacred plate was an unexpected raid upon the settlement, and the Indians fearing for the safety of their sacred treasure, buried the sacred vessels in the depths of the forest. When the war was over a party of young braves set out on a journey of discovery, and to their great joy, in triumph, having accomplished the object of their search, they took their things before the astonished eyes of the tribe, the gaze of Brantford, and other of the Six Nations Reserves. The story may not be literal in incident and interest, but it is founded of fact that has come down to us, and it is worth a place in our Society's Archives, and I should like to see the story written up by some competent scribe. At the close of the war of 1812 a grand consecration of Lambeth there was an exhibition of Church plate from all parts of the world, and not the least interesting was that of the Mohawk Church, sent over by our brethren on the other side of the water. Some of the silver was lost, and so far as I know has never been recovered.

Mr. Andrews seems to have been an excellent man and his work a most devoting were testified to by the Governor of the province, who in his report speaks of his work by the Dutch traders, who practised on the Indians by their rum and other shameless dealings with the natives, more especially in the Bay of Quinte and the district.

The earliest lives of those in high places of the Church contributed as his difficulties, as also often the case when barbaric tribes have to be Christianized christians that are too often an offence and a stumbling block to the heathen. When the Mohawks were converted to Christianity they were not transformed into saints, but remained very much what they were before. They had their failings and their besetting sins, and it was a fine thing for the early days of the Church that they had a Missionary who knew how to deal with them. Things did not always go smoothly. Mr. Andrews was appointed to the charge. He proved both a faithful minister and a wise pastor to his flock. The white and red elements of his congregation lived and worked together in harmony. When Lent came round, as might have been expected, was among the first to observe the season of self-denial, and the Mohawks were no less faithful to the Great White Father. After hostilities had begun, he continued to pray daily for the king and all in authority under him, and incurring the enmity of the self styled patriots. He was not the only one of the kind. Some years ago, I had the pleasure to see Mr. Kingsford, the historian of Canada, found on Lot 22, on the Bay of Quinte, the Bible and Prayer Book of one of these refugees, and there could be no doubt as to the fact that he had cut two bullet marks on the Bible, which he was at least thankful that he had escaped the malevolence, or possibly the bad marksmanship of his pursuers. He had left every thing else behind him, but he had taken his money to the sturdy courage of the old parson who at the risk of incurring the wrath of this emphatic leader protest against his proceedings, and even Sovereign King George, that all his subjects might faithfully serve their God and King. Things did not always go quite so serious a pass with the Missionaries as in the case of Mr. Andrews, but what hurt him most was the persecution, and the ingratitude of those for whom he had done so much. He was a man who knew his duty as a saloon, a barrel of rum being set apart for the Communion wine, and he never turned into a stable. Life among such unpromising neighbors would be hard thing, and he resolved in 1781 to seek

His legs were so weak he would tremble and shake and was unable to stand for any length of time. A RECORD BREAKER.

LAST YEAR'S SALES OF HYOMEI, THE GUARANTEED CURE FOR CATARRH LARGER THAN EVER.

The merits of Hyomei (the treatment that cures catarrh without internal dosing), its popularity and growth, are unique in the annals of medicine. Soon announced in the relief and cure following the use of this treatment that it has been publicly recommended by leading druggists and physicians in nearly every state and town in the country, with the result that last year's sales were larger than ever.

The fact that Hyomei is so simple and complete, and that it cures by breathing, medicated air and not taking drugs into the stomach, no doubt has helped to create this wide-spread and rapidly increasing army of friends.

The way in which it has been sold by R. B. Wallace has undoubtedly aided greatly its introduction in Napanee. He is such a firm believer in the power of Hyomei to cure all catarrhal troubles, that he urges people to use it with the understanding that the cost will be refunded to anyone who is not benefitted by the treatment. You do not risk a cent in testing the healing virtues of Hyomei, for R. B. Wallace takes all the risk of its giving satisfaction and leaves you to be the judge.

THE NAPANEE AMATEUR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

The formal opening of the gymnasium and club rooms in connection with the Association took place on Friday evening, when, although the night was very unfavorable for stormiest of the season, a large number of members and visitors took advantage of the occasion to visit the quarters of the enterprising new Association.

On entering the Club Rooms, which are situated in the Bush block, over the Bell Telephone, a hearty welcome is accorded to the visitors that the rooms are intended for the use of members only, including necessary guests for the evening.

The club rooms proper, which are on the front floor, consist of two large and commodious rooms, which were formerly used as lodge rooms, but have been rearranged and connected together so that they can be used for one large room. The room in front of the building will be used exclusively for boxing, fencing, wrestling, and light exercises generally, and in this room is a ample supply of boxing gloves and foils. The rear room has also been provided with suitable apparatus for being arranged for, and will be used for more indoor including necessary gymnastic paraphernalia.

The other gymnasium will be considered more as a reading room, in which the latest illustrated ladders, parallel bars, chest machines and a supply of Indian clubs and dumb bells with necessary gymnasium suits for the members have been provided. The room is to be used exclusively for reading, lazing, and smoking, and in this room a supply of papers and magazines, a secretarial lights, and made bright and attractive. The room has been provided with number and lockers, facing the street.

Immediately adjoining the gymnasium have been arranged comfortable sitting or reading rooms, carpeted and curtained, and with very cozy and homelike. In these rooms will be found a supply of latest periodicals, and to indulge in smoking, it being prohibited in the other rooms. Connected with the gymnasium rooms are a pair of shower baths, with ample room for members' clothes ready for use, when they have finished their exercises and each member has a distinct locker and his own private key thereto. Also in connection with the rooms are a ladies' room, a roomy shower bath with gas heating apparatus attached, and a set of lockers, hot and cold water can be obtained and adjoining the dressing room is a comfortably equipped lavatory, and a telephone has been placed in the rooms, No. 129, where members can be called when wanted.

From the enthusiasm as far shown by the members in connection with this Association, we anticipate that it has come to stay, and that it will ultimately be the means of developing a class of young men interested in athletics, and the several clubs which will be formed from time to time, and which will ultimately make this Association a common success.

We wish the enterprise every success and commend it to the patronage and support of every citizen of Napanee.

DIAMOND DYES Add To Home Comfort and Contentment.

"For the last eleven years Diamond Dyes have been special money savers for us, and have been a source of home comfort. Two weeks ago I dyed three pairs of curtains with great profit and satisfaction. I first colored two pairs of rusty and faded lace curtains a delicate shade of light pink for bedroom, using one 10c. package Diamond Dye Pink for Cotton. I also dyed a piece of tapestry portiere curtains, which after fading to a dull drab had become very faded and unsightly. This piece I dyed a rich garnet, using Diamond Dye Garnet for Cotton. Results were in my estimation, Diamond Dyes are the best I have ever used."

Mrs. Rumma M. Sharpe, Toronto, Ont.

The All-important Thing to secure success in home dyeing is to be sure you get the real Diamond Dyes. The next important thing is to be sure that you get the right Kind of Diamond Dyes adapted to the material you intend dyeing.

THE TRIP TO THE SKIES.

Those who went on this trip on Tuesday evening, in the Western Methodist church, were well repaid for the time spent. The seating capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost, and Dr. Marsh, who gave the lecture, held his audience for 2½ hours. This is the first lecture of this kind given in Napanee for some time, and the Epworth League, who were responsible for getting it here, feel grateful of the interest shown.

A FINE YACHT.

Mr. E. J. Roy, of the Rock Drill Foundry Co., during the winter built for his own use a handsome steam yacht. A gentleman in Brandon, Man., hearing of this particular boat from a friend, sent his nephew here to buy it if possible. The deal was completed, and the yacht will be used here during the season each year. This summer a party will spend a month up the Rideau. We understand the amount realized for the outfit is nearly $1,000.00. The yacht is 36 ft. long, built of cedar with oak frames and canopy top; forward end open, aft end covered; all interior finish of mahogany; sheer strake quartered oak; deck, alternate strips walnut and maple; covering board and coaming, black walnut. Machinery consists of tube boiler, fore and aft compound engine with Triumph Reverse Gear, Canadian bronze propeller; speed, 8 miles an hour; nickle-plated trimmings throughout. The boat is a credit to its designer and builder, and during our conversation with him he spoke very highly of the work done by Mr. Will Vanalstine, during the construction of the boat from start to finish. Several boats are now being built by Mr. Roy, among them being another boat for his own use.

IN MEMORIAM.

The following lines are in memory of Charlotte Carroll, beloved wife of Cornelius Carroll, who died at her daughter's, Mrs. Jas. Yorke, Bell Rock, March 5th, 1908, aged 68 years.

See! her tired hands are folded
Peacefully upon her breast;
Pain and toil forever ended,
Grandma is at rest.

We can hear in gently whispering
"Darling loved ones, do not weep."
After weary nights of watching
She found rest in sleep.

Life is nothing to the rapture
Of the perfect life above;
All is peace and love.

Do not mourn for her nor miss her,
Why should we grieve or pain,
Is the land of life eternal
We shall all meet her again.

Dear grandma, though we miss thee
From the home you loved so well;
We would never call thee back here,
Dear, we know that all is well.

Not alone she crossed the river,
Jesus bore her safely o'er;
Oh! the rapture of the meeting
On that happy golden shore.

We are willing, Heavenly Father,
We can trust her in Thy care,
For we soon shall end our journey,
Then we'll meet her there.

Then, dear Father, may we labor,
Live that when this life is ended,
We may all go home to grandma,
May the rest not one be lost.

Written by her grand-daughters, Margaret and Charlotte Yorke.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The concert held in Bronco Grove House on Tuesday evening, March 17th, under the auspices of St. Patrick's Temperance and Benevolent Association, and kindness of the pastor, Father O'Connor, was a grand success in every way. The very large audience present highly appreciated their efforts, as shown by the enthusiastic encore of a well rendered programme. The programme consisted mostly of vocal and instrumental music, under the talented direction of Mrs. E. Lockridge, accompanist, than whom in that most difficult role there are few, if any, superior to in Canada. The singers, all of whom ably rendered, and stated in a few well chosen words the object of holding the concert on St. Patrick's Day, which was to honor the Patron Saint of Ireland, whose people love to honor him because he was the instrument of God in introducing Christianity into their loved Green Isle. He later thanked in the pastor's name all who assisted in the success of the concert.

The following excellent local talent took part in double selection, Messrs. W. S. Herrington, D. C. Macnaughton, C. A. Wartman, and the Misses Herring, Wartman, Hall and Lichti. These, with that of the "Harp of Tara" and "The Minstrel Boy" enlisted the hearts of all. Miss Charles Fisher, Napanee's favorite baritone, received high appreciation in which he is held by his touching and heartfelt rendering of two beautiful solos Mrs. James Bawden, Mr. J. B. Doyle and Mr. J. D. Hayes, all of Belleville, were heard here for the first time, and certainly merited the high praise that preceded them. Each number on the programme from these talented artists were received by rounds of applause. Mrs. James Grant, soprano, sang with much taste and sweetness the beautiful solo, "Carmena," which brought out a truly cultured voice and gave scope to its artistic and evidently finished training.

Miss Kate Bawden made a great impression by her singing of "Rory Dalton," and became immediately a great favorite. Her naturally sweet and full contralto thrilled the hearts of all present, and the audience were not slow in showing their appreciation by continued applause. Mr. J. B. Doyle in his every rendition of that beautifully pathetic song "Ashtore" showed to advantage his pure lyric tenor in every number each of which he interpreted with feeling and he was obliged to respond in each number.

A great treat was in store for the audience in the appearance of Mr. J. D. Hayes. Very rarely is Napanee favored to hear a richer or truer bass voice than Mr. J. D. Hayes is possessed of. The mellow sweetness of his well trained voice penetrated every part of the hall, each note of which brought pleasure to the heart. His singing of "Erin's Isle" will be long remembered by those who heard him. He too responded generously to an encore.

A fitting climax to a magnificent concert was the mixed quartette of the above ladies and gentlemen from Belleville. Seldom at local concerts is heard such perfect and well balanced harmony as the above ladies and gentlemen gave in their rendering of "Kathleen Mavorine" and the only regret was they were not heard oftener in the same role.

THE NOSE AS A GERM-FILTER.

The researches of modern science have revealed many wonderful things in regard to the matters of every-day life, and particularly in regard to the manner of dissemination and prevention of disease.

Some of these observations are perhaps more striking as of greater practical importance than those bearing on the prevalence in the dust-laden air of cities and towns of the germs of many of the most serious diseases, such as tuberculosis, lung fever, diphtheria, pneumonia and others. But it appears that, as usual, nature has provided suitable defenses against the dan ger.

If the act of breathing is performed normally, through the nose and not the mouth, the inspired air must pass through a skilfully designed filtering apparatus, which greatly reduces the perils from the source. The simple exterior of the human nose gives no hint of the complication of its inner construction. Its interior is, however, broken up into many devious passages and channels, so arranged that a very large surface of mucous membrane is exposed to each breath of incoming air on its way to the larger air tubes which the mucous membrane is moist and warm, and the air is forced to pass over it. Within layers, so that it is not only charged with moisture, but is also warmed to the body heat before it enters the delicate air passages.

But in addition to these important modifications an opportunity is afforded for all sanitary particles, including germs and so forth, to be deposited on the damp surfaces, from which the natural flow of the secretions promptly carries them to the exterior.

But this beneficial action of the nose as a germ filter can take place only if the inspired air passes through it, and not the mouth. Through the mouth, on account of its comparatively large size, the inspired air passes with a rush, and immediately enters the throat, which has been shown to be the most vulnerable portion of the body, and from which serious portals of entry for germs of many diseases.

It is, therefore, a matter of great importance that children be taught early to breathe through the nose, so that the warmed, moist and germ laden air shall not be taken into the throat and lungs. If this were consistently done, not only would many serious ailments, but also ordinary colds would be much rarer.

Children or adults, who persistently breathe through the mouth, especially when asleep, are usually suffering from some obstruction of the nasal passages, and urgently require medical care.—Youth's Companion.

To-morrow, Saturday, the 21st, and up to and including Saturday, 28th, we will celebrate the anniversary of Napanee's only exclusive Dry Goods store. Seven days' economic buying. To-morrow's splendid aggregation of resunding underprice sales is the greatest, the most astounding bargain feast we've ever offered. Prices on new, seasonable, desirable merchandise have been battered to record low prices. The reductions, in many instances, you'll scarcely believe possible until you see them with your own eyes. "Bear in mind," we have not sacrificed the quality of the merchandise offered to attain these remarkable underprices. 'Tis the culmination of many months of shrewd, keenful preparation—just another impressive, robust demonstration of resourceful "Madill" merchandising. Every line of this advertisement should rouse your every economic instinct. Walk through the store. It is impossible to advertise everything that has been reduced. During the seven days of this great Anniversary Sale this great store will be practically handed over to the people of Napanee and vicinity. Below are a few of the price reductions.

A MUSEUM FOR THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Rochester, N.Y.
March 23d, 1908.

Dear Beaver,—I was interested in the letters published in last week's Beaver, by "Observer", correcting newspapers for inconsistency. Doubtless the writer of those public opinions to a great extent, which may be all right if they published facts only, and allowed reading public to form their own opinions or were even fair in their editorials, but unfortunately they are mostly the mouth pieces of political parties, and used to fan flame in the public from your correspondent's letter, I gather, is a hope that in Canada, as in this country people are beginning to think for themselves, and when they vote in the same way the days of "consistency" will be near at hand. There has been much discussion over and many causes ascribed for the present serious depression in this country, but the truth is that we have reached the limit of prosperity under extremely high protection and inflated values, and like the toy balloon we burst.

It was amused by the squealing of the Republican newspapers that always cried and put on the tariff, but when the prices of articles was almost doubled and the wealth of their big editors showed a total loss, they suddenly concluded that the duty should be taken off or modified so it makes a lot of difference whose bull gets gored. With the shoe on the other foot and Mr. Dingley dead, and the millers of the west hollering for free wheat, they are promised tariff revision in 1909.

In the meantime the system that produces multimillionaires, and the paupers, the bottom hard knocks, and the party that does the full dinner pail the loudest rushes to Presidential election next fall will be lulled to take out many Labor Day picnics before exposing it to the public scrutiny.

Thanking you, Mr. Beaver for the space which is greater than I intended taking up.

Respectively yours,
OLD BAY BOY

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent bottle of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes. Besides there are marvelously quick relief periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quick as these can follow. For sale by F. B. Wallace. 10d

TAMWORTH.

Mrs. Robert Moulton, 81 years of age, who lives alone at Drummond Centre, had a narrow escape from being burned to death in a fire which destroyed her house on Saturday. She was awakened about 1 o'clock by a strong odor of smoke. Hastily donning a suit from the bed, she enveloped herself in it and started to make her way out of the house. When she opened the door of her room the flames burst out in all directions, but she managed to make her way through them and the blinding smoke to the outside door. A NAPANEE BOY.

Canadian Mute, Belleville.

Harry E. Grooms, who is on the St. Stephen's hockey Club of Toronto, went with his team to Aurora one evening recently to play a game with the fast team of that town, and were badly beaten by the Aurora boys. Near the end of the game was rather rough, judging by the way Harry looked on his return home. A very black and swollen eye betrayed injury. As the Canadian boxing championship tournament was being held here at that time, we at first thought he had just retired from the ring. The score was 3 all when Harry stepped aside.

Jewels Presented.

On Tuesday evening the members of Napanee Lodge No. 84, I.O.O.F. presented Brothers W. A. Sleary and A. Smith, of Bay of Quinte Veteran Lodge, with three gold jewels, the members of the Order for over twenty-five years. Mr. Smith was not present, but Mr. Sleary is resident of Shannonville. Mr. Sleary was called on and replied very suitable replys. Following are the addresses:

To Bro. W. A. Sleary, P.G.,

Napanee, Ont.

Dear Sir and Bro.—Loyalty and service have long been favorite themes in Song and Story and in Oddfellowship too we chronicle our appreciation of our Veterans whose fidelity, worth and work have been the foundation for the success the Independent Order of Oddfellows has undoubtedly attained.

As members of Napanee Lodge No. 84, I.O.O.F., cannot recall your name without recalling the active part you have taken in building it up, and by regular attendance by your approval and by your counsel, by example of unselfish devotion and by your devotion of valuable time for its benefit.

Your connection with the Order as a subscribent and effective membership in our lodge has continued consecutively for 25 years, and it also has earned for you, and we are now delighted to present you with the Veteran's Jewel of our order. Wear it in the years to come with the recollection of the words that you are one whom we especially delight to honor, and the knowledge of the satisfaction to that which you so strikingly merited, conferring upon us honor in the conferred bestowal.

Oddfellowship must needs develope in an active member the best elements in the exercise of which, of itself, brings happiness; to earn the term "Veteran" means many happy memories of the best associations, and the consciousness of duty for the long years of active membership with us. We trust you have found prosperity in the lot of you and yours during the years of membership.

Yours in F. L. & T.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge,

JOHN A. GRANGE, N.G.

CHAS. FRIZZELL, Rec. Sec.

D. M. WILSON, J.P.G.

Napanee, March 17th, 1908.

To Bro. A. J. Smith, P.G.,

Shannonville, Ont.

Dear Sir and Bro.—Every member of the I.O.O.F. in every degree renders service to his Lodge; some have greater opportunities than others. We recognize that you have been situated differently we would have seen you oft at our lodge meetings, but you have, however, reason to know that either your personal circumstances have prevented your attendance as an oddfellow, and now that you have reached the years of the Veteran you have membership in Napanee Lodge No. 84, we take much pleasure in conferring the Veteran's Jewel upon you whereby it may remind you of pleasant associations in the past and that we can always rely upon your sympathy in the works of Oddfellowship.

We trust you may long be spared to serve in its interests as a token of the deeper affection for our brotherhood which you have manifested.

That the coming years be full of richest blessings for you and yours.

Yours in F. L. & T.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge,

SPRING BLOOD IS BAD BLOOD

How to Get New Health and Strength in the Spring.

The winter months are trying to the health of even the most robust. Confinement indoor is overheated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms — in the home, in the shop and in the school — taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery, or clogged with impurities, the liver sluggish, the kidneys wrong. Sometimes you get up in the morning just as tired as when you went to bed. Some people have headaches almost every morning; some have pimples and skin eruptions. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of condition. You can't cure these troubles with purgative medicines, which merely gallop through the system leaving you still weaker. What you need to give you strength in spring is a tonic, and the one always reliable tonic and blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills not only banish spring ills, but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, rheumatism, indigestion and kidney trouble. Insist upon getting Dr. Williams' Pink Pills makes new, rich, red blood which strengthens every nerve, every organ and every part of the body. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the favorite spring medicine with thousands and thousands throughout Canada. Try this medicine this spring and you will have energy and strength to resist the torrid heat of the coming summer. Mrs. Jos. Haskel, Port Maitland, N.S., says: "I was troubled with headaches, and had no taste in my mouth, my tongue was coated, and I usually lived on tea and toast from a feeling of depression. I got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and it was not long before they began to help me and I was soon feeling so well that I never had been." You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The March number of Dun's Review contains an article on Mexico by our former townsman, Mr. Geo. I. Ham, and as the following article —

At the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association held at Atlantic City, N.J., last September, a letter was read from George I. Ham, president of the United States National Bank Company of Mexico, regarding the banking situation at that time. This letter was widely quoted in the press of the United States, and in connection with the number portions of it will still be of interest. Mr. Ham said in part:

"There are in the republic thirty-nine chartered banks—five in the federal district and the others in the various States and Territories. Two chartered banks in the federal district and every chartered bank in the States and Territories under the law of 1897 are, at this issue, the requirements of the Government being a monthly inspection of the physical condition of each and every bank and a report to the government shall be in its vaults not less than 50 per cent. in gold or silver coin or bullion or in the bank.

The governmental supervision of all chartered banks is such that of necessity it must be done at times of any possible defection from proper lines of conservative banking, and never since the present government's administration has there been a failure of one of these banks.

Considering the fact that in the republic are a number of banks without charters, amounting in aggregate capital to about, although the percentage of failures in the republic is comparatively great, yet in the very strong banks in the republic are unchartered and with very few exceptions all banks, both the chartered and unchartered, are doing a most satisfactory and profitable business.

During a brief period, the end of which probably is to be in sight, there has been a general money stringency, without any general cause, except a sympathetic one for the conditions existing in other countries. The general conditions throughout Mexico, without exception a single line so far as I am known to me, are good and sound—all that could be desired. The banks here hold large quantities of bonds, not because of the conditions set forth above, but principally as loans during the past three months have been made with such bonds as collateral and very great care, as a rule having been to refuse all loans except those such as seemed absolutely necessary to prevent disaster. I am glad to say, however, that the general tendency to hang onto cash, that has prevailed for the past few months, now seems to be in the ascendency, and the feeling of Mexico hope soon to have their surplus funds earning interest."

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

THE ROBINSON COMPANY.

Last Saturday was a charming day for Spring Millinery Openings. The Robinson Company's showrooms were the Mecca for making elaborate displays that the ladies turned out in crowds. Hanging the Millinery section had its groups of flowers. The evening exhibit was a grand climax to the day's event. The entire store was one drop parade. Hundreds of electric bulbs added brilliancy to the scene. The beautiful dress and wiseness were an index to what to expect inside. The first table to meet the eye in Dress Goods section was a display of Rajah and Shantung Silks. These silks were in natural and the beautiful colorings of the season, plain and stripe effects. Of silks information as that raw silks are the hit of the season, having had their debut abroad already.

Next table showed the new striped Chiffon Taffetas in violet, leather, navy, rose, navys. The long stretches of counters reaching to the Millinery were arrayed in artistic dresses of dress Goods, showing the color combinations of the season. The ladies were charmed with the beautiful effects produced by the Dress Goods, Dresden Silks and Galoons all matching perfectly. We noticed Cream Serge with broad wide stripe of Bisque Armure with Mesaline Silk. Fancy Grey Silk Warp with Dresden Saxe Blue Cheviot, Real Laces, Two-tone Suitings. Lansdowne Coin Spot for afternoon dresses were shown in the shades to match. Embroidered Linen Silks for trimming. Satin Venetians were worn with a variety of skirts suiting novelty featured this season for Spring wear. We say this may be used to good effect on bottom of skirt, and for vest fronts. Exquisite Laces were shown in Cream and their many fabrics. Real Lace Robes had a section by themselves. The dainty Swiss Embroid Linens, fancy Zephrys and Ginghams gave one a glimpse of what the summer Girl will have to wear.

Following in the first floor we were greeted by extensive showing of Ready-to-Wear garments. We were much struck from immense assortments of Shirt Waists, Skirts, Costumes, Jackets, Whitewear, Shirt Waist Dresses, Silk Dresses. The House Furnishing section was next visited. The Comeaby have added new spare for this important department. We were amazed at the enormous stocks of floor coverings. Rugs were very much in evidence. Heavy drop pile Wilton and rich Axminsters in Oriental, self and floral designs. Also Tapestry Brussels, Wiltons and Axminsters with borders to match. Double fold Tapestries. Tapestry Rugs. The new Curtains in Madras, Nets and French were much admired. The display cards in every section of the store were specially designed for the Spring Opening by a New York artist, Mr. Stuart Traves.

The millinery had a busy day of it. From early morning till 10 o'clock in the evening the show room was thronged with interested people. Many Easter orders were booked. A glance at the millinery would impress you at once that the styles were a complete change from the winter ones. The new shapes are the high crown effect and the sailor will be the favorite hat for early spring. The large "Spanish Turban" will be worn. It has a large soft brim and about it that will make it very desirable. Large hats are shown in a variety of styles. The "Merry Widow" sailor seems to be the favorite. Large and high crowns are the leading features of this season.

The two novelties are the "Postillion" and "Lampson" forms. The first has the brim rolled on both sides, giving the crown of considerable height, and the latter is a large hat, with high crown.

Flowers are used in profusion along with feathers and ribbons, making large pompons. Amongst the many admired hats we note one of white chip, with brim and high flat crown faced with satin. Large white wings faced with brown were over the crown and two white tulle rosettes standing in the front. Another was "Merry Widow turban" of violets, trimmed with large aigrettes and large bunch of same shades. The large sailor shape covered plainly with rich silk, set boond with black satin, trimmed broad with lasts of same material bound with satin, and knotted together with large jet beads, two large aigrettes on crown, complete this beautiful creation.

The children were not forgotten, for never have we seen a selection of children's hats and bonnets.

MADILL BROS.

Up to the present time it has seemed very hard to realize that Easter is so close at hand, but a visit to the Madill establishment would soon show that the joyous Easter season has already arrived.

This firm has had many successful openings on various occasions, but none more complete with new and choice merchandise, celebrating the sixth anniversary of the Madill store. During the past week the firm have had tremendous sales, and all lines of merchandise in order to mark this the greatest of all sales. In talking with the energetic manager of this progressive establishment, he informed us that "keeping up with the procession" is the popular motto, and the key note to their wonderful increasing business. The very newest novelties in Ladies' Easter Vestings, Ribbons, Belts and Buckles, Fancy and New Hosiery, Gloves for the hair and the The "Bon Ton" back combs with the back, Fancy Chiffon Throw Ties (embroidered). The new Silks, Dress Goods, Priestley's Dress Goods reign supreme in the Dress Goods line. Dress Muslins and dainty Whitewear, in fact, the whole store is a picture of beautifully embroidered. The new spring Coats of various shades, too, are well played in their department.

The Housefurnishing and Carpet Department displayed the usual array of quality merchandise, this particular time the store is a picture from floor to ceiling. In fact the entire store was a busy hive of buyers during the entire evening, who were all well pleased with their purchases, while the great underpriced anniversary sale is in progress they will do a big sight-seeing. This firm has better daylight service than any store east of Toronto.

Physicians Give Free Advice by Which Parents May Profit.

It was an association of soldiers, progressive physicians and chemists, all of whom were born in the drug trade, so to speak, and who have remained with it all their lives, who first gave to the world Catarrhozone, which so very soon became a household remedy for all kinds of ailments of human beings, but more especially children. Catarrhozone has always been recognized as a meritorious preparation, but its record in recent years has been unparalleled for relieving so many every-day ailments of children, and it is everywhere spoken of as a household remedy. Whether it be called Catarrh, Asthma, Hay Fever, Bronchitis, Throat Trouble, Sore Throat, Cold in the Head, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, or Whatever name or vulgar prejudice, but by whatever name it is called, Catarrhozone is accepted in thousands of homes where there are children.

Much is printed nowadays about big families. Dr. William E. McCann, of Toronto, Neb., is the father of one of these much-talked-about families. Here is what he says:

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly have had a large variety of sickness and ailments, and aside from my own family with remedies I have had a very large general practice, and found Catarrhozone equally as good and efficient remedy in almost every home.

Charles H. Fletcher has received hundreds of letters from prominent physicians, who have used Catarrhozone in their own families, but they prescribe it for their patients. First of all it is a vegetable preparation which assimilates the food and vegetates the stomach and bowels, thereby curing coughs, colds, and Catarrhs (colds in the head, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs). Then it kills the germs of disease, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other harmful narcotic.

Medical journals are reluctant to discuss proprietary medicines, but Journal of Health, however, says: "Our duty is to expose dangers and report facts for the advancing health. The day of poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance must stop, and this absolutely without the use of opium, morphine or other harmful narcotic.

BLIND ORATOR SWAYS THOUSANDS.

The New Senator from Texas has Overcome a Stupendous Handicap.

A man totally blind would hardly seem capable of modern political life, yet one so afflicted has stumped Texas in political campaigns and has just been elected United States Senator from that State. The blindness of Thomas Pryor Gore was caused by two gunshot accidents. At eight a boy playmate injured his left eye with a bow and arrow. Later he shot himself shot a toy arrow into the other. For three years of early childhood he went to a school for the blind, he declared, "I learned more in school than I learned in the blind will furnish neither excuse nor apology for the opportunity I seek." Events justified the prophecy. The April Bulletin of the school and college. At nineteen he was nominee for the Legislature; at twenty-two, negligible delegate-at-large in Mississippi, and was unanimously selected in 1900 as congressional standard-bearer for the same party in Texas.

He owes his success to his power as an orator. His memory is remarkable. It is recorded that at a meeting with an opposition speaker—Senator Money—last asked for a division of time. Davenport asked how much time Senator Money complained: "I will speak as long as I please; you are at liberty to do the same."

For three hours he harangued, thanking to exhaust Gore's patience. The latter patiently bided his time, and then for four hours more entertained the howling but appreciative audience.

Page of the "Congressional Record" is filled from memory—quotations that filled his antagonist with rage, but stopp from any effective reply. Now Gore's opponents realize that he is not a man to be tampered with or ignored. His speech in the Senate will be worth watching.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that only relieves, but a remedy that cures outright, not just temporarily, but permanently. Not a remedy that I have used myself but one that I am sure will cure all and any form of rheumatic disease.

I am familiar with Chronic Rheumatism in the City Dispensary—I found the best treatment with which for years I have endeavored to provide a perfected dependable prescription. Without one bad result—without one failure. Not in many cases of rheumatism, but in every case. Not in a single curable case of this kind. In each and every form of rheumatism. Acute, chronic, muscular, inflammatory, sciatic, articular, deformans, fibrous, in rheumatic blood, seem to disappear and go away under the action of this remedy. Pain, swelling, tenderness, stiffness, lameness, nearly pass from the system, and the cause of the trouble is driven out of the blood. There is no guesswork, no trial service to make longer with the sufferer, and no confidence to accept.

THE OPAL SERPENT

By FERGUS HUME.

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "The Mandarin's Fan," etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"Perhaps he did so because it is in the shape of a serpent," remarked Grezon, "a constitutional failing perhaps. Some people hate cats and others dislike dogs. I for one dread friend may have a loathing of snakes and can't bear to see the representation of one."

"It might be that," said Beecot, after a pause, "Anne is a strange sort of chap. A man with a past, I should say."

"You make me curious," said Grezon, laughing in a bored manner, "I think I'll go to the shop myself and have a look at him. Any day."

The more Paul thought of the episode of the brooch the stranger it seemed, and Sylvia's talk of her father's queer habits did not make Paul prefer the fellow less. However, he resolved to write to his mother and see what was just meaning his sister to do or when he heard a "Beg pardon, sir," and behold the workingman, hat in hand, stood at his elbow.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the man civilly, "but that gentleman you was a-talking to—know his name, sir?"

"What the devil's that to you?" asked Paul angrily.

"Nothing, sir, only he owes me a little bill."

"Go and ask him for it, then."

"I don't know his address, sir."

"Oh, be hanged!" Paul went on, when the man spoke again.

"Maybe I call a man on the market, sir. Have a care," and he departed quickly.

Paul stared. What did the workingman mean, and was he a working-man?

CHAPTER IV.

PAUL did not go near the Gwynne street shop for the next few days, much as he wanted to do so. A call at the office of a penny weekly had resulted in the return of three stories as being too long and not the sort required. Next the editor, in a hasty interview, admitted that he liked Paul's work and would give him £5 for a story written on certain lines likely to be popular with the public. Paul did not care to set forth another person's ideas, especially as these were old and very sensational, but as he required money he set to work and labored to produce what would bring him in the cash. He made several attempts before he reached the editor's requirements, but now rather than high, and succeeded in getting the tale accepted. With three golden pounds in his pocket and exultation in his heart, for every success seemed to bring him nearer to Sylvia, Paul returned to his lodgings and found waiting for him a letter from his mother.

It was written in a low spirited sort of way, characteristic of Mrs. Beecot, but with a true motherly heart. After two pages of lamentation over his absence and description of how the head of the household managed to bear up against the affliction of his son's absence, Mrs. Beecot proceeded to explain about the brooch.

"Why do you ask me about the opal brooch, my dear boy?" wrote Mrs. Beecot in her scratchy handwriting. "All I know is that your brother bought it out of a pawnbroker's shop in Brixley, which is some town in the midlands. Your father was traveling there and saw the brooch by chance. As I always thought opals unlucky he was anxious to make me see the reality of such a superstition, so he bought the brooch and took it away with him. Afterward, I believe, he received a letter from the pawnbroker saying that his assistant had sold the brooch by mistake; that the time for redeeming it had not run out when your father bought it. The pawnbroker asked that the brooch might be returned as wanted to pay back the money. But you know what your father is. He refused at once to give back the brooch and insisted on my wearing it. I had a bad fall while wearing it and then was thrown out of that high dogcart your father would insist on driving. I am sure the brooch or the stones are unlucky, and as after a time your father got ashamed of it I let it lie in my jewel case. For years I had not worn it, and as I think it is unlucky and as you need money, my dear boy, I hope you will sell it. There is no need to pawn it, as you say. I never want to see the brooch again. But regarding your health, etc.

There was nothing in the letter to explain Norman's death. It was certainly strange that the pawnbroker from whom the brooch had been originally purchased should have demanded it back, and the excuse given seemed rather a weak one. However, Paul did not waste time in thinking over this, but resolved to tell Aaron what his mother had said.

He had received two letters from Sylvia, mentioning, among other things, that her father, now quite well, was asking after Paul and urging him to come and see him. "My father appears to have a fancy for you," wrote Sylvia, "so if you are very nice, as nice as you can be, perhaps he won't be very angry if you tell him we are engaged." There was much more to the same effect, which Paul thought good advice, and he intended to adopt the same. It was necessary that he should tell Aaron of his love if things were to be conducted in a straightforward and honorable manner. And Paul had no desire to conduct them otherwise.

Having made up his mind to see Aaron again, Paul bethought himself of Grezon Hay. So Beecot wrote to Grezon Hay at his Camden Hill chamber and told him he intended to go to Gwynne street on a certain day at a certain time. To this Grezon responded by saying that he was at Paul's service and would come, especially as he wanted to see Dulcines of Gwynne street.

The man about town duly made his appearance at the time appointed. "I always keep appointments," he explained when Paul congratulated him on his punctuality; "and besides, I am curious to see so much as to be kept waiting, so I invariably practice what I preach. Well, Paul, how is Dulcines of Gwynne street?"

"She is very well," replied Paul, who was still a young enough lover to blush, "but I have not seen her since we last met. I waited for a letter from my mother about the brooch, so that I might explain to Aaron how she got it. The old man has been asking after me."

"Oh, confound the brooch!" said Grezon in his cool manner. "I don't want to hear about it. Let us talk of Dulcines."

"Rather let us talk of yourself," said Paul.

"Not an interesting subject," replied Hay, rising as Paul opened his garret door for departure. "You know all about me."

"No! I don't know why you are called a man on the market."

Hay flushed and turned sharply. "What do you mean?" he asked in a particularly quiet tone.

"I don't know what I do mean," said Paul. "Do you remember that workingman with whom I had a talk? He was across the road when we last conversed?"

"No," said Hay, staring, "I never notice creatures of that class. Why?"

"Because he asked me who you were and where you lived. It is none of his own business, is it?"

"That is very probable," said Hay equably, "I owe several people money, and if this man has a debt against me he would certainly know all about me to address me as he did."

"So I thought," replied Paul, "but the queer thing is that he told me in his own words and called you a man on the market. What does it mean? I never heard the phrase before."

"I have," said Hay, proceeding calmly down the somewhat steep stairs, "A man on the market means a person who wants to marry and is eligible for any baron who comes along with a sufficient rent roll."

Grezon was quicker sighted than Paul, for the moment they arrived at the bottom of the stairs and were about to emerge into the street he saw a messenger. "Do you know if any one of that name lives here, porter?" asked the boy, holding out the buff colored envelope.

Beecot, to his surprise, saw his own name. "Walt, boy. There may be an answer," and he skimmed through the letter, then, turning to Hay, he said, "It back," read Paul, puzzled. "Your father angry—Mother." He paused and looked at the boy. "Got a form?" he asked.

The lad produced one and a stumpy pencil, with this materials Beecot wrote a reply, saying the brooch would be returned on the morrow. When the boy had gone Paul turned to Hay and felt in his breast pocket and took out the old blue case. "I've a good mind to send it now," he said slowly.

"What's that?" asked Hay, who was yawning at the door. "No bad news, I hope."

"It's about that brooch again."

Hay laughed. "Upon my word it seems to you what the monster was to Frankenstein," said he. "Send it back to Mrs. Beecot, I presume—and have done with it." His cast a glance at the case, "I see you have it now," he continued lightly.

Paul said Paul and, replacing the case in his pocket, went down the street with his friend. Then he determined to ask his opinion and related the gist of Mrs. Beecot's letter. "And now the matter wires to have it back," he said, "I expect my father has found out that she has sent it to me and is furious."

"Well, send it back and have done with it," said Hay impatiently; "you are in danger of becoming a bore with that brooch, Beecot. I'll lend you money if you like."

"No, thanks; I have £3 honestly earned. However, we'll speak no more of the brooch. I'll send it back this very day. Tell me"—he linked his arm within that of his friend—"tell me of that man."

"That man—of the working creature," said Hay absently. "Pooh, the man was no more a workingman than I am."

"Well, I thought myself he was a bit of a fraud."

"Detectives never do make up well," said Grezon calmly.

Paul stopped as they turned into Oxford street. "What? Was the man a detective?"

"I think so, from your description of his conversation. The fact is I'm in love with a lady who is married. We have behaved quite well, and no one has a word against us. But her husband is a beast and wants a divorce. I have suspected for some time that he has had me watched. Thanks to you, Paul, I am now sure. So perhaps you will understand why the man warned you against me and talked of my being a man on the market."

"I see," said Paul, hesitating; "but don't get into trouble, Hay."

"Oh, I'm all right. And I don't intend to do anything dishonorable, if that is what you mean. It's the husband's fault, not mine. By the way, can you describe the fellow?"

"Yes. He had red hair and a red beard, rather a ruddy face, and walked with a limp."

"All put on," said Hay contemptuously; "probably the limp was affected, the beard false, the hair a wig and the face rouged—very clumsy indeed. I dare say he'll appear pale and gentlemanly the next time he watches me. I know the tricks of these fellows."

"Here we are," interrupted Paul quickly. Somehow it irritated him to hear this hardened sinner speak of Sylvia, and he began to think that Grezon Hay had detected the fact that he was considered to be particularly good at Tortington school. In fact, Paul remembered that he had been thoroughly disliked. However, he had no time to go into the matter, for at this moment Aaron appeared at the door of the shop. He stepped out on to the pavement as Paul approached. "Come in," he said. "I want to see you—privately," he added, casting a frightened look at Hay.

"In that case I'll leave you," said Grezon, disengaging his arm from Paul. "Dulcines must well for another occasion. Go in and do your business. I'll wait without."

Paul thanked his friend by a look and went into the shop with the old man. "That brooch," said Aaron in a timid whisper—"have you got it? Give it to me—quick—quick!"

There was no one in the shop, as Paul had apparently gone out on an errand. The door leading to the stairs, from which Sylvia had so often descended, was closed, and no one was about to overhear their conversation.

"That brooch," said Paul, "here"—"Give it to me—give it," panted Aaron. "I'll buy it—at a large price. What's my business."

"Why are you so eager to get it?" demanded Beecot, astonished.

"That's my business," said Norman in a suddenly imperious manner. "I want it. The stones take my fancy," he added weakly.

"Was that why you fainted?" asked Paul suspiciously.

"No."

The man grew white and leaned against the counter, breathing heavily. "Where did you get the brooch?" he asked, trying to keep himself calm, but with a visible effort.

"I got it from my mother, and she received it from my father"—

"Beecot—Beecot," said the old man, repeating his lips, much agitated. "I know no one of that name in my trade, sell, and you are not a spy—a scoundrel—a—"

He caught the eyes of Paul fixed on him in amazement and suddenly changed his tone. "Excuse me, but the brooch reminds me of trouble."

"Mr. Norman," said Beecot gravely, "what is the story connected with the brooch?"

Aaron flung up his hands and backed to the counter. "Don't ask me. What do you mean? I know nothing of a brooch. What brooch? I never saw one—ah!"—he broke off in relief as two pale faced, spectacled girls entered the shop—"customers.

A RECORD BREAKER.

LAST YEAR'S SALES OF HYOMEI THE GUARANTEED CURE FOR CATARRH LARGER THAN EVER.

The merits of Hyomei (the treatment that cures catarrh without stomach dosing), its popularity and growth, are unique in the annals of medicine. No pronounced in the relief and cure following the use of this treatment that it has been publicly recommended by leading druggists and physicians in nearly every state and town in the country, with the result that last year's sales were larger than ever.

The fact that Hyomei is so simple and complete, and that it cures by breathing medicated air and not taking drugs into the stomach, no doubt has helped to create this wide-spread and rapidly increasing army of friends.

The way in which it has been sold by T. B. Wallace has undoubtedly aided greatly its introduction in Napanee. It is such a firm believer in the power of Hyomei to cure all catarrhal troubles, that he urges people to use it with the understanding that the cost will be refunded to anyone who is not benefitted by the treatment. You do not risk a cent in testing the healing virtues of Hyomei, for T. B. Wallace takes all the risk of its giving satisfaction and leaves you to be the judge.

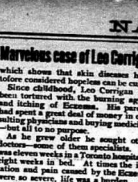
Marvelous case of Lee Corrigan which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

Since childhood, Lee Corrigan has been tortured, life was a burden, by pain and itching of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines—but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was deemed weeks in a Turkish bath for eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain ceased by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several writers he could do no work.



He wrote, on February 30, 1906:

"In November, yes, I had another attack, and happened to see Miss Chatsmoor, (I thought I would try it like the other remedies) and got a bottle (and of no use to me). But, to my great delight, I felt relief after the first dose. I felt free.

I have used it, now, two and a-half months, and am pleased to say that it is the only remedy I ever used. It has worked wonders with me. Since Miss Chatsmoor I have been able to work every day—without irritation or the slightest sufferance of the limbs as I used to have. Yours truly,

"From a state of great irritation and soreness, rendering life a burden, from all such, being capable of doing hard work every day, I am a glorious change. Mrs. Chatsmoor has effected it.

"I gladly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day, post—6 for $2.50. At drug-stores—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto.

THE TWO INVINCIBLES.

Cod Liver Oil and Iron.

Cod Liver Oil and iron in some form or other are prescribed by physicians the world over, more than any other two remedies the world has ever known, for anaemia or poor blood, weakness, convalescence, and all wasting and pulmonary diseases.

Iron, because it is the basis of the blood and without it no amount of the blood is impoverished, watery, pale and impure.

Cod Liver Oil, because it contains curative and reconstructive qualities greater than that possessed by any other one medicinal agent.

In Vinol, modern science has given to the world a combination of these two world-famed tonics—Cod Liver Oil and Iron, but shorn of all useless oil or disagreeable features.

Vinol is made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonic-alo-ferrum all the medicinal, healing, body building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a body-builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and Lung and throat troubles, Vinol is unexcelled.

We ask Napanee people to give Vinol a trial. It won't cost anything unless it does good. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

What is it, ladies? How can I serve you? And he hustled away behind the counter, giving all his attention to the customers, and leaving the old man long look in the direction of the perplexed Paul.

"Dad young gentleman, finding it impossible to get further speech with Aaron, and suspecting from his manner that all was not right, left the shop. He determined to take the man to Wargrove himself and ask his mother about it. Then he could learn why she wanted it back—if not from her, then from his father. This knowledge might explain the mystery.

"Did you sell the brooch?" asked Grezon as they walked up Gwynne street.

"No. I have to send it back to my mother, and"—

"Hold on!" cried Hay, stumbling. "Orange peel—ah!"—

His stumble knocked Paul into the middle of the road. A motor car was dashing down swiftly. Before they could realize what had taken place Paul was under the wheels of the machine.

CHAPTER V.

BARRT, who had witnessed the accident, hastened to tell Sylvia, and so great had the fright been that she had fainted, whereupon the foolish shopman had been severely dealt with by Deborah. When Sylvia recovered, however, she insisted upon seeing Bart again and then learned that Paul had been taken to Charing Cross hospital.

They drawed him from under the wheels, and he was in a state of collapsing as she'n into the steam engine." So also thought Deborah the latest triumph of civilization. "He was that weary, in a cold blooded way, as I never saw. Well, I helped to git Mr. Beecot into a cab and drove off. Then I come to tell you."

Aaron never knew that the man who possessed the brooch had been run over by a motor car or was in the hospital. Sylvia and Deborah both tried to look out for the old man, and schemed how to see the lover who had so nearly been laid low. Deborah boldly announced that she was related to Sylvia to buy her a new dress—that she'd buy it for her, for the cost was to be paid out of the servant's wages, and went with her one afternoon to the hospital. They heard that Paul's arm was broken and that he had been in slightly hurt about the head. But there was no danger of his dying, and, although they were not allowed to see him, the two women returned greatly cheered.

Meanwhile their attention was taken up by the odd behavior of Aaron. The old man suddenly announced that he was about to sell the shop and retire, and displayed a feverish haste in getting rid of his stock, regardless of price. Whether he sold the jewels so cheap as the books no one ever knew, but certainly the pounds were not paid out of the safe. Within the week the shop being was denuded, and there were notices in the windows referring to the disgust of Bart, who, like Othello, found his occupation gone. The landlord had his furniture up for sale, and when Deborah was comforting Sylvia at the week's end the fact had caused great grief, Aaron suddenly called to transfer his household the old man did not say, and this, in particular, was the cause of Sylvia's grief. She dreaded lest she should see her lover no more. This she said to Deborah.

"See him you shall, and this very day," cried the maiden cheerfully. "Why, there's that there cab a-coming up my mind whether to have magenter or lilac, both being suited to my complexion. Put on your best hat, my valley mother in rosebuds as yours is, my angel, but a dress I must have, and your dad can't deny me taking you to choose."

So the end of Deborah's shameless diplomacy was that the two went, not to the inferior draper's where Debby bought her extraordinary garments, but to Swan and Edgar's, and but to the hospital, where to her joy Sylvia was allowed to see Paul. He looked thin and pale, but was quite himself and very cheerful. "My darling!" he said, kissing Sylvia's hand, while Debby sat her upright near the bed, with a large handbag, and played propriety to the glaring. "Now I shall get well quickly. The sight of you is better than all medicine."

"It ought to be the last time, Paul," said Sylvia, trying to keep back the tears, "but you'll give me your address, and I'll write."

"Oh, Sylvia, what is it?"

"My father has sold the books and is selling the house. We are going away—where to I don't know."

PROOF.

THAT ZAM-BUK GROWS NEW HEALTHY SKIN.

The unique power belonging to Zam-Buk for growing new healthy skin when the skin has been destroyed by injury or operation, is illustrated by the recent experience of Mr. J. Schofield, of 487 Hamilton Road, London, Ont. He says:—"A piece of meat (Mr. William Ball, of London) was severely cut by a motor car through an explosion of kerosene oil. He was taken to the hospital, where he suffered intense pain. The wounds refused to heal, and the doctors decided to resort to skin grafting, and I consented to have some skin transplanted from my legs to his body. Although this was done on several occasions, the skin refused "to take" until Mr. Ball heard of Zam-Buk. He at once applied Zam-Buk, and then used Zam-Buk for the places on my legs from which the skin was removed, and I am glad to report that the new skin has grown, and therefore consider Zam-Buk the best skin food I have known."

Zam-Buk builds up new tissue in a way that is not possible with ordinary preparations. For healing eczema, running sores, boils, bad legs, bad breast, blood poisons, scalp sores, itch, chapped hands, and all skin injuries, Zam-Buk is without equal. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post-paid from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Owing to the enormous advance in the price of teas at the gardens during the past eighteen months, The "Salada" Tea Co. have had to raise the price of "Brown Label" from 25c. to 30c. "Green Label" from 30c. to 35c. per pound. No other changes in prices have been made. The chief reason for the advance in the price of Ceylon Tea is due to two causes: First, the enormously increased demand coming from Russia, which country is abandoning China Tea in favor of the finer teas of Ceylon. The other cause is due to the planting out of Rubber, which is more profitable to the grower than tea.

ERNESTTOWN FINANCES.

Dear Readers,—As there is nothing in Pigmy's argument, I am just going to say that the finances of Ernestown are in even a better condition than the Reeve and Treasurer thought they were, or represented them to be, and as Pigmy did not accept my offer to put an expert on the Treasurer's books, the same to be paid by the man most in error, I will simply let the matter drop, and say to my good friends of Ernestown stay right by the one that has had experience and always proved true to the confidence which has been placed in him, and if you don't hear from me again, re financial statement, come to the nomination of December 28th, 1908, hoping to be there. I remain your servant,

Good Tailoring for Men---Spring Materials Displayed

Right now our stock of Men's Suits materials is at its best. All the splendid materials ordered for this Spring's selling have arrived and have been placed on display—ready for your selection. As you survey them, you'll be delighted with their style—their desirableness—their colorings. And if you have a Suit made of one of these fabrics, you'll be proud of it.

We do not think our assemblage can be better (prices considered of course)—the only way we are to equal it would be in duplication.

Our tailoring is perfect—every garment made is guaranteed to fit absolutely correct.

After considering these facts, we only consider it justifiable to tell every man not to make a purchase until after seeing our Suitings for Spring or Summer use. Considering quality and price likewise, you'll acknowledge they are supreme.

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

SOME EARLY AMUSEMENTS OF THE COUNTY.

"The following paper was read by Mr. C. M. Warner, at the regular monthly meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, held at their hall, in the Public Library, Friday evening, 20th March, 1908 :—

Early history of this district always began with the discovery of the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario by Champlain. In writing of the early amusements, we naturally think first of the great discoverer and his small band, and of the winter of 1615-16, which they spent on the shores of the Bay of Quinte. Being forced to remain there during three months (for the Indians would not let them go), and as they occupied the inviolable ground of the Frenchman can, and spent their time in hunting and fishing. But they were explorers and as soon as the winter was over they journeyed back to Montreal. The Bay of Quinte is little referred to by historians from the time of the visit of Champlain until about the year 1670, when the Count de Frontenac would be his celebration to be received by La Salle on the "large in land sea" (Ontario), at the head of the Bay of Quinte. This party was more pleasure than Champlain's discovery, for Parkman says "The scene was like a tale of Faerie. There were gallant officers in splendid uniform, who handed fair ladies from the boats chatting gaily in the brilliant and voluble dialect of France. There was the Viceroy's body guard, and there were four negroes in noble birth after the fashion of the times, all in white of velvet and silk. When the table the Governor's badge embroidered in gold upon his sleeve, and the Intendant's opportunity attached these people at Fort Catarauqui, and it was a gay company that in all the wilderness." The charming widow Madame de Bourdonnais learned to love the gallant Monsieur de La Salle. These early residents hunted and rode, danced and had their balls very much the same fashion as did their brothers and sisters at home in France; and they left their hands in the County, for, we learn that the first English settlers, although in a few cases, were in many cases very poor,—grew fond of the dance and other amusements.

The people who settled our County were by no means all of a Puritanical turn of mind. The interesting evening one could spend, if it were only possible to levy on their memories, would be that of the "Old Settlers" and danced until the "wee sma' hours" and the "Old Settlers" were pleasures to the dance. It is true they had no "Caller Herrin" to enliven their evening imperfectly observed, but they managed to find time for dancing.

A great many pleasant pictures have been obtained in these days from communications from former citizens of the County, written a hundred years ago, and called

"Take one rod of a rope, fast over a beam, And one of a cart-tail, as well as you can; Of a tinker's bellowsmith let a cricket be set, On which with his hammer he'll work night and day; And three strikes and a kick at the anvil he put Into the heart of a lad that is love sick for a lass;

And after all the rest to the work of the string."

Or in another vein,

"When I have cash I mount a gig,
When I have cash I'm very big,
When I have cash it's barly burly,
When I have cash I'm never surly,
When I have cash, why then I feel
Like a jolly good fellow at a meal."

Odd and young indulged in the occupation, and when "all work" were pass'd to the neighbors and raised a

IN THIRTIES the people continued with their dances and "bees" and "raisings" which caused great enthusiasm in the winter months. It was the "golden thirties" of Sir John Colbourn. This head of the Family Compact was then Governor, and was very much in vogue. Near neighbors would ruthlessly invite people to dances, and to dine hitherto under, but that the work was "all" done by the "bees" and "raisings." After the work was "all" done by the "bees" and "raisings" a glorious supper, generally pot-luck, followed, and spent principally in the smoking room, they commenced the play and the dance.

In the early years of the last century wedding was a great event, and they were almost always followed by a "frolic" which was kept up for two or three successive nights after the wedding festivities. It was very much in vogue. Near neighbors would rally in the early morning to the house of the bride-to-be, but that the work was "all" done by the "bees" and "raisings" and "frolics" and "all" was treated to a glorious supper, generally pot-luck, followed, and spent principally in the smoking room, they commenced the play and the dance.

In the early years of the last century wedding was a great event, and they were almost always followed by a "frolic" which was kept up for two or three successive nights after the wedding festivities. It was very much in vogue. Near neighbors would rally in the early morning to the house of the bride-to-be, but that the work was done before noon, for then the "frolic" began in earnest with the dinner on horseback. To-day, as it is in Western Upper Canada, by John Hawkins, "Frolics" in fact. When the time arrived for a "frolic" a great deal of visiting goes on, and calls, perhaps a long parties were frequently given. The Canadians in general, partake largely of the sanguine temperament, being lively, strined to hospitality and extremely fond of pleasure. The young men of the Canadian ladies are extremely pretty; but their chief attractions lie in their sprightly manners, and in their beautiful dark eyes, and in their beautiful dark and good looks, aged at seven years sooner than the females of Europe.

In another book also written in 1833, "The Emigrants Guide to Upper Canada," the author, T. Stuart, says of our Canadians, "Their amusements, of course, are unhappily like those of the world: hunting, fishing, shooting, and where leisure abounds, idle conversation, balls, dancing, the play, the theatre, etc."

It is a wonder that with this kind of a start in the County, our fathers and mothers ever reformed and found some reformation at all.

ENTERPRISE.

The regular meeting on Tuesday evening of Red Rose Lodge, No. 378, I.O.O.F., was presided over by Noble Grand Ketcheson, assisted by a number of visiting brothers. Interesting reports were received from the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment, which met in Belleville last week. Lodge was closed in due form and the brothers repaired to the banquet hall, where a bountiful supper was served by the ladies of the Rebekah degree. After the Brethren had all assembled, Bro. Reid was presented with a beautiful pipe and case, neatly and appropriately engraved, and the following address was read:

Enterprise, March 10th, 1908.

To Bro. John Reid

We, the members of Red Rose Lodge No. 378, I.O.O.F., being aware that you are about to sever your connection with us, desire to express to you in a few words our regret at your contemplated departure. There are many things that we might say in referring to your high esteem in which we all hold you, but we cannot mention them all here. Suffice it is to say that we could not lose a more valuable, and genuine and excellent brother, and it is hardly necessary for us to say that your loss, even you a dept of gratitude for the wholesome advice and counsel you have taken hold of the work at all times. We will understand that we cannot tell you here of all our feelings, but further, on departing, we must just say that it is with the deepest and most sincere regret that we say farewell to so amiable and true a brother, and we fling our best wishes as well that we have the sympathy and appreciation of all with whom you are acquainted.

We wish moreover that you should have a slight material remembrance of our esteem and affection for you as a brother Oddfellow, and as a small recognition of your valuable services which Red Rose Lodge is about to lose.

We therefore have great pleasure in presenting you with this pipe, and we trust that you will have very many happy pipe-dreams, which will carry you back in memory to your old Lodge at Enterprise.

We wish you all luck and prosperity in your new sphere, where we feel sure you will soon make as many warm friends at you have here in Enterprise.

Signed on behalf of the members of Red Rose Lodge, No. 378, I.O.O.F., in Hall, Enterprise, this

At the conclusion of this a very bountiful repast was partaken of, served in the Lodge room. Then short addresses followed by several of the brothers, particularly Bro. A. H. Mallory, of Kingston, who was present and added much to the pleasure of the evening.

After singing Auld Lang Syne, the brothers departed to their respective homes, voting it one of the most pleasant evenings they had ever spent.

ODESSA.

(For last week.)

The Salvation Army people gave a magic lantern entertainment on Wednesday evening which was pronounced very good by those who attended.—Judge Madden dealt with a number of cases at the police court on last month Friday.

On Friday evening the W. M. Society gave a sale concert. The attendance was not as good as was wished for, the stormy and unpleasant state of the roads being the reason. Miss Hagerman, of Morrow, sang some three or four solos which were much appreciated. Miss Johnston, of Morrow, and Miss Grange, of Odessa, gave a number that caused interest for a time indeed. These young ladies are very entertaining, and no doubt will be heard from frequently in the future. The orchestra of Odessa also added considerably to the entertainment.

On Saturday evening the band gave a concert in the Town Hall. The hall was completely filled, and everything went off in fine style. Some went so far as to say that it was quite as enjoyable as some of the Belleville ones, whose price are high. Mrs. Robinson, of Violet, gave some good recitations, and Miss Johnston was greatly in request, and little Ray Amey did splendid work in the Elocutionary Contest. On the whole it all in all was well worth attending.

Mrs. Ernest Aylesworth gave a party to a number of her friends on Tuesday evening. An enjoyable time was spent and supper served.

Mrs. J. Aylesworth, of Madoc, visited his cousin, B. G. Hamm for a few days, last week.

Miss Moore, of Picton, is visiting at the parsonage for the last few weeks.

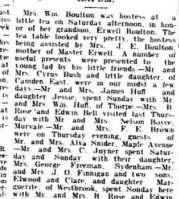
The church was filled to its utmost capacity. Coffee, tea, cake, pie and sandwiches were served in abundance, until every one had done justice to the inner man. At 7.30 the Rev. Mr. Boyce, Addingtown, was called upon to fill the chair. A lengthy programme was simply delightful, consisting of speeches by the Revds. Mr. Boyce, Mr. Hayes, Mr. Shaffer, Mr. Hartman, and Mr. Martin, also solos by Misses Phippen, Conway, Miss Ada Armstrong, Hanley; and the Sunday School scholars; solos by Miss I. M. Charles Hendricks, who owns one hundred thousand dollars worth of property in Vancouver, was sentenced to six months' hard labor without the option of a fine for renting a building to women of ill-fame. Hendricks tried to start a new restricted section in the entire east end residence district, and told women formerly of Shanghai and Canton streets that he had squared everything with the mayor and chief of police for opening the new immoral quarter. He turned out regular tenants and trebled rents to women. Hendricks refused to work in a chain gang breaking stone. He is now in a dark cell on bread and water diet.

In Bedroom Bureaus Are Often Found Articles of Value, Put Aside Because They Look Spotted, Faded and Dingy.



"Some weeks ago while searching through the drawers of a bureau, I found a faded gray Nun's Cloth skirt, a dainty lace and insertion shirt waist and some pieces of faded and crushed ribbons. Having had some experience with Diamond Dyes, I decided to have a 'dyeing day.' I bought the Diamond Dyes I needed, three packages for Wool and one package for Cotton. My coloring work was an immense success. The cost of forty cents I have gained about twenty dollars. It pays me, and my friends to use the Diamond Dyes."

Mrs. Chas. K. Linwood, Glace Bay, N.S.

DO NOT FORGET about the old things which you have stored at present in your bureaus and wardrobes. Though cast aside as useless they are still valuable. A magic bath in some fashionable and popular color of the Diamond Dyes will make the old things fresh and handsome as newly bought goods.

Diamond Dyes Lead to Victory because they are the only dyes which provide one class of dyes for Cotton and Wool (animal materials), and another class for Linen, Cotton and Leather (vegetable materials). The merchant who tells you that you can dye all materials with one dye, is deceiving you.

Are You Interested? If so, send us your address and we will mail you free of cost the famous Diamond Dye Annual, New Teddy-bear Booklet and Diamond Dye Cook Book.

BRISCO OPERA HOUSE CONDEMNED

Mayor Meng deserves credit for his promptness in looking after the welfare of our citizens, when, on Monday last, he had the above place of amusement inspected and closed until such time as it is properly remodelled and made perfectly safe for a public hall.

The following report explains itself:—

Napanee, March 23d, 1908.

To Herman Meng, Esq.,
Mayor of Napanee.

Dear Sir,—In reply to the request to examine the Opera House belonging to Benjamin Brisco, situated in the Town of Napanee, this is to certify that we, William A. Embury and William Jewell have duly examined the said Opera House at the request of the said Benjamin Brisco, and we consider that the same is not safe for public use.

W. A. EMBURY.
W. J. JEWELL.

In talking with Manager Brisco yesterday morning we were given to understand that it was his intention to build a new up-to-date theatre this summer and that would accommodate any first class scenic production that could be brought to Napanee, providing that proper arrangements could be made with the town officials.

—There will be a special service in the Western Methodist church on Easter Monday night.

WEDDING AT CAMDEN EAST.

A very quiet wedding was celebrated on Wednesday, March 18th, at the residence of the bride's aunt, Miss Annie Spronk, Camden East, when her niece, Miss Lulu Hinch, only daughter of Geo. S. Hinch, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Dr. Tr. Youmans, Queensboro'. Rev. Mr. Dowdell, Selby, tied the nuptial knot at the hour of 1 p.m. After a brief honeymoon the couple will reside at Queensboro, where the groom has a very lucrative practice.

At an executive meeting of the Children's Aid Society held on Friday, 20th March, the following resolution was passed: That the thanks of the Society be extended to the young men who gave the Benefit Concert; to Mr. Brisco, for the use of the Opera House, free of charge; to the ladies who sold the tickets; to Chief Graham, for his assistance in making the concert a success, and to all who helped in any way. THE COUNTY WINS.

Township of Ernesttown vs. County of Lennox and Addington.—Application by the Township under Section 617 A., of the Municipal Act, to have Floating Bay bridge, at Parrott's Bay, an arm of the Bay of Quinte, about five miles east of the Village of Bath, declared a County Bridge, was heard by His Honor Judge Madden, on 23d December, 1907, and 15th January last, when after hearing the evidence and arguments of Counsel, judgment was reserved. Judgment has just been handed out dismissing Township's application with costs. W. S. Herrington, K.C., and U. M. Wilson, for the Township, and W. G. Wilson, for the County.

ELOCUTIONARY CONTEST.

The silver medal contest held last Monday evening in the Sunday School hall of Trinity church was another great success. The large attendance, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather, was proof of the increasing popularity of these contests. The judges were Revs. C. W. DeMill and J. F. Mosier and U. M. Wilson. Mr. Wilson gave the report, and announced contestant No. 4, Miss Marguerite Hall, as the winner of the medal. The other contestants handled their difficult selections exceedingly well and should not feel the least discouraged. The chairman, Rev. W. H. Emsley, presented the medal, and congratulated Miss Hall on her success. A good musical programme was provided. The Sunday School orchestra, assisted by Miss Marie Kimmerly, gave several numbers, which was enjoyed by all. The superintendent of the contest was Miss E. French.

MAD EYES SCALDED.

Harry Milling Loses Sight of One Optic by Bursting of Gauge.

Indian Head, Sask., March 19—Harry Milling, living near town, employed running an engine while threshing out oats on the farm of A. Mabyd was the victim of a serious accident this afternoon. The glass gauge on the engine burst, forcing the hot water and glass into his eyes. He was removed to the hospital, where Dr. Kemp attended to his injuries. It is feared, however, that one of his eyes has been rendered sightless... Harry is a son of our former townsman, Mr. Hugh Milling, and his many friends in Napanee will regret this serious accident and hope for a complete recovery.

"COMING THRO' THE RYE."

So much has been said and written concerning the production of "Coming Thro' the Rye," which will be seen for the first time at the Grand Opera House Kingston, on Saturday, March 28th, matinee and night, that an entertainment of rare merit may be confidently anticipated. It is a musical comedy which has received a measure of patronage all over the country equalled by but few theatrical offerings, and the praise which has been bestowed upon it leaves no room for doubt as to its splendid qualities. It is played by an organization of sixty or more people, including about fifteen principal comedians and vocalists.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Napanee Golf Club was held at Mr. C. M. Warner's office, on Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Dr. R. A. Lennard.
Vice-Pres.—Rev. F. T. Dibb.
Sec.-Treas.—C. M. Warner.

Board of Governors—The officers and Messrs. W. A. Bellhouse, D. L. Hill, W. C. Smith, H. Daly, J. W. Robinson and R. G. H. Travers.

The Club has rented the Cartwright farm for a term of years and will use the residence upon the farm as a club house. It was decided to build a tennis court and a bowling alley. A new constitution was adopted, which leaves the entire management of the Club in the hands of the Board of Governors.

SALVATION ARMY WEDDING.

Something unique in the annals of Napanee history occurred at the Salvation Army barracks on Thursday evening, when Mr. Daniel Sedore and Miss Charlotte Blakely, two young people of Napanee, were united in marriage. Long before the marriage opened the hall was filled to overflowing, and after the service opened with song and prayer, Mrs. Hargrave read from the 23d Psalm, giving the young couple some splendid advice.

The marriage ceremony was then read by Brigadier Hargrave, who pronounced them husband and wife. The bride was tastefully attired in the full Army uniform, blue dress and hat, with white sash. She was ably assisted by her sister, Miss Palmer Blakely. The groom was supported by Lieut. Paddle.

The bride received a large number of presents, showing the esteem in which she is held by her many friends.

The Beaver joins with their many friends in wishing the happy couple bon voyage.

Shall the Town Own the Water Power and Gas Works?

The Editor,—Believing in the fullest publicity of public affairs, I submit the following statement regarding investigations being made by the Electric Light Commissioners, with the view of obtaining power cheaper than from the present source.

While doing so the public will understand that until negotiations reach a certain stage private affairs must be respected and not be made public without the consent of the parties concerned. Hence such statements of detail which have been submitted during the negotiations, for that reason will be withheld. But I wish to state emphatically that I would not support the consummation of any public business without the fullest light being made public.

The questions of "gas-producer" engines, the Hydro-electric Commission, and other water powers are matters now being investigated by the Commissioners. The one of which everyone making particular inquiries is the Napanee Water Power.

Though negotiations have not advanced very far, it seems desirable to make a statement now, from the fact that enough has become public to interest the ratepayer and it would unusual if facts did not become distorted.

I trust the reader will forgive my writing with the egotistical "I" but I do it for the purpose not making the Commissioners responsible for all opinions I may express, as the writer determines that is liable to pervade the writings of a town man.

With an excessive amount of water power running to waste, it looks strange that we should be making electricity by steam. The natural question is why are not the owners of the water power making electricity by the water power as cheaply as they do to the manufacturers? The answer is just as natural when it is known that the plant is owned by the owners of the water power. It is only ordinary business prudence that would cause them decline to do so without a profit. The negotiations as would prevent injurious competition.

In approaching the owners of the water power and gas plant with the view of getting power, I broached the question of the town purchasing the water power and gas plant.

He is willing to sell at fair value, and submitted a statement of revenues, offering to submit books etc., to investigation when negotiations had proceeded enough to warrant it, and did so with the understanding that the matter would be treated in confidence if the negotiations were discontinued. A fair selling price was to be submitted publicly only in case the Commissioners and Council intimated an intention to support the purchase. That is, though still enough of it to advise it.

At an informal meeting at my residence of the Commissioners, excepting Mr. Miller, who was in Toronto, the Town Council, and a few others, the following statement

Net revenue from Canal	$2112 00
Water-power Property for last year	912 00
Net revenue from Gas Plant	13
Total net revenue	$3354 00

Dr. Cartwright's price is $70,000.00, but I understand that in case there would be evidence of a probability of securing the power that he would execute a proper option, giving necessary time and at a better price to the town.

I proposed to the gentlemen present that I get an option of purchase at $60,000.00, and investigation verified the figures given that we would approve of the town taking over the property.

The matter is referred to the ratepayers as while a private individual might purchase for $40,000.00 at interest, to this property, it seems to me desirable to improve fully, by increasing the capital invested, the town's position in such a way to enhance the value to the town very decidedly.

The revenue would pay the debentures issued for thirty years, at the rate of interest at which the money could be borrowed. It should be remembered that in thirty years the town would own the property and this payment ceases.

The town is now paying the Commissioners $3300 per annum for the public lighting, which could be materially reduced.

It costs the Commissioners about $3400 for coal each year, besides quite an amount of maintenance expense which a steam plant requires that a water power does not.

There would be fewer men on the pay roll, though the manufacturers might rent enough more to counter-balance any reduction. The hall the steam plant could be sold. Prospective increase of revenue from lowering the price by 1c. per kilowatt is developed it more fully, by increasing the capital invested, the town's position is such as

HAND TERRIBLY MANGLED.

Doctor Withdrew his Remedies in favor of Zam-Buk.

Mr. Ab. Wheeler, Marine and Stationary Engineer, of 149 Front St., Belleville, Ont., says: "Two months ago, while employed in a steam laundry in this city, my left hand became caught and was terribly drawn into a heavy roller. As soon as possible the machinery was stopped and my hand was extricated, but the flesh on the palm of the hand was literally crushed to the bone and the fingers were cut out of shape. However, quite soon after the accident my hand and arm became frightfully swollen to the elbow and the hand presented a shocking sight. No one can imagine what I now suffered and endured. Not only was it hard to bear on account of the cruel pains, but it was a great shock to my nervous system. It was some time after the injury before the crushed flesh could be removed from the palm and then only a very little at a time. As soon as all this had been well removed, healing balms were applied, but as the improvement was so slow I obtained permission from the Doctor for Zam-Buk to be used exclusively, as several of my men friends (having previously used it for severe injuries) spoke in the highest terms of its unusual healing qualities and urged me to give it a trial. From the commencement Zam-Buk soothed and relieved the pains and drew out the sore-ness. I now began to enjoy good nights rest and sleep. In about three weeks time the palm of my hand was entirely healed over other daily application of this wonderful remedy Zam-Buk, and all inflammation and swelling was thoroughly banished from hand and arm."

MR. AB. WHEELER, BELLEVILLE.

J. M. HUGHES, ROSLIN.

ELSIA SCOTT HARE.

Was born in Canada, Sept. 23d, 1813, died at the residence of her son, March 29th, 1908, being at the time of death 94 years, 6 months and 6 days old. She was married to Clement Hare in 1836, and to them were born nine children, seven of whom survive her, viz.: Mrs. Margaret Johnson, Lansdale, Pa.; Mrs. Mary Johnson, Lansdale, Pa.; Mrs. Alberta Chandler, Hillsboro, Mont.; and Mrs. Gilbert McDaniel, Napanee; also by 29 grandchildren, 13 great grandchildren and 1 great great grandchild. In 1867 she and her husband, together with their family, came to Missouri and settled in Andrain county, where they lived until 1887, when they came to Savannah to make their home with her daughter, Mrs. Gilbert McDaniel, and here the husband died in 1895, and the latter has made her home ever since.

From childhood she has been very Christian and their home was an ideal Christian home. Both were raised in the Lutheran faith, but later united with the Methodist church and their lives were actively connected with early Methodism in Canada. Many a circuit rider found a welcome to their fireside and a place for preaching and prayer with them. It is a fact worthy of note that stalwart type of Christian character which has been and still continues to be a blessing to the world, hence it is no wonder that her last hours were in peace for she died in perfect faith in her Saviour. Her last words in regard to her Christian faith were given a few moments before her death, when on waking she said, "I am so glad to see the light of another day. God is good and I am not sorry endureth forever." Funeral services were conducted at the home by her pastor, Rev. W. A. Swarbrenton and the body was laid to rest in Savannah cemetery.

MATILDA MEEKS.

The beloved wife of the late Denison Meeks, peacefully passed away to her well deserved rest, at her home in Cloyne, in the 75th year of her age. She was born in Hungerford, and she joined the Methodist church at a very early age, and up to the end she proved faithful and true to the church of her choice. Her conduct was most consistent, and her character an ideal to be copied. Her home was always open for the ministry, and she did much for the cause of God. She was an ideal mother, and she has left the impress of her life upon her family who revere her memory. She was confined to her bed for about six weeks, and the writer rejoices to bear testimony to the tranquility, trust, Christian fortitude and patience that possessed her soul. On the morning of March 23d she seemed hearty, and took her breakfast as usual. The family then retired to do up the morning's work and when they returned to the bedroom they found that without a struggle, her earthly tabernacle was dissolved, and the living spirit had taken its departure to the building of God. There are left to mourn her loss, six daughters and one son, Mrs. W. D. Foster, Tichel; Mrs. J. Dafoe, Cloyne; Mrs. Cornell, Halliburton; Mrs. Harrison, Mora; Mr. J. Lansing, Manooth; Mrs. K. Meeks, Cloyne; Mrs. Roy, Cloyne. On March 25th, the funeral services were held in the home, where the pastor preached to a large crowd of friends, after which all that was mortal was conveyed to the Demsy burying ground to wake on the morning of the resurrection.

Though we may mourn those in life the dead have,
They shall return, Christ, when thou appearest
Soon shall Thy voice comfort those now weeping,
Bidding rejoice all in Jesus sleeping.

A MEDICINE FOR SPRING

Do Not Dose With Purgatives—A Tonic is all People Need.

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That's the way most people feel in the Spring. Easily tired, appetite variable, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depression. Perhaps pimples or eruptions appear, or there may be traces of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any or these indicate that the blood is out of order; that the in-door life of winter has left its mark upon you and must surely develop into more serious trouble. Don't dose yourself or permit people foolishly do with purgatives in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and should instead of giving strength. What you need in spring is a tonic medicine that will move new, rich blood, build up the wasted tissues, and thus give you new health and strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the one medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich, red blood, strengthens the appetite, clears the skin and makes tired, depressed men and women bright, active and strong. Mr. Harry Huggins, Oshawa, Ont., says:—"I don't think there is anything equal to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a cure for nervousness, indigestion and a run-down condition of the blood. For some time I was a great sufferer from these troubles. I tried several remedies but nothing helped me until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before taking them I felt like an old man, and by the time I had taken four boxes my strength had returned, my appetite improved, my nerves were steady and I was feeling a renewed man."

If you need a medicine this spring and most people do — try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and see how speedily they will make you feel like a new person. They are sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

APRIL.

The gray hawk wheels in sunny sheen;
The new sap throbs through trunk and bough;
And leaves a diadem of green
Upon her brow.

The quick blood fills each swelling vein,
Yearning to rush with wind and brook;
It knows the sign of pool-starred plain
And budding rook.

What of the past?—its woes are naught;
The future days?—dear filmy dreams
The sunlight's mesh of yellow caught
By running streams.

SIMONS—SHIER.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Carlton at Methodist church, Bloomfield, on Wednesday, the 25th March, at 7.30, when Miss Myrtle E. Shier, only daughter of Mr. E. J. Shier, formerly of Hillsprings, Ont., became the bride of Mr. Frank Simons, of Napanee. The church was handsomely decorated, the nuptials knot being tied by Rev. J. A. Rankin. The bride looked very handsomely attired and looked charming in her wedding costume of white mantia. After the ceremony a sumptuous tea was served at McCloskey's, only the intimate friends of the bride and groom being present. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome cabinet of silver. The happy couple left on the evening train for Napanee, amid a shower of confetti. Returning they will spend a few days on Toronto, after leaving for their far away home in Dakota. The bride's going away gown was of light grey Panama cloth, with grey silk blouse, and beautiful white picture hat. Mr. and Mrs. Simons were the recipients of many beautiful presents and telegrams of congratulations from far and near friends, showing the esteem in which they were held. All join in wishing the popular bride and groom a long and happy journey through life.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CANADIAN PICTORIAL.

Easter Number.

The April issue of the ever-popular "Canadian Pictorial" may well start with pride the heart of a true Canadian. The "Noted Canadian of the Month" is the Lieut.-Governor of Manitoba, Sir Daniel McMillan, and the portrait of Lady McMillan is given on the Woman's section. Winter sports of varied beauty, including Ice Formation on Lake Huron, the Muskrat's Winter Home, the just dawn of Niagara, in Winter Garb, well represent the season in which Canadians delight, while scenes of budding Spring are not wanting. A couple of fine pictures show Ontario's two great Hydraulic Lift Locks at Kirkfield and Peterborough, either of which has twice the capacity of all the locks of the Welland anywhere else in the world. Another picture is of Alexander Graham Bell of Telephone fame, who grew up in Canada, and installed his first working telephone in Brantford. A remarkable view, taken seven hundred feet under-ground, shows a couple of brawny miners in an Ontario gold mine near Kenora, and the new electric engines on the G.T.R. for the St. Clair tunnel will be of special interest. Besides these, and many other Canadian pictures, there are pictures from across the water, such as a huge Digital Telegraph exchange, the Thames Frozen Over, a winsome group of schoolmistress and pupils, and her pupils, etc., etc., of them of interest to Canadians.

Weddings of the Month, Fashions, Toilet Hints, Care of the Baby, Wit and Humour, News in Brief serve to complete a delightful number. The "Canadian Pictorial" is a pleasure to look at, a pleasure to touch. No home should be without it.

Only $1 per year to Canada or Great Britain a club of three new subscribers at a half-rate.

To cents a copy, 25c dollars a year, to all parts of the world.

A MAN OF THE PEOPLE.

Little has been heard lately of the Duke of Devonshire, but the fact that he and unlocked-for demise recalls the figure of a man who served his nation well in his time. The duke represented a somewhat numerous class in public life which colonial trade life became they have wealth and leisure they ought to serve the people as a matter of duty.

The day may come in America when the sons of the rich will realize that they can best serve themselves by serving their fellows, by devoting their talents and time and talents to the public interests. With this object standing they will be trained as leaders of thought, and in due season find the avenues of greatest usefulness.

The Duke of Devonshire, inheriting great possessions, gladly gave himself up to the public service. He was no one of magnetic influence—was, on the contrary, very taciturn and reserved—but he was able, and sincere, and on various occasions, under the great Gladstone, filled with honor the offices under the liberal government. He was an loyal in opposition as he was in power, and was, above all, very differential, and on two occasions waived his right to become the premier because in honour he preferred another.

His break with the liberal party came with the proposal to give Ireland home rule. Mr. Gladstone became enamoured of the scheme and made others to share in his remarkable optimism. But he could not induce the duke nor Mr. Chamberlain and these became the leaders of the Unionist party. Both became members of the Unionist government which followed Gladstone's defeat, and gave it strength and solidity. A second time the duke went out of office when Mr. Chamberlain coquetted with protection, and it was a great blow to the tariff reform movement.

The career of the Duke of Devonshire is suggestive of many things, but his political and domestic integrity are most conspicuous. Fixed in his purposes, his life will be a study for the politicians of the day, and there will be much in it to admire. Sturdy in character, strong in his opinions, silently but significantly influential in his manner, with ambitions that never existed in his personal advancement, his is a figure that will be missed in the public life of England.

The condition of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is rapidly becoming worse, and it is not now expected that he can recover.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To the People of Napanee.

To Whom It May Concern:

Of late there has been a good deal of discussion in Napanee in regard to advertised medicines and their value— the papers full of them.

We want to say to every man, woman and child in Napanee that we believe the most valuable preparation of cod liver oil—the best tonic re-constructor, health restorer and strength creator —we have ever sold in our store is Vinol. Vinol is not a patent medicine, it contains no injurious drug, but it actually does contain all the medicinal, curative elements taken from fresh cod liver, without a drop of the useless oil to cause sickness and retard its work, and tonic iron added.

Vinol is recognized throughout the world as the greatest strength creator for old people, weak, sickly women and children, nursing mothers, and after severe sickness.

Vinol cures hacking coughs, chronic colds, bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles. We ask the people of Napanee to try Vinol on our guarantee to return money if it fails. T. B. Wallace, Druggist.

FASHION'S DICTATES.

"Since semi-precious stones have become so extremely fashionable," writes Grace Margaret Gould the fashion editor, in the April Woman's Home Companion, "more depend a great deal on jewelry as the finish to touch their costumes. Of course, we all know that an abundance of cheap jewelry is in the worst possible taste, and no woman of refinement would so bedeck herself. But to wear a necklet of a fine gold or platinum chain, artistic and unusual, finished with a flower-shaped pendant made of baroque pearl and white or green metal, set with tiny diamonds, is in perfect taste if it is in harmony with the type of gown with which it is worn.

"Bracelets may also give a very artistic finishing touch to a costume. Old-fashioned designs for bracelets are much in vogue. A new style is mounted on a gold band is one of the favored new ideas. An exquisite design for a bracelet shows a pearl, pink and white cameo having the effect of being held in place by bunches of pearl grapes.

"Flower pins studded with colored stones are much used at present, but this spring the artificial flower is worn very effectively, and the big pin to hold it has become quite a necessity."

The German medical profession is agog at the revelation that a successful operation just performed by a Silesian doctor upon a sixteen-year-old girl who was suffering from a cancerous growth. The operation revealed the presence in the girl's stomach of iron, consisting of two hair-pins, 100 hooks and eyes, 3 needles, 2 safety-pins, 4 pieces of iron, 2 pieces of wire, four splinters of wood, and a piece of bone. No explanation has been forthcoming as to how it came into the girl's stomach, but the doctor who performed the operation is of the opinion that the girl must have swallowed the articles in large quantities of food. The girl is now in the hospital and is said to be doing well.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more nor less; and one weak heart in a hundred is, at first, entirely diseased. It is always the result of a sudden tiny little nerve that really is all or most of this obstinate nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more vitality, more nerve force—nerve force is heart strength. Without that the Heart must continue to suffer, and the stomach and kidneys also become more or less troubled nerves.

This short explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past dozen years come to be world-famous as a Heart Tonic. Dr. Shoop first created the demand for it to relieve the painful palpitating, suffocating heart symptoms. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this nerve tonic—is now recognized as the most helpful of all existing nerve remedies. Remember, it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong Hearts, strengthen, strengthen these Nerves — restore them as needed, with

The convention of the Western Ontario Good Roads Association was opened by the Lieutenant-Governor.

The German medical world is agheet at the revelation made through an operation just performed at Hirschberg by a Silesian surgeon upon a sixteen-year-old girl who was suffering from a stranger in internal ernest. The opening of this growth revealed the presence of over three pounds of iron, consisting of 1,400 sewing needles, 160 bent pins, 70 double-pointed needles, and seven darning needles. For variety's sake there were four splinters of glass. The girl came out of the operation splendidly. No explanation has been published to show how it came about that this large stock of hardware got together in the young woman's interior and became encysted there.

CHAPTER VI.

BOTH Deborah and Sylvia were astonished that Aaron should be so indifferent about their being convalescent. They had expected and dreaded a storm, but when the secret was told Mr. Neeson appeared to take it as calmly as though he had known about the matter from the first. Indeed, he seemed perfectly indifferent, and when he raised Sylvia and made her sit beside him on the sofa he reverted to the breach.

"I shall certainly see Mr. Reece," he said in a dreamy way. "Charing Cross hospital, of course. I'll go tomorrow. I had intended to see about selling the furniture then, but I'll wait till the next day. I want to breach first—yes, yes," and he opened and shut his hand in a strangely restless manner.

"Sir," said Deborah, folding her arms and stretching her elbow, "I do think as offering dirt lumps of dirt to be trod on in this way. I ask"—she flung her hand toward Sylvia—"is she your own or is she not?"

"She is my daughter," said Aaron mildly. "Why do you ask?"

"'Cause you don't take interest you should take in her marriage, which is made in heaven if ever marriage was."

Norman raised his head like a war horse at the sound of a trumpet call. "Who talks of marriage?" he asked sharply.

"Dear father," said Sylvia gently, "did you not hear? I love Paul and I want to marry him."

Aaron stared at her. "He is not a good match for you," was his reply.

"He is the man I love," cried Sylvia, tapping with her pretty foot.

Norman placed his fingers under Sylvia's chin and tipped it up so that he could gaze into her eyes. "Child, do you love him?" he asked gravely.

"Oh, father!" whispered Sylvia and said no more. The expression of her face was enough for Aaron, and he turned away with a sigh.

"You know nothing about him," he said at length.

"I should have explained before," said the girl quietly and very distinctly. "I invited Paul from the moment I saw him enter the shop six months ago. He came again and again, and then she unfolded a scheme by which to test Bart's savings and her own, they could start a laundry. "And I knows a dry-and it was a good one," Deborah, while talking at supper to her proposed husband, "as is lovely and cheap. One of them suburbs on the line to Reading, where my pretty will live when her husband's profile par makes it up. Jubilestown's the place, and Victoria avenue the street. The sweetest cottage at twenty pun' a year as I ever set eyes on. I'll do the washing, Bart, and you'll take round the cart, so don't you think things 'll be otherwise."

"I don't want 'em to," said Bart affectionately. "I always loved you, Debby darling."

"Ah," said Miss Junk luxuriously, "I've taught you to in quite a genteel way. What a scrubby little brat you were, Bart!"

"Tuss," said Mr. Tawsey, eating ruggedly. "I saw myself today."

"In a looking glasses?"

"Lor', Debby, no. But there was a boat all rags and dirty face and sauce as I was when you saw me first. He came into the shop as bold as brass and arsked for a book. I see, 'What do you want with a book?' and he see, looking at the shelves so empty, 'I seen your stills' off,' he see, so I jumped up to clip him over the head, when he cut. Tray's his name, Debby, and he's the kid as talked to that cold gent what I was knocked along with him when he got smashed."

"Tray, that's a dog's name," said Deborah, "did Bart Tray, and quite good enough for gutternipes. As to Mr. Gray, don't arsk me to say he's good, for that he ain't. What's he want talking with gutter Trays?"

"And what do gutter Trays want with Bart?" asked Bart, though he be sure 'twas impertinence maybe."

Deborah nodded. "That it was, and what you'd have done when you was a scrubby thing. Don't bolt your food, and don't be sorry 'bit 'tip' you to wash and keep tidy. You won't 'ryke' about scrubbing when we've got the laundry, I can tell you."

Next day Aaron went off in the afternoon to Charing Cross hospital after holding a conversation with a broker from whom he had bought the bulk of the furniture. The shop, being empty, was supposed to be closed, but Bart knew a habit Bart's door, the shutters and barred disconsolately behind the bare counter. Several old customers had got as far as the door of the shop, turned and were disappointed when they learned that Aaron was leaving. The last customer was Bart quite few minutes before Bart quite few customers. However, he was polite to all, but his manner became short when Deborah entered to sell her goods. "I ain't got nothing to sell and don't want to buy nobody," said Bart wholesomely.

NO MORE CATARRH.

T. B. WALLACE WILL NOT ALLOW IT TO EXIST IN NAPANEE.

"There will be no more catarrh in Napanee," says T. B. Wallace, "unless people fail to follow the law of common sense."

T. B. Wallace makes this statement because of the great success that has followed the use of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles. So positive is this treatment in quick relief and permanent cure that he sells it under absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

It follows nature's plan in curing diseases of the throat and lungs by breathing. Leading medication right to the very spot where the disease germs exist. With this treatment, health-giving oils find pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that every breath you take while using Hyomei is a breath of healing air. It kills all catarrhal germs and prevents their growth, so that the cure is thorough and permanent.

Remember that Hyomei is sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures. If you have any catarrhal trouble, you should take advantage of T. B. Wallace's liberal offer.

When Bart heard the joyful news he was glad, but expressed regret that

"Hokar is poor: Hokar need money."

Norman should go to America. He did not wish to lose his situation, and never thought the old man would take him to the States else. Deborah vowed that if Aaron did want to transport Bart—so she put it—she would object. Then she unfolded a scheme by which to test Bart's savings and her own, they could start a laundry. "And I knows a dry-and it was a good one," Deborah, while talking at supper to her proposed husband, "as is lovely and cheap. In its initial stages a cold is a local ailment easily dealt with. But many neglect it and the result is often the development of distressing seizures of the bronchial tubes and lungs that render life miserable for the unhappy victim. As a first aid there is nothing in the handy medicine chest to surpass the results as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the far-famed remedy for colds and coughs.

Her Mother—I would rather you would not go sailing with that young man, Clara. I don't believe he knows a thing about a sailboat.

Clara—Oh, but he does, mamma, he showed me a letter of recommendation from a New York firm he used to work for, and they speak very highly of his salesmanship.

HOW TO CLEANSE THE SYSTEM.—Dr. Chase's Vegetable Pills are the result of a lifelong study of the effects of extracts of certain roots and herbs upon the digestive organs. That they have demonstrated in many instances that they regulate the action of the liver and the kidneys, purify the blood, and carry off all harmful waste products from the system. They are easy to take, and their action is mild and satisfactory.

'Well,' said the young lawyer, after he had heard his new client's story, 'your case appears to be good. I think we can secure a verdict without much trouble.'

'That's what I told my wife,' said the man, 'and yet she insisted at first that we ought to engage a first class lawyer.'

NOT A NAUSEATING PILL.—The excipient of a pill is the substance which embodies the ingredients and makes up the pill mass. That of Parmalee's Vegetable Pills is so compounded as to preserve their moisture, and they can be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills, in order to keep them from softening, are rolled in powders, which destroys what is to the taste. Parmalee's Vegetable Pills are so prepared that they are safe to take in the most delicate.

The Answers to Correspondence editor was in a quandary. 'Here's a letter from a woman who wants to know how long it takes to do up a pair of cuffs,' he explained to his assistant. 'That depends on the laundry,' volunteered the sporting editor; 'the one I patronize will do up a pair of cuffs in about three washings.'

'How wonderful it is,' said Cholly, originally, 'how dogs know things. Now there's Fido, I often wonder if he does not have some sort of telecraphy. Do you know?' 'Don't you believe he has a sixth sense—a sense that I don't possess?'

'Yes,' responded Miss Cutter, promptly, 'Common sense, I believe it is called.'

IT IS THE FARMER'S FRIEND.—The farmer will find in Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil a potent remedy for wounds or pains in the body or for affections of the respiratory organs and for household use generally. He will also find it a convenient friend in treating injured horses, cattle, etc., or relieving those who attached to colds, coughs or any kindred ailments to which they are subject.

The Politician—Only this: Don't think your paper was original when it printed that item.

"This is the chicken salad," said the caterer's boy, as he delivered the package. "I guess it was your husband that ordered it sent, ma'am."

"Yes," said little Mrs. Bridge, "here's your money. Now, how he will make it?"

"Oh! I don't know anything about that ma'am."

"You don't? Why, my husband told me if I paid you you'd give me the receipt."

"Mildred," said the prudent mamma, "I want you to treat Mr. Ketchley, who called on you last evening, with due consideration and respect.

"He is particularly handsome or attractive, but he is sensible, well connected and fairly successful in business and is regarded as a good catch generally.

"I wouldn't mind his being one of the family, mamma," said Mildred, "if it didn't take him so long to go."

It was Washington's birthday, and the children were having a patriotic speech to the children of the neighborhood.

"Now, children," he said, "when I say 'Washington's birthday,' you must say and the bosses were draped with mourning.' What was that day for?"

"Washington's birthday," answered a boy.

"Yes," said the minister, "but last year, when I said 'Washington's birthday' you said 'Fourth July,' and you did three years before that. How's that?"

"Please, sir," said an urchin, "Washington never told a lie."

WESTPLAIN.

The people in this neighborhood were greatly alarmed on Thursday, 26th of March, when Mr. Millet Prindle's house caught on fire about one o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. Prindle first saw the fire and ran for help, and in a few moments nearly all the people in the neighborhood were hard at work. Some were busy moving the furniture out into the road, while others were busy dipping water and carrying it up on the roof, and throwing it on the flames. About 2.30 the fire was quite under control. There was about sixteen feet of the south roof burned and twelve feet of the south roof. There were two furnaces and a stove burned, besides a lot of other clothing and articles that were in the chamber. It will cost Mr. Prindle quite a sum to get the house fixed as good as it was before the fire. However, we hope the insurance will be enough to cover all damages.—Sorry to hear that Mrs. Jas. Wayte and Mrs. Johnnie Bolton are on the sick list. We hope for their speedy recovery.—Sugar making is the order of the time in the woods, tapping, etc.—Glad to know that Mr. W. Clearing of Furs.

Going, going, and this is the very last warning before we call gone!

Prices have been recklessly cut, many of them right in half, so that every remaining one of our choice Fur Coats, Scarfs, Boas, and Muffs is marked at an absurdly low price. But, frankly, we would rather sell them than store them as we are pressed for space.

Furs you must have next winter and those you want will cost much more than the price you would have to pay us for them now. So buy them now. What we have are not on display but if you are interested let the management know and you may see them any day at our place between now and April 11th.

This is the right time to add the freshening, brightening touches to the home.

and following days, Miss Richardson and Miss Corran will be pleased to show the ladies of Tamworth, Elzaville and surrounding country, our grand display of new hats, new flowers and new feathers. Good Hats for Men

Some one said, "put a good hat on a man's head, a good pair of shoes on his feet, and it doesn't make any difference about the balance of his dress." Be this as it may, a man's hat is the most conspicuous feature of his entire outfit.

The Spring Styles Are Ready

We've the Soft Hats in several choice blocks to fit different faces. Hats for men of all ages.

We fit faces, as well as heads, with hats. We're experts at it—$1.50, $2.00, $2.50 up to $3.00.

The Soft Hats are very handsome this Spring.

Hats for the dapper young fellows and for the more conservative man.

We think we're safe in saying that there's not another such showing of correct hats in this vicinity.

Come and see what we can show you before buying.

High Grade Custom Tailoring

When a man desires to have his clothes made to order, we take it for granted he wants nothing short of the best, finest and most fashionable garments.

We therefore, make proper provision—employ an artist to do the cutting, and then exact from our Tailors' perfect workmanship in the making and finishing of the garments.

'Tis a matter of pride with us that, for years, we've made clothes for a class of good dressers, who wouldn't think of going elsewhere to be measured.

The new weaves of woolens for spring wear are now ready.

We never allow a customer to take a garment out of our store that is not perfectly satisfactory.

Suits, $15 to $27. Overcoats, $15 to $25. Trousers, $3.50 to $7:

MISS BRETON'S

Spring millinery display on Saturday, March 28th, was as usual, the centre of attraction and admiration.—The parlor presented an entrancing appearance, being beautifully decorated with palms and flowers, suggesting summer in all its loveliness.

The many sparkling creations would need a artist to describe them. The style and color combination being everything that could be desired.

One of the exquisite patterns noticed, of particularly pretty style,—the rather large crown being small at the top and slanting down almost meeting the hat, while the brim seemed to form a frame for the face. Cream lace, dotted tulle and satin composed this dainty hat, with large ostrich pompon and braid and two pearl daggers finishing the trimming.

Another model was the jaunty Merry Widow sailor of pretty brown velvet. The braid has been pleased formed an effective trimming for the unusually high crown, which was surmounted by a brown ostrich military pompon.

The Merry Widow sailor of dotted net and the brown New York turban were much admired.

Judging from results, and appearances, Miss Breton's opening was a decided success.

M. E. HARE.

It seems too bad that men should be unemployed and asking the provincial government for assistance in Toronto at a time when the immigration authorities in Winnipeg have 1,000 applications on their books for help, and more applications are coming in at the rate of twenty-five to fifty a day. In all Canada is there no man capable, in some way or other, of bringing together the employers who want men and the men who want employment?

Lacy Lindle, a ten-year-old girl, of Admaston, Renfrew County, saw what she supposed was some refuse on a floor at her home and selecting a broom she carefully swept it up and put it in the stove. The "refuse" proved to be some dynamite caps which her father had taken from a drawer a few minutes before with the intention of using them for blasting purposes. They exploded as soon as they were put in the stove, and one of the flying fragments of iron from the shattered heater, struck little Lacy in the eye injuring the member so badly that the sight was completely destroyed.

Auburn, N.Y., March 30th.—Unmoved and without showing the faintest sign of emotion of any kind, Chester Gillette was put to death in Auburn Prison this morning. The electrocution was the most successful that ever took place in the local prison. But one reporter saw all that was required to carry the mandate of the law into effect, and when that was over the murder of Grace, or "Billy" Brown had been avenged and the slayer had paid the penalty, giving a life for a life.

Gillette Made Confession.

Gillette made a confession to his spiritual adviser. This much is contained in a statement that the clergyman drew out after the electrocution. This reads as follows:

"Because our relationship with Chester Gillette was privileged, we do not deem it wise to make a detailed statement, and simply wish to say that no legal mistake was made in his electrocution. (Signed) Henry MacHarry, "Cordelio Herrick."

ANY ONE CAN HYPNOTIZE.

Of course, whoever wants to hypnotize—in fact, no one but a physician ought to do it—must learn the technique and practice it carefully and skillfully. And certainly there are individual differences. Not every one can be simply hypnotized. With not a few the inhibition goes no further than the inability to open the eyes, while only one out of four enters into strong hypnotic hallucinations. Further, not every one is well prepared to awaken that confidence which is essential and that feeling of repose which guides one into the first dreamy state. The look, the voice, the gestures, the whole behavior, of certain persons make them poor hypnotizers, however well they may understand the tricks. But in principle everybody can hypnotize and can be hypnotized, just as in principle everybody can love and can be loved, and no special mysterious power is needed to fall in love or to awaken love.

Yet, while thus every one can exert hypnotic influence, no one can do it by a mere glance. All the stories of a secret influence by which one man's will gets hold of another man's mind are remains of the mysteric theories of the past. To-day we know that everything depends upon the attention and imagination of the hypnotized and that no mysterious fluid can flow over from the mind of the hypnotizer to the mind of the subject. The old mystical view of unscientific superstition reached its climax in the prevalent belief that a man can exert secret influence from a distance without the victim's knowledge of the source of the uncanny disturbance of his mind. According to this belief, every heinous crime might be committed under that cover. The distant hypnotizer could inflict pain and suffering on his enemy and could misuse the innocent as instruments of his criminal schemes.

LEAP YEAR ADVICE.

Seasonable Suggestions to Eligible Young Men.

Before permitting yourself to be kissed, it is well to struggle.—Don't overdo the matter, however. A little practice will enable you to know just when to yield.

If the girl insists on taking you into her lap protest steadily for some time—as long as you think she will stand it. But hang on. To get down from such a place at any stage of the game would be very rude.

The proper moment to put your head on her shoulder depends upon circumstances. If you are several feet taller than she is, allow her to sink on the sofa first; you can then run yourself down the room until you strike the right angle.

Never say 'Darling, this is so sudden.' Tell her, on the contrary, that you've been expecting it to happen so long that you were getting uneasy. This will give her a chance to vary the monotony by sitting on you.

Accept the ring in the same kindly spirit it is given. You can take it off quietly to have it tested, and if it isn't up to the mark, inform her coyly that it has been a tradition in your family for generations back that the young man should have his choice out of several.

Have it understood at the start that she is to send you no gifts. For you can depend upon it that even in leap year the kind of things a girl would send a man are not available as security anywhere.

Finally—always have the last word and kiss.

A Convincing Experiment

Dr. Sabouraud, of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, France, took some rabbits (one about him), inoculated a rabbit with human dandruff germs, and "in between five and six weeks," says the report of the Pasteur Institute, "the rabbit was completely denuded, in fact had become entirely bald."

This experiment proves that dandruff is a contagious disease due to the presence of a microbic growth in the sebaceous glands of the scalp. It also proves that unless the formation of dandruff is stopped by destroying the dandruff germ, that it will lead to falling hair and incurable baldness.

The only safe remedy, the intelligent use of which will absolutely kill the dandruff germ is

Newbro's Herpicide

"A stitch in time saves nine." While this quotation does not refer to the hair, the DO IT NOW idea in it, is the best possible advice to those who need a hair remedy.

Every day the hair is neglected means that the scalp is just a little more diseased than it was the day before. If you are indifferent about your hair and do not take care of itself, you should not complain when it becomes unsightly, or leaves you entirely. People who care for their health and personal appearance, now try to save their hair, and Newbro's Herpicide enables them to do this, surely, and in a very pleasing manner.

It is the first scientific HAIR-SAVER, and it is growing wonderfully in popularity. It acts by destroying the tiny vegetable growth in the scalp (the dandruff germ) after which the hair will grow as nature intended, unless the use of the remedy has been delayed too long. Remember that the dandruff germ may be planted in the scalp months or years before its presence is suspected. The first injury is dullness, dryness, or excessive oiliness, followed by dandruff, itching scalp, and finally falling hair.

Much can be done toward escaping the dandruff germ without the use of remedies. Information upon this subject will be mailed free, upon request, to those who send stamped envelope for reply, to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

A GOOD REPORT.

"Before using Herpicide I was constantly annoyed by itching of the scalp and dandruff came off in large scales each time I combed my hair. I have used one bottle of Newbro's Herpicide and the itching sensation is over and dandruff is almost a thing of the past. I had been troubled with dandruff many years."

Newark, N.J. Signed, ARTHUR J. RUNYON.

PLEASED WITH HERPICIDE.

"I feel that I ought to say something in praise of your Herpicide as a dandruff cure. I have used several bottles and I find it the nicest and most satisfactory preparation for the hair that I have ever used. I have been bothered with dandruff so long and have tried several remedies, but have found nothing so pleasing as your Herpicide.

Dayton, Ohio. Signed, MRS. VIRGINIA MARSHALL.

RECOMMENDS IT TO OTHERS.

"I had dandruff ever since I can remember until two years ago, when I began the use of your Herpicide. Since that time I have not been troubled with it in the least, and as mine was a very bad case and the cure is positive, I take pleasure in recommending Herpicide to all those who are troubled with dandruff."

Seattle, Wash. Signed, F. W. SEXTON.

MILITARY RECORDS.

We publish on this page a list of the documents on military affairs which are at present stored in the archives of the Historical Society. It is desired that this collection should be increased, and in order to do this successfully the citizens of all parts of the County should send the Society the records and papers in their possession.

Some of our citizens must have information in regard to the First, Second, Third and Fourth Battalions of Addington, and the First and Second Battalions of Lennox militia, and of the later companies stationed in this County. Papers, lists, record books, commissions, and in fact anything having a military bearing, should be sent in. Please do not delay in attending to these matters. Our County has always had a good record and this record should be placed where some permanency is secured for it.

CHRONICLES OF NAPANEE.

We publish herewith the first of a series of old letters. These were written by an "old resident" and published in The Beaver in 1873 and 1874. There are seven letters in the series, and the names from which we secure them is one of the scrap books belonging to the Historical Society.

LETTER I.

The flourishing Town of Napanee is very pleasantly situated in the County of Lennox and Addington, (of which it is the County town), on the Napanee river, six miles from its confluence with the Bay of Quinte, to which it is accessible by large vessels. It lies midway between Kingston and Belleville, on the Grand Trunk railway, in the midst of an exceedingly rich and enterprising farming community.

Napanee possesses an excellent water power of some 30 feet fall, capable of driving a large number of mills and manufactories, and as a grain market is unrivalled by any between Toronto and Montreal. The town is one of the most healthy and picturesque in Central Canada, and is becoming the centre of a large trade and commerce, and a place of no inconsiderable importance. At the present time it has a population of about 2,000, which number is very rapidly increasing.

Napanee and its vicinity was first settled shortly after the American Revolution, by United Empire Loyalists—a noble class, who came from the United States, not being willing to live under other than British rule. Those men, and women too, underwent great hardships in this, the country of their choice. The Government, however, nobly rendered them all the assistance in its power. Accordingly, in 1785, Robert Clark, a millwright, who had then just completed a mill for Mr. Meyers midway between Kingston and Belleville, on the Grand Trunk railway, in the midst of an exceedingly rich and enterprising farming community.

Napanee and its vicinity was first settled shortly after the American Revolution, by United Empire Loyalists—a noble class, who came from the United States, not being willing to live under other than British rule. Those men, and women too, underwent great hardships in this, the country of their choice. The Government, however, nobly rendered them all the assistance in its power. Accordingly, in 1785, Robert Clark, a millwright, who had then just completed a mill for Mr. Meyers midway between Kingston and Belleville, on the Grand Trunk railway, in the midst of an exceedingly rich and enterprising farming community, was employed by the Government to construct a mill at Napanee. This mill, which was built of logs and was located on the east side of the river, was raised on the 22d of March, 1786. This mill was called by the Indians "Appanee Mills," (appanee in their language being the name of flour), and our town from this obtains its name. At the mill there was a clearance of 11 acres made, which was the first clearing made in Napanee.

In the construction of this mill there were some novel appliances, one of which was that the bolting of the flour being done by hand, each customer having to turn a crank to bolt his own flour. After the erection of the mill it was delivered up to one Collins, and the land afterwards granted to Capt. McDonald, who sold it to the Hon. Richard Cartwright, of Kingston, from whose estate it our present Finance Minister, R. J. Cartwright, Esq.

About this time a man named Smith, whose posterity are now living in the Upper Province, erected a saw mill, a smith's shop near the mill.

On the 5th of August, 1792, Mr. Cartwright commenced the erection of a new stone mill, on the west side of the river near the present foundry of John Herring, Esq. In this mill one run of stones was put in, afterwards two, and latterly three, as business increased.

Mr. John Grange, a rarny Scot, was for many years millwright in this mill, and in 1800, his son, the late Wm. Grange, Esq., was born, being the first white child born in Napanee. Mr. John Grange afterwards settled on the farm a mile north of this place, where the family has since resided.

At about this period a Carding Mill was built on the east side of the river, and a trip-hammer was put in by a Mr. Kesler. Both were, however, shortly afterwards burned down. Kesler soon after erected a blacksmith shop, and remained here for many years. He was an odd old German, and was very quickly imposed on. An incident is related of him, that on his visiting the first caravan that ever exhibited in Napanee, on coming to the elephant he shouted out: "Ghiory to Got; only see vat He has made."

After Mr. Cartwright had completed his mill it was rented to one Crawford and others, and latterly to Allan McPherson, Esq. John Hosey, whose sons are now living in Napanee, was brought up by Mr. Cartwright. Having learned the milling business, provision was made by Mr. Cartwright when he leased the mill to Mr. McPherson, that John should always have a place in the mill—as long as he lived, if desired. Many of the older inhabitants will remember him.

A distillery was started at about this time, and the highwines, excepting what was required for home consumption, was shipped west to the Hudson Bay Company's posts

It was about the year 1812 when Allan McPherson, who had married a daughter of Judge Fisher, of Adolphustown, rented the great mill, and opened a store. "Mac" as he was generally called, for many years carried on an extensive trade in the purchase of grain, staves, saw logs, timber, ashes, etc. He, indeed, might have been called King of Napanee, as he had everything his own way. He was once asked who made him, and on replying that he was made the same as other men, was told that he was not, that it was the Township of Richmond that made him. Although "Mac" had rather an overbearing manner, still he was very good to the poor, and kind and obliging to his friends and neighbors. He afterwards obtained the appointment of Crown Lands Agent for the Counties, and removed to the City of Kingston, where he still resides in quiet retirement. Mr. Donald, succeeded him in business, which he continued for many years, but a few years since removed to and entered into business in Montreal, where he still resides.

Among the first ministers who visited this part of the country was the Rev. Darius Dunham, a Methodist preacher. He was known far and near for his eccentricity, and to think a story, often told of him, will bear repeating. He always supported a good horse, and once when riding along where a party of men were doing road work, was asked by a new-made Justice of the Peace why he rode so fine a horse, saying that when our Saviour while on earth rode an ass, and why did he not do the same. Dunham, always ready with a reply, retorted that he would do so, only that the Government had made J. P.'s of all the asses.

About sixty years ago a bridge was built near the railroad bridge, which also for many years served the purpose of Church and Town Hall. Here it was that the then rising generation of Napanee received their education, and it was that the Rev. Salteru Givens, missionary to the Mohawks, preached the gospel to the people, while John A. Macdonald, now Sir John, who was then a student at law, "pitched" the tunes; and here it was that the "free and independent" of Richmond met year to year to choose and elect their Township Officers. That old schoolhouse was only a few years since taken down, moved to "Piety Hill," and converted into a dwelling house.

In the year 1824 a plot of land on the east side of the river, belonging to John Clark, was laid out into town lots by a surveyor named Rider, and named Clarksville. Several lots were sold, and some buildings erected, one of which is now occupied by Mrs. McNeill, who is the widow of Archd'd McNeill, Esq., and mother of "Archie,"—the owner of the Cannibal House. Mr. McNeill kept a store, was an active, intelligent and entertaining man, and at that time one of the leading men of the place. His respected widow is now said to be the "oldest inhabitant" of Napanee.

For many years the only public house in the place was the "Cold red tavern," still standing near the old blacksmith shop, which is now used as a dwelling house. It must now be about 60 years of age.

"Give Hokar—give," and he held out the locos.

"Don't want any, I tell you," shouted Bart tartly. "I'll cell a peeler if you don't git."

"Ho! ho! who stole the donkey?" cried a shrill voice at the door, and from behind the hawker was poked a lonsled curly head and a grinning face, which sadly needed washing. "You leave this cove alone, won't y'? He's a pal of mine. D'y' see?"

"You git along with your pal, then," cried Bart indignantly. "If he don't understand king's English, you do, Tray."

Tray darted into the middle of the shop and made a face at the indignant shopman by putting his fingers in his mouth to widen it and pulling down his eyes. Hokar never smiled, but showed no disposition to move. Bart, angered at this blocking up the doorway, and by Tray's war dance, jumped the counter. He aimed a blow at the fantastic Tray, but missed it and fell full length. The next moment Tray was dancing on his body with his tongue out derisively. Then Hokar gave a weird smile. "Kalee!" he said to himself.

How the scene would have ended it is impossible to say, but while Bart strove to rise and overturn Tray, Aaron walked in past the Indian. "What's this?" he asked sharply. Tray stopped his dancing on Bart's prostrate body and gave a shrill whistle by placing two dirty fingers in his mouth. Then he darted between Norman's legs and made off. Hokar stood staring at the bookseller, and after a pause pointed with his finger. "One—eye," he said calmly, "no good."

Aaron was about to inquire what he meant by this insult when the Indian walked to the counter and placed something thereon, after which he moved away, and his voice was heard dying away across the street: "Hokar is poor. Hokar need money. Hokar Christian."

"What's this?" demanded Norman, again assisting Bart roughly to his feet.

"Bless if I know," replied Tawney, staring. "They're mad, I think," and he related the incoming of the Indian and the other men. "As for that Tray," said he, growling, "I'll punch his blooming head when I meets him again, during one—blow—and Allays meddlin', that brat, jus' as he was when Mr. Beecot was smashed."

"You saw that accident?" asked his master, fixing his one eye on him.

"I was," said Bart slowly, "I did, but Deborah she told me to keep shut. Mr. Beecot was smashed, and his friend, the cold eyeglassed gent, pulled him out from under the wheels of that there machine with Tray to help him, and between 'em they carried him to the basement."

"Humph!" said Aaron, resting his chin on his hand and speaking more to himself than to his assistant. "So Tray was on the spot. Humph!" Bart, having brushed himself, moved behind the counter and took up what Hokar had left. "Why, it's brown sugar!" he exclaimed, touching it with his tongue. "Cocoa, brown sugar—a handful." He stretched out his palm heaped with the sugar to his master. "What do that furrin' pusson mean by leaving dirt about?"

"I don't know, nor do I care," snapped Aaron, who appeared to be out of temper. "Throw it away!" which Bart did, after grumbling again at the impudence of the street hawker.

Norman did not go upstairs, but descended to the cellar, where he busied himself in looking over the contents of the three safes. In these were many small boxes, filled with gems of all kinds, cut and uncut, also articles of jewelry, consisting of necklaces, bracelets, rings for the hair, brooches and tiaras. The jewels glittered in the flaring gaslight, and Aaron fondled them as though they were living things.

"Too beautiful," he whispered to himself, with his one eye gloating over his hoard. "I'll sell them, though it goes to my heart to part with lovely things. But I must—I must—and then I'll go—to the Americas—oh, dear, not to the south seas. They won't find me there—no—no! I'll be rich and happy and free. What's that?" he added in a harsh tone, "oh, the opal serpent! The jewel-shaped like a snake. Strange—I know it. I know it. Stowley. They want it back; but they sha'n't. I'll buy it from Beecot and Stowley, revis. It's lost—lost." He looked over his shoulder as he spoke in a terrified whisper. "Strange they have it, and then—then," he leaped up and flung the armful of baubles he held on to the dead table, "and then—I must get away—away."

He pulled out three or four coarse sacks, and into these he packed the jewels with the jewelry. Then he tied the cord round the neck of each sack and sealed it. Finally, with a sigh, he closed the safe and turned down the gas. He did not leave by the trap, which led through the shop, but ascended and locked the back door of the cellar, ascended the steps and went out into the street through a long passage. "If they come," he thought as he walked into the gathering night, "they won't find them. No! no!" and he hugged the bags closely.

Sylvia upstairs waited anxiously for the return of her father from the hospital, as she both wanted to hear how the love was progressing and what he said about Deborah's refusal to marry Bryan. But Aaron did not come home, as was his usual custom. Bart and Tray made inquiries here and there, but the master had gone down into the cellar and was probably there still.

Meanwhile, according to his usual habit, he put up the shutters and departed. Sylvia and Deborah ate their frugal meal and retired to bed, the girl much disturbed at the absence of her father. Outside, in the street, the passersby diminished in number, and as the night grew darker and the lamps were lighted hardly a person remained in Gwynne street. It was not a fashionable thoroughfare, and after eight-all few people came that way. By 11 o'clock there was not a soul about. Even the one policeman who usually perambulated the street was conspicuous by his absence.

Sylvia in her bed had fallen into a troubled sleep and was dreaming of Paul, but not happily. She seemed to see him in trouble. Then she awoke suddenly with all her senses alert and sat up. Faintly she heard a wild cry, and then came the twelve strokes of the church bells announcing midnight. Breathlessly she waited, but the cry was not repeated. In the darkness she sat up listening until the quarter chimed. Then the measured footsteps of a policeman were heard passing along the street and dying away. Sylvia was terrified. Why she hardly knew, but she sprang from her bed and hurried into Deborah's room. "Wake up," she said, "there's something wrong."

Deborah was awake in a moment and lighted the lamp. On hearing Sylvia's story she went down the stairs followed by the girl. The door at the bottom, strange to say, was not locked. Deborah opened this and, peering into the shop, gave a cry of alarm and horror.

Lying on the floor was Aaron, bound hand and foot.

CHAPTER VII.

"GO BACK, go back, my precious!" cried Deborah, her first thought being how to spare Sylvia the sight.

But the girl, remembering that ignoble way in which had entered her, faint and far away as it sounded, pushed past the servant and ran into the middle of the shop. The lamp, held high by Deborah over-her head, cast a bright circle of light on the floor, and in the middle of this Sylvia saw her father breathing heavily. His hands were bound behind his back in a painful way, his feet were tightly fastened and his head seemed to be attached to the floor. At least, when the body (as it seemed from its stillness) suddenly writhed, it rolled . one side, but the head remained almost motionless. The two women hung back, clutching each other's hands, and were almost too horrified to move at the sight. "Look, look!" cried Sylvia, pointing. "The mouth!" Deborah moved a step nearer. Aaron's mouth was rigidly closed under a glittering jewel.

Deborah bent down, and, overcoming her dread the horror of the thing paralyze her speech, and saw the lights flash back from many diamonds. She also saw that gems were fastened together with the stout pin. On his mouth and across his agonized face in which the one eye gleamed with terrific meaning the jeweled serpent seemed to writhe.

"Oh, poor soul!" cried Deborah, falling on her knees near to the lamp, still held above her head. "Sylvia, pet"—

The girl grasped again and impulsively as then also, trying with nervous fingers to unfasten the cruel pin which sealed the man's lips. He still lived, for the head bent him breathing and gave the gleaming eye, but even as they looked the face grew black, the eyes opened and closed convulsively. Deborah set down the lamp and tried to raise the head. She could not lift it from the floor. Then the bound feet swung in the air and fell again with a dull thud. The eye remained wide open, staring in a glassy manner, the breathing had stopped, and the body was motionless. "He's dead," said Deborah, leaping to her feet and catching away the girl. "Help! help!"

Her loud voice rang fiercely through the empty shop and echoed round it. But there came no answering cry. Not a sound could be heard in the street. On the bare floor was the lamp shining on that dreadful sight, the body with sealed lips and the glittering jewel, and leaning against the wall were the two women, Deborah staring at her dead master, but with Sylvia's eyes pressed against her bosom so that she might not witness the horror. And the stillness deepened with every moment.

Sylvia tried to move her head, but Deborah pressed it closer to her breast. Then, with a fierce effort, she freed herself from those kind arms with a wrench and looked at the unfortunate sight. She staggered forward a few steps and then fell back. Deborah received her in her arms and, thinking that Sylvia had fainted, carried her up the stairs to lay the unconscious girl on her own bed. Then she descended rapidly, locked the door leading from the shops to the stairs and again looked at the body. The time she had been away was about seven or eight minutes, and the body still remained with the one open eye staring meaninglessly at the ceiling. Deborah, drawn by fascination like a bird by a serpent, crept forward and touched the head. It moved, and she again tried to lift it. This time she found she could do so. The head was lifted against her breast and then laid down again with horror when she found the bosom of her nightgown was stained with blood. Her hands were together, for she felt that she needed them every one, as she examined the head and neck. To her horror she found round the throat a strong thin copper wire, which had appeared through a hole in the flesh. Apparently this had been pulled and tightly as to keep the head down and this could not reach and so evenly as to cut deeply into the flesh. The woman of horror Deborah dropped the head and ran to the fireplace in the corner. If anywhere, those who had murdered Aaron Norman were lurking in the cellar. But the trapdoor would not open, and then she remembered that it was closed by a bolt underneath. She could not reach the midnight assassin that way.

"The front door," she gasped, and ran to unbolt it. The bolts were easily removed, but the door was also locked, and Aaron usually had the key deposited nightly in the cellar by Bart. He pugnant as it was for her to approach the dead body, Deborah again went forward and felt in the pockets of the loose clothing. The man was completely dressed, even to an overcoat which he wore. But she could not find the key and wondered what she was to do. Probably the key had been hung up in the cellar as usual. Somebody being the mother of invention, she remembered that the window glass was fragile and ran up in the dark to the sewing room. Here she opened the window and screeched out in the blackness among Sylvia's flower pots. Just as she was wondering how she could get down the ensuing tread of a policeman was heard, and by calling her such Deborah saw him coming leisurely along the street, swinging his dark lantern on the windows and doors. It was a rainy night and the street lamps was extraordinarily well lighted, as the moon shone straightly between the clouds. Deborah, her strength for a last effort, Deborah yelled as only she could yell and saw the startled officer agitatedly running, looking up and down and sideways to see where the shrieks came from. "Up—up—oh, look up, you fool!" screamed Deborah. "Oh, murder! Murder in the door! Call the police, drat you! Help! Help!"

By this time he was in the centre of a circle of bright light, for the policeman had located her and his lantern was flashing on her white nightgown as she clung to the window sill.

"What are you making that noise for?" called out the officer gruffly.

"Murder, you fool!" screamed Deborah. "Master's murdered. No. 45—the door's locked—bolted it open. Police! Police!"

Before she finished the sentence the officer blew his whistle shrilly and ran to the door of the shop, against which he placed his shoulder. Deborah climbed in again from the window and down again, but even then, in her excitement and horror, she did not forget to lock the door below at the stairs, so that Sylvia might not be disturbed. Like she descended she flung a thick shawl over her shoulders, which she had caught up when leaving her room, though for to? Prince asked Deborah.

"It's Bart's," said Deborah, staring. "He was using it, along with other tools, to make some deal boxes for master, who was going away. I expect it was found in the cellar in the tool box, for I don't always bother it is tidying after he'd done his work in the yard, weather being fine, of course," ended Deborah, sniffing.

"Where is this Bart?"

"In bed, like a decent man, if he's to be my husband, which he is," said this Junk tartly. "I told one of them little bobbies to go and fetch him from Bloomsbury."

"One has gone," said another policeman. "Hurt Tawney, isn't he?"

"Mr. Bartholomew Tawney, if you please," said the servant grandly. "I don't hope he'll be here soon to protect me."

"You're quite safe," said Prince dryly, whereat there was a smile on the faces of his underlings, for Deborah in her disordered dress and with her swollen, flushed, angry face was not comely. "But what about the broom? you say is the cause of it all?"

Deborah dropped, with a air of fatigue. "If you kill me I can't talk of it now," she protested. "The brooch belonged to Mr. Paul Beecot."

"And where is he?"

"In the Charing Cross hospital, if you want to know, and as he's engaged to my pretty you needn't think he done it so there."

"I am accusing no one," said the inspector, grimly, "but we must get to the bottom of this horrible crime."

CHAPTER VIII.

ONE of the first people to call on Miss Norman was a dry, wisen monkey of a man, who announced himself as Jabez Pash, the solicitor of the deceased. He had, so he said, executed Aaron's legal business for years and knew all his secrets. Yet when questioned by the police he could throw no light on the murder. But he knew of something strange connected with the matter, and this he related to the detective who was now in charge of the case.

The officer was Inspector Hurd, agreeable, pleasant faced man, with brown eyes, brown hair and brown skin. Also, to match his face, was double, he wore brown clothes, brown boots, a brown hat and a brown tie—in fact, in body, face and hands and dress he was all brown, and this prevalent color produced rather a strange effect.

The brown man, who answered to the name of Hurd, or, as he genially described himself, Billy Hurd, saw Mr. Pash, the lawyer, after he had examined every one he could lay hold of in the hopes of learning something likely to elucidate the mystery. "What do you know of this matter, sir?" asked the brown man pleasantly.

Pash screwed up his face in a manner worthy of his monkey looks. He would have been an absolute image of that animal, but he smiled like a man, so he talked in a chattering sort of way, very fast and a trifle incoherent, the resemblance was broken. "I don't know nothing why my esteemed client should meet with such a death," he said, "but I may mention that on the evening of his death he called round to see me and deposited in my charge four bags of jewels. I don't know if they were jewels, for the bags are sealed, and of course I never opened them."

"Can I see those bags?" asked Hurd suitably.

The legal monkey hopped into the next room and beckoned Hurd to follow. Shortly the two were looking in to the interior of a safe wherein reposed four bags of coarse white canvas sealed and tied with stout cords. "The odd thing is," said Mr. Pash, chewing his words and looking so absurdly like a monkey that the detective felt inclined to call him "Jacko," "that on the morning of the murder and before I had anything about it a stranger could learn nothing in this direction. Prince turned his attention to the servant. "Now, then, what do you know?" he asked, "anything likely to incriminate yourself?"

"Me!" shouted Deborah, bouncing up with a fierce face. "Don't you go taking away my character. What I know no more who have done it than a baby unborn, and that's the truth, so help me!"

"Indeed! And we gave our name to be insulted by you, Mr. Policeman. Ho, indeed! And we gave our name to be insulted by you, Mr. Policeman! She was aggravating, and many a man would have lost his temper. But Inspector Prince was a quiet and self controlled officer and knew how to deal with this violent class of woman. He simply waited till Deborah had exhausted herself and then quietly asked her a few questions. Finding he was reasonable, Deborah became reasonable on her part and replied with great intelligence, but in a few minutes the inspector, by handling her deftly, learned all that had taken place on that terrible night from the time Sylvia had started up in bed at the sound of that far distant cry of a soul in agony. "And that, sir," ended Deborah, "was just before the church clock struck the hour of 12."

"You came down a quarter of an hour later?"

"I did when Miss Sylvia woke me," said Deborah. "She was that frightened out of her seven senses and couldn't get up at once. Yes, it was about twenty minutes, seeing as I had to come down to see—it." And the woman, strong nerved as she was, shuddered.

"Humph!" said the inspector. "The assassin had time to escape!"

"Begging your pardon, sir, them or him or her or it, the murderer—there was below in the cellar when we saw him pop—but that it was what you'd call a corp then."

"Will you say precisely what you mean?"

Deborah did so and with such wealth of detail that even the hardened inspector felt the creepy shiver the official back. There was something terribly merciless about this crime. The man had been bound like a sheep for the slaughter, his mouth had been sealed with the brooch so that he could not cry out, and then, in the sight of his child and servant, he had been slowly strangled by means of the copper wire which communicated with the dollar. One of the policemen brought up an auger which evidently had been used to bore the hole for the wire to pass, though, for the fresh sawdust was still in its whorls. "Who does this belong to?" Prince asked Deborah.

"It's Bart's," said Deborah, staring. "He was using it, along with other tools, to make some deal boxes for master, who was going away. I expect it was found in the cellar in the tool box, for I don't always bother it is tidying after he'd done his work in the yard, weather being fine, of course," ended Deborah, sniffing.

"Where is this Bart?"

"In bed, like a decent man, if he's to be my husband, which he is," said this Junk tartly. "I told one of them little bobbies to go and fetch him from Bloomsbury."

"One has gone," said another policeman. "Hurt Tawney, isn't he?"

"Mr. Bartholomew Tawney, if you please," said the servant grandly. "I don't hope he'll be here soon to protect me."

"You're quite safe," said Prince dryly, whereat there was a smile on the faces of his underlings, for Deborah in her disordered dress and with her swollen, flushed, angry face was not comely. "But what about the broom? you say is the cause of it all?"

Deborah dropped, with an air of fatigue. "If you kill me I can't talk of it now," she protested. "The brooch belonged to Mr. Paul Beecot."

"And where is he?"

"In the Charing Cross hospital, if you want to know, and as he's engaged to my pretty you needn't think he done it so there."

"I am accusing no one," said the inspector, grimly, "but we must get to the bottom of this horrible crime."

CHAPTER VIII.

ONE of the first people to call on Miss Norman was a dry, wisen monkey of a man, who announced himself as Jabez Pash, the solicitor of the deceased. He had, so he said, executed Aaron's legal business for years and knew all his secrets. Yet when questioned by the police he could throw no light on the murder. But he knew of something strange connected with the matter, and this he related to the detective who was now in charge of the case.

The officer was Inspector Hurd, agreeable, pleasant faced man, with brown eyes, brown hair and brown skin. Also, to match his face, was double, he wore brown clothes, brown boots, a brown hat and a brown tie—in fact, in body, face and hands and dress he was all brown, and this prevalent color produced rather a strange effect.

The brown man, who answered to the name of Hurd, or, as he genially described himself, Billy Hurd, saw Mr. Pash, the lawyer, after he had examined every one he could lay hold of in the hopes of learning something likely to elucidate the mystery. "What do you know of this matter, sir?" asked the brown man pleasantly.

Pash screwed up his face in a manner worthy of his monkey looks. He would have been an absolute image of that animal, but he smiled like a man, so he talked in a chattering sort of way, very fast and a trifle incoherent, the resemblance was broken. "I don't know nothing why my esteemed client should meet with such a death," he said, "but I may mention that on the evening of his death he called round to see me and deposited in my charge four bags of jewels. I don't know if they were jewels, for the bags are sealed, and of course I never opened them."

"Can I see those bags?" asked Hurd suitably.

The legal monkey hopped into the next room and beckoned Hurd to follow. Shortly the two were looking in to the interior of a safe wherein reposed four bags of coarse white canvas sealed and tied with stout cords. "The odd thing is," said Mr. Pash, chewing his words and looking so absurdly like a monkey that the detective felt inclined to call him "Jacko," "that on the morning of the murder and before I had anything about it a stranger very well acquainted with my affairs called and told me to say I had received a letter from my client telling me to do so. The clerk, as he thought it was, led him to Waggoner's, where he delivered the message from me. Mr. Waggoner, who gave it with a very bad grace, could not refuse, as about his son's future I am entirely in his hands, so he made Hurd, who had taken a fancy to the young fellow, present. From Waggoner's Hurd went to the Bank of Buckinghamshire, and interviewed the paymaster, who assured him exactly fifty and five hundred pounds in gold had been drawn from there. There he learned a fact which sent him back to Mr. Jabez Pash, in London.

"I say, sir," said Hurd when again in the lawyer's private room, "that nautical gentleman of yours proved that opal serpent twenty years ago, more or less."

"Never," said the monkey, screwing up his face and chewing.

"I'm indeed! The pawnbroker is an old man, but he remembers the customer quite well, and his description, allowing for the time that has elapsed, answers to the man who tried to get the jewels from you."

Mr. Pash chewed meditatively and then inflated his cheeks. "Pooh," he said, "twenty years is a long time! A man then and a man now would be quite different."

"Some people never change," said Hurd quietly. "You have not changed much, I suspect."

"No," cackled the lawyer, rather pleased. "I grew old young and have never altered my looks."

"Well, this nautical gentleman may be the same. He pawned the article under the name of David Green—a feigned one, I suspect."

"Then you think he is guilty?"

"I have to prove that the brooch came into his possession again before I can do that," said Hurd grimly. "And as the brooch was lost in the street by Mr. Beecot I don't see what I can do. However, it is strange that a man connected with the pawning of the brooch so many years ago should suddenly start up again when the brooch is used in connection with a terrible crime."

"It is strange. I congratulate you on having this case, Mr. Hurd. It is an interesting one to look into."

"And a mighty difficult one," said Hurd, rather depressed. "I really don't see my way. I have got together all the evidence I can, but I fear the verdict at the inquest will be willful murder against some person or persons unknown."

Hurd, who was not blind to his own limitations, like some detectives, proved to be a true prophet. The inquest was attended by a crowd of people, who might as well have stayed away for all they learned concerning the identity of the assassin.

So after questions had been asked, and evidence obtained, and details shifted, and theories raised, and pros and cons discussed, the jury was obliged to bring in the verdict predicted by Mr. Hurd. "Willful murder against some person or persons unknown," said the jury, and every one agreed that this was the only conclusion that could be arrived at.

Of course the papers took up the matter and asked what the police were doing to permit such brutal a murder to take place in a crowded neighborhood and in the metropolis of the world. "What are the police coming to and," etc. All the same the public was satisfied that the police and jury had done their duty. So the inquest was held, the verdict was given, and the remains of Aaron Norman were committed to the grave, and from the journals every one knew that the daughter left behind was a great heiress. "A million of money," said the papers, which was not true.

CHAPTER IX.

BUT while London was still seething with the tragedy and the strangeness of the crime, Mr. Jabez Pash came to the by erroneously furnished sitting room in Gwynne street to read the will. For there was a will after all. Deborah and Bart, who had witnessed it at the request of their master, told Mr. Pash of its existence, and in found it in one of the three safes in the cellar. It proved to be a short, curt document, such as no man in his senses would think of making after disposing of five thousand a year. Aaron was a clever business man, and Pash was professionally distressed that he had left behind him such a loose testament.

Mr. Jabez Pash went to the sitting room, where he found Sylvia seven seated on a sofa near the window. Sylvia was in Pash's embrace, and her head was on his shoulder, and with his arm in a sling and looked pale, but his eyes were as bright as ever, and his face shone with pleasure. Sylvia also looked happy. To know that she was rich, that Paul was to be her husband, filled the cup of her desires to the brim. Moreover, she was beginning to recover from the shock of her father's death and was fervently grateful to escape from Gwynne street and from the house where the tragedy had taken place.

"Well," said Mr. Pash, drawing a long breath and sucking his cheeks, "you lose no time, young gentleman."

Paul laughed, but did not change his position. Sylvia, indeed, blushed and raised her head, but still she kept her with his uninjured arm, defying Mr. Pash and all the world. "I am gathering wedding rosebuds while I may," he said he, misquoting Herrick's charming line.

"You have plucked a very pretty one," grinned the monkey. "But may I request the rosebud's attention?"

Sylvia extricated herself from her lover's arm, with a heightened color, and nodded gravely.

"I wish Mr. Beecot to listen in any case," continued Pash dryly, "if he is to marry my young and esteemed client."

"We are engaged with the consent of my future father," said Sylvia, taking Paul's hand. "I shall marry no one but Paul."

"The will," Pash said, looking at the writing, "consists of a few words. It leaves all the property of the testator to my daughter."

"Your daughter," screamed Deborah. "Why, you ain't married."

"I am married from the will," said Pash, "and I am a widower. Mrs. Pash died many years ago, and I have no children. Aaron Norman, who was my client, was also my friend, and he has left his property to me. I am now a rich man, and I shall leave it to my daughter, Miss Norman."

"Oh, Mr. Norman is an only daughter, I know."

"And an only child," said Deborah, "so that's all right. My pretty, you will have them jewels and five thousand a year."

"Oh, Paul, what a lot of money!" cried Sylvia, appalled. "Whatever will you do with it all?"

"Why, marry and be happy, of course," said Paul, rejoicing not so much on account of the money, as though that was acceptable, but because this delightful girl was all his own, body and soul.

"The question is," said Mr. Pash, "how to invest it. Having all of a sudden produced the will from my pocket, 'ow to the name?"

"Invested!" asked Sylvia, and Deborah echoed the question.

"Your name." Pash addressed the girl. "Your father's real name was Krill—Lemuel Krill."

Sylvia looked amazed; Deborah uttered her usual ejaculation. "Lor!" but Paul's expression did not change. He remembered that this was all of a piece with the murder and the mystery of the opal brooch. Undoubtedly Mr. Lemuel Krill, alias Aaron Norman, must have had good reason to change his name and to exhibit terror at the sight of the brooch. Now that Sylvia he dreaded, whatever it might be, had been the cause of his mysterious and tragic death. But Paul said nothing of these thoughts, and there was silence for a few minutes.

Pash addressed the lawyer. "I know little about the legal aspect of this will, but I should like to know if there will be any difficulty in proving it?"

"I don't think so. I have not gone through all the safes below and may come across the marriage certificate of Miss Krill's—I beg pardon, Miss Norman's—mother and father. Then there's the birth certificate. We must prove that Miss Sylvia is the daughter of my late esteemed client."

"What's that?" shouted Deborah. "Why, I knowed her mother as died. She's the daughter right enough, I tell—"

"There's no need to shout," chattered Pash angrily. "I know that as well as you do. It is most act, however, as reason dictates. I'll prove the will and see that all is right." Then, dreading Deborah's tongue, he hastily added, "Good day," and left the room. But he was not to escape so easily. Deborah jingled after him and made scathing remarks about legal manners all the way down to the door.

Paul and Sylvia, left alone, looked and smiled and fell into one another's arms. The will had been read and the money left to the girl, and they were happy—all right, so they thought that Pash's visit demanded no further attention.

"I tell you," Paul was saying, "that perfectly, "after this will business is settled and a few weeks have elapsed we can marry."

"Oh, Paul, not for a year! Think of poor father's memory!"

"A year and a month," persisted Paul. "You can't stay here in this dull house, and it will be awkward for you to go to Bloomsbury. Besides, faithful though she is. No, darling, I am firm, and then we shall go abroad for a few years or so until all this horrible business is forgotten. Then I hope by that time to become reconciled to my father, and we can visit Yorkgrove."

Sylvia reflected. She saw that Paul was right, as her position was really very difficult. She knew of no lady who would chaperon her, and she had no relative to act as such. Certainly Deborah could be a chaperon, but she was not a lady, and Pash could be a guardian, but he was not a relative. Paul as her husband would be able to protect her and to look after the property, which Sylvia did not think she could do herself. These thoughts made her consent to an early marriage.

"You are an angel," Paul said, embracing her. "But there's one thing we must do"—and his voice became graver—"we must see Pash and offer a reward for the discovery of the person who killed your father. I suggest that we offer a reward of £500 for the discovery of the murderer of Lemuel Krill."

PAUL'S reason for advertising Pash was a lawyer and Paul was a very natural one. He believed that in the past of the dead man was to be found his reason for changing his name and living in Gwynne street. And in that past, before he became a secondhand bookseller and a seedy pawnbroker, might be found the motive for the crime. Therefore, if a reward was offered for the discovery of the murderer of Lemuel Krill, alias Aaron Norman, something might come to light relative to the man's early life. Once that was found the clew might be obtained. Then the truth would be found and discovered. He explained this to Hurd.

"I think you're right, Mr. Beecot," said the latter, and his voice became graver and looking as brown as a coffee bean. "But you mustn't let it be noised abroad you know what you are to do, or you'll tell me plainly why you wanted me round Gwynne Hey?"

"To be partitioned," Hay is one of those well dressed blackguards who live on snags. He has no himself."

"Pooh! you might as well have doubled the sum and increased the value of the lie. He hasn't a penny, and you'll have to keep him. It's pretty quickly in order to buy his experience. Now that he is hard up he practices on others what he has practiced on himself. Hay is well bred, good looking, well dressed and plausible. He has the manners of a duke and keeps a valet. He goes into rather high society, as decent people, having found him out, don't care to have to do with him. But he is a good sharper and a frightful gambler. Paul looked down at the brat, who was comfy bundled and as sharp as a needle. "I don't know my name, but I'm behind, and I'll soon 'ave you before."

"Up to your coffee boy," said the urchin, "cause I'm to be respectable and have street sweeping, which ain't what I call respectable. Gray, as I've seen him afore, sister. I 'elped to pull you out from them wheels with the 'aughty gent as gave me a bob for doin' it."

"Oh, so you helped," said Paul, smiling. "Well, here is another shilling. I am obliged to you, Master—"

"Here Dick did you get this post?" I talked myself 'ot it," said Tray importantly. "Newspapers ain't good enough, and you gets palm in wet weather. So I turns a good boy"—he grinned swiftly—"and goes to a ragged kidder school to do the 'ole. The superintendent see I'm a promising case, and he axsked Mr. Pash, as is also Sunday-boarded, to 'ire me. The crier boy 'ere went, and I come." Tray tossed the shilling and spat on it for luck as he slipped it into the pocket of quite a respectable pair of trousers. "So I'm on m'way to bein' lord mayor some ago, Whittington, as they see in the pantymine."

"Well," said Beecot, amused, "I hope you will prove yourself worthy."

Tray winked. "Ho! I'm straight as long as it's worth m'while. I take m'duty! Come to grass, and don't play pitch an' toree n'more." He winked again and looked as wicked a brat as ever lived.

Paul had his doubts as to what the outcome of Mr. Pash's charity would be and, being amused, was glad to pursue the conversation when the inner door opened, and Pash, looking troubled, appeared. When he saw Paul he started and came forward.

"I was just about to send Tray for you," said he, looking anxious. "Something unpleasant has come to light in connection with Krill."

Beecot started and brought out the scrap of paper, "Look at that," he said, "and you will see that the man warned Sylvia."

Pash glanced hurriedly over the paper. "Most unfortunate," he said, folding it and putting it in his pocket, "but it's too late. The name of Krill was in those printed bills—a portrait and all. Too late."

"Well, what?" asked Paul, seeing the lawyer hesitated.

"Come inside and you'll see," said Pash and conducted Beecot into the inner room.

Here sat two ladies. The elder was a woman of over fifty, but who looked younger, owing to her fresh complexion and plump figure. She had a firm face, with hard blue eyes and a rather full lipped mouth. Her hair was white, and there was a great deal of it. Under a widow's cap it was dressed a la Marie Antoinette, and she looked very handsome in a full brown flowery way. She had firm, white hands, rather large, and, as she removed her black gloves, Beecot, Paul saw, were covered with cheap rings. Altogether a respectable, well dressed widow, but evidently not a lady.

Nor was the girl beside her, who revealed sufficient similarity of features to announce herself the daughter of the widow. There was the same complexion, full red lips and hard blue eyes. But the hair was of a golden color and fashionably dressed. The young woman—she likewise was not a lady—was also in black.

"Come this," said Pash, indicating the elder woman, who smiled, "is Mrs. Lemuel Krill."

The wife of the man who called himself Aaron Norman," went on the widow; "said this," she indicated her daughter, "is his heiress."

CHAPTER XI.

"I DON'T know what you mean," said Beecot.

The lawyer aroused himself to make a concise statement of the case. "So far as I understand," he said in his nervous, irritable way, "these ladies claim to be the wife and daughter of Lemuel Krill, whom we knew as Aaron Norman."

"And I think by his real name also," said the elder woman in her deep, smooth contralto voice and with the display of an admirable set of teeth.

"Norman was not your husband, madam," cried Paul indignantly.

"I agree with you, sir. Lemuel Krill was my husband. I saw in the newspapers, which penetrate even into the quiet little Hants village I live in, that Aaron Norman had been murdered. I never thought he was the man who had left me more than twenty years ago with an only child to bring up. But the bills offering the reward assured me that Norman and Krill are one and the same man. Therefore," she threw herself up and looked pleasingly at the young man, "I have come to see after the property. I understand from the papers that my daughter is an heiress to millions."

"Not millions," said Pash hastily. "The newspapers have exaggerated. The estate is worth about a year, madam, and it is left to Sylvia."

Mr. Wm. Snider and brother, of Violet, were in the woods cutting wood the other day, when Ben. Clark, of Switzerville, came along for hunting, and laying his gun down he took up an axe and began splitting some blocks near by. The axe glanced and flew striking Mr. Wm. Snider on the cheek, inflicting an ugly gash. He left for his home some distance away, which he reached in an exhausted state from loss of blood. Dr. Way, of Odessa, was summoned and dressed the wound which required several stitches. Mr. Snider is gaining and we hope to soon see him around again.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

Beautiful Spring Creations in Hats, Blouses, Ladies' Jackets.

The Dorsee Company's establishment looked especially attractive on Saturday upon the occasion of their millinery opening. Palms and ferns were distributed throughout the store, along with pots of hyacinths and American Beauty roses.

The millinery department was a blaze of bright peculiar colors. The prevailing shades are blues and tans, the Copenhagen blue still being a decided favorite. Several tables contained hats of great charm. The fine creation, called a Spanish turban, made of black tulle and mohair with handsome band of cut jet finished with black osprey. A blue sailor in Merry Widow style was next examined covered with shantung silk, laced with braid, trimmed with roses and fancy banding all in the blue shades.

A sailors hat attracted considerable attention. It was trimmed with lace over the crown and an agretie of American beauty roses in pastel shades.

Some very pretty and choice things were shown in hats for children.

THE PASTOR'S PITY. — A prominent pastor of Chatham, Ont., says he writes "I suffered intensely from Inflammatory Rheumatism. Only one bottle of South American Rheumatic Cure healed me. Pity those who suffer so much and do not know how cheaply they are cured. I feel like proclaiming it from the housetops." For sale by T. R. Wallace.—13b

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

On Tuesday evening, March 24th, a number of friends assembled at the home of Mr. T. W. Dunwoody, the occasion being a presentation to Miss Edith, in acknowledgement of her services as organist of Ebenezer church. The following address was read by Mrs. W. Jenkins, while the Misses Helen Scott and Clara Jones presented a silver fruit dish and spoon and pickle cruet.

Miss Edith Dunwoody,

Dear Friend,—You are no doubt surprised to see your friends gathered here to-night, but we, the members and adherents of Ebenezer church, have long felt that we should in some manner express to you, our sincere gratitude, for your self-denying efforts. So we have taken this opportunity to show you that we fully appreciate your services as organist of the church. You have been faithful in the performance of your duty and always willing to do your share of the work, in connection with the church. And now please accept these gifts, as a slight token of our affection for you. We all unite in wishing that your efforts be crowned with success, and your life be filled with happiness.

Signed on behalf of the congregation of Ebenezer church,

MR. AND MRS. T. FENNEL
MR. AND MRS. T. SCOTT.

Afterwards a dainty lunch was served, and a social evening was spent and enjoyed by all.

YOU CAN'T TELL.

You don't know when that cough will stop. The cough is dangerous. Just get such a bottle of Scott's Emulsion now while the cough is easily managed. 13b

A SPLENDID CONCERT.

The concert given under the auspices of the Napanee Model School, on Friday evening, was well received by an appreciative audience. Admirers of Drummond say that Mr. McHaye gave the most sympathetic rendering they have yet heard.

Miss E. Pauline Johnson was at her best and her repertoire, all of her own composition, included the tragic, the comic and the lyrical. In "Ojibwa" and "As Red Men Die", she showed a vigor and verve which place her in a class by herself so far as an interpretation of the fierce emotions of Indian life are concerned. In a social skit on the frivolities of a London drawing room she convinced the audience in the most genial way that materialism is not her master; in a ballad she has a pleasing voice and realized that "Life is deeper than they think who sing the shallow bars." In "Qu'Appelle" and the "Pilot of the Plains" she touched the cords of every heart and left the weird and haunting echo of "Qu'Appelle" and the lingering light of the prairie plains a living reality to her audience.

We predict that when posterity makes its estimate of present day Canadian poetry it will then be realized that Miss Johnson ranks second to none, and that she will be placed beyond the "mists of the mortals", and expressed her own unique personality in the medium of our destructive Canadian scenery.

—On Wednesday evening, March 25th, a number of the Mount Pleasant people gathered with their pastor and wife, Mr. Thompson, assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Crandall, Marysville, to give them a complimentary social evening, and also to invite them to attend Mount Pleasant church. The evening was spent in merriment until the wee sma' hours, when refreshments were served, and each took his departure, bidding Mr. and Mrs. Crandall good night, and not to forget that the Mount Pleasant people would be pleased to have them attend their church.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Beaver,—Your much appreciated paper, being the Press representative in Lennox of the Great Conservative Party, of which I am an humble member, I take the liberty of addressing the Electorate of this Riding through your columns. The convention is called for the 14th inst., to select a candidate to carry our banner in the next Provincial Election, or rather the mass meeting is for the purpose of hearing R. R. Gamey, while the delegates for the various Polling sub-divisions are in private session, determining upon the man for the fight. Personally having been waited upon by many friends, requesting me to enter the field, I have concluded to do so if the convention can manage, or through the delegates, shall decide upon honoring me with the nomination but to achieve that end, I shall not, as I think such a course highly improper, harness a single person to the party support in convention. However, if selected, I will commence at once, and will spend the previous canvass in order to get acquainted with the wishes of the Electors, but will take every legitimate means to retain old Lennox in the fold. The method of selecting a nominee of the party will no doubt be arrived at amicably and choosen the best available man at a private meeting where all Conservatives present may have their say. I have no hesitation in at this expressing my views as we all know that many of our premier work ers approve of such a course especially as there are always many vacancies in the Board of Delegates owing to deaths, illness, absences, etc., and again the fact that there is one of long standing and that many of our younger workers may feel slighted should he not adopt a plan of unanimity.

Yours faithfully,

L. L. GALLAGHER.

Chronicles of Napanee.

We publish herewith the third of a series of old letters. These were written by an "old resident" and published in The Beaver in 1873 and 1874. There are seven letters in the series, and the source from which we secure them is one of the scrap books belonging to the Historical Society.

LETTER III.

OUR CHURCHES.

In the year 1836, there being no church in Napanee, the Messrs. Cartwright, with great liberality, not only donated the land, but paid the expense of putting up the walls of the old church.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE CHURCH, and the following year, through the exertions of the people who were but few and poor, the church was completed, and duly dedicated to the worship of God in the year 1838. This church was a plain stone structure, about 30x40 feet, with a tower and bell. Galleries were afterwards put into it. For many years it did duty as a place of worship, but for some time past it was considered behind the times and too strait for its congregation, and during last year it was taken down, and the materials worked into the new St. Mary Magdalene church, now being erected on a beautiful site directly opposite the residence of the Hon. John Stevenson. The corner stone of the new church was laid with Masonic honors, by Bro. G. Simpson, of H. M. Custom, on the 1st day of July last, in the presence of a large concourse of people. The walls of the church have since been put up and the building is enclosed. It is a handsome and stylish gothic stone edifice, 44x120 feet, with tower and buttresses, and will, when completed, be an ornament to the town and a credit to the congregation. The entire cost of this church will be nearly $20,000. Rev. Messrs. Bogart and Lauder are the present pastors in their indefatigable exertions in this matter.

Ministers were few in the early days of Napanee, and for many years the Rev. Nafteru Givens, then Missionary to the Mohawks, now of St. Paul's church, Toronto, preached regularly in the old church, until the 1st day of July last, the Rev. William B. Lauder, L.L.D., was appointed Rector of Napanee. Although Mr. Lauder was rather of the High Church order, he was a very fine man, and had many warm friends. In the year 1842 he returned to his native land, Ireland, where he died on the 5th February, 1843, deeply lamented.

In 1842, the Rev. J. J. Bogart, M.A., was appointed Rector of Napanee. Mr. Bogart was born in Brockville, graduated at Trinity College, Toronto, was ordained in 1838, and for a few years previous to coming here, officiated at Prescott, where he was very much esteemed. He is an able minister, an excellent reader, an estimable gentleman, and has many friends, who esteem him very highly.

The Rev. D. F. Bogart, who is Curate to his brother, was born and educated at the same place as the Rector. He only recently came to this place. He is very highly respected.

THE OLD WESLEYAN CHURCH

erected upon a lot donated by the Cartwright estate, was a brick building 60x80 feet. It was dedicated to the worship of God by the Rev. Mr. Davidson, in 1840. The Rev. Gilbert Miller, now of Picton, was the Minister under whose superintendence it was erected. time would fail me to mention all who have occupied the pulpit since then, but there is amongst the number, are the Revds. Messrs. John Black, Robt. Carson, D. B. Madden, Wm. Haw, B. Slight and several others, some of whom have gone to their reward.

After the year 1849, through the enterprise and energy of the Rev. F. Berry, the Wesleyan new stone church was commenced on the old brick church site, the latter having fallen down, and in 1862 the new church was completed. It is a plain stone structure, 45 x 84 feet, with tower and spire 155 feet high, very comfortably finished internally, with galleries on three sides.

The Rev. Wm McCullough, good man, followed Mr. Berry in the year 1854. The Rev. John S. Clarke, who was a most enthusiastic and pushing man, and who had many friends, then came the Rev. Wm. Scott, an able expounder of the New Testament and a zealous advocate of temperance. He is at present stationed at Oshawa. The Rev. G. M. Meacham, M.A., was ordained in the year 1871, and is now on his last year. Mr. Meacham was born in Adolphustown 1823 this father having been for many years Postmaster, and a prominent citizen of that place)—graduated at Victoria College in 1860, and was ordained the same year, 1871. He has labored on a field which is now a number around here are sick with la grippe.—Farmers are hustling to get their teaming done before the rush.—Sugar making is the order of the day.

A FINE MOTOR BOAT.

When the ice goes out William Smith, the Napanee jeweller, will have one of the finest motor boats afloat. For some time Frank Markle has been using the hull over Armitage's store as a work shop, and he has succeeded in building a fine boat there. It is 26 feet 9 inches long, the hull of cedar with upper works of oak. The decks are alternate strips of oak and walnut. The oak is all quarter cut and of fine grain. The boat is 5 feet 6 inches beam, and when her 15 h.p. engine is installed it is expected she will clip off 12 to 14 miles each hour. As soon as the bay is clear Mr. Markle will take the boat to Napanee to install the engine and have the other fittings put in.—Deseronto Tribune.

FISH AND GAME.

Mr. Thomas Ritchie rings the toesin over the destruction of game protection for our fish and game, pointing out, very pertinently, that such action is entirely in the interests of the public at large, not for the benefit of a favored few. The fact is that the fish and game of Canada is the general—and Ontario in particular—if properly conserved and protected, would bring much wealth into the country, to the great benefit of merchants, hotel-keepers, and the people at large, whereas, if the suicidal policy of net fishing and deer extermination is allowed to continue, the fish and game will be gone in a few years and the country be overrun by millions of settlers. It is time that the people of Ontario at large woke up to this fact in the matter, and brought such pressure to bear on those in authority that they would take decisive action. Until this course is followed we can look for little betterment in present conditions. Mr. Ritchie's letter is strong, and should receive the attentive perusal of and united support on the part of all people who have the best interests of the province at heart.—Belleville Intelligencer.

The death occurred on the 14th of January, but owing to the many details in connection with it the claim has not been settled until the present time. The case has been a very complicated one requiring correspondence with Mexico and the United States, as well as Canada, and I wish to tender my especial thanks to Mrs. Robert Bennett, the recorder of Odessa Council No. 160, for the able manner in which she conducted the correspondence in connection with this claim.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng presiding.

Members present — Reeve Symington, Couns. Alexander, Steacy, Simpson, Kimmerly, Denison, Gilmore, Meng.

On motion of the communication was received.

From Lewis Harrison, saying that on the 20th day of January last his dwelling house and wood house was destroyed by fire, and he believes it was largely due to the fact that the Napanee Fire Brigade were dilatory or negligent in the discharge of their duty in not arriving at the scene of the fire for fully 45 minutes after the alarm was sounded, and had they been reasonably prompt in their action the dwelling house at least might have been saved and he is fully persuaded that he has a just claim against the town for the loss he sustained. He respectfully requested the Council to fairly consider the claim in order that a reasonable and just settlement may be made.

Moved by Coun. Denison, seconded by Reeve Symington, that the matter be left in the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to thoroughly investigate, confer with the Town Solicitor and report. Cd.

THE COMING ELECTIONS.

No doubt, during the coming summer, an appeal will be made both by the Federal House and by the Legislative Assembly to the electorate for a new lease of political life and a further term of office.

As far as the Province of Ontario is concerned, it is conceded by all parties that the present administration under the Honorable J. P. Whitney will be returned to power, whether by a smaller or larger majority remains to be seen. They have, in their term of office, fulfilled every pledge they made to the electorate. The list of school books has been reproduced to the maximum of efficiency, and as the Government have pledged themselves to produce school books at the lowest cost possible, the Minister of Education has, during the present session, promised a further reduction, and no doubt the Government will publish the b's as themselves, and, in that event, as the Government will own the plates of the text books, the cost of production to the province for cost of paper, ink, press work and binding, and it will cost no more to produce a fifth reader or history than it does a third reader, there being no type setting, nothing but press work and the necessary labor of putting the work together. This was not always so, for under the former Government, this unnecessary profit was given to the publisher; it is now being distributed among parents, who have children to educate.

Another pledge of the Government, on taking office, was that the Provincial ballot should be made secret the same as the Dominion ballot has been for a number of years, by requiring the voter's ballot all numbers and marks to enable it to be traced to the voter. At the coming Provincial election, a ballot will be issued which is absolutely secret, with no number or mark upon it, exactly like the ballot used in the Dominion election. The working man in the Province, who looks to his employer for his daily wage, has long felt the lash over his head, compelling him to vote as he thinks will please his employer, and not according to his own convictions and as it has been with regard civil service and with regard to people, who are controlled by social and other influences, are first considered in marking their ballot, it is felt and believed that a much more good result therefor that lists were prepared, or could be prepared, showing exactly how every voter has voted at previous elections and for whom, and justice was distributed on this basis. The Ontario Government, believing that their acts would meet the approval of the people, have opened wide the door for every man to exercise the privilege right of franchise according to his own conscientious convictions, and no one doubt that any person will by any means whatever obtain information as to how he marked the ballot he put in the ballot box, and no person in the world can find out how he marked his ballot unless he tells it himself. We wish to emphasize this fact, because, so many people, who are fraternity type and kept themselves in touch with the times, are going on to realize the revolutionary change which has been effected in the manner in which elections in the Province will, in the future, be carried out.

British Cruiser Sank Destroyer.

THIRTY-SIX LIVES LOST OFF ISLE OF WIGHT.

The Berwick, Steaming Slowly, Struck Torpedo-boat Destroyer Tiger Amidships as the Little Vessel Attempted to Cross the Cruiser's Bows in the Darkness—Several Men Killed by Impact — Others Dragged Down by Heavy Oilskins—Commander Perished — Story of Eyewitnesses.

Portsmouth, Eng., Apr. 3.—Thirty-six men, including Lieutenant Middleton, the commander of the torpedo boat destroyer Tiger, lost their lives in the collison off the Isle of Wight last night between that vessel and the British cruiser Berwick.

The vessels belong to the Portsmouth division of the British home fleet, and were engaged in night manoeuvres in the Channel, while on their way to Portland. The night was dark and the Berwick was steaming slowly. When the destroyer attempted to cross the big cruiser's bow, she was caught amidships and cut in half, with knife-like precision, sinking almost immediately.

The deck crew, who were dressed in heavy oilskins, and boots, went down with the vessel, not having time to free themselves from their heavy encumbrances. Most of the twenty-two men rescued were engineers and stokers, who, having light clothing, were able to keep themselves afloat until boats from other ships picked them up.

The collision occurred at 8.10 o'clock last night. The ships were manoeuvring without lights. It is believed that several of the men were killed by the impact. Tugs were despatched to the scene of the disaster at daylight, and divers will make an attempt to recover the bodies of the drowned men.

MANOUVRING IN DARKNESS.

The smaller naval vessels were in the midst of an attack on their larger consorts when the disaster occurred. The entire fleet was under masked lights, and in the absolute darkness the Tiger was suddenly struck square amidships by the Berwick. The sharp stem of this vessel cut the destroyer in two as if she had been made of paper. The forward half sank at once, and the two became detached with straggling men. Most of them, however, sank before help could reach them. The warships in the immediate vicinity quickly had their boats overboard, and the scene of the tragedy was brilliantly illuminated by a concentration of searchlights.

The after portion of the Tiger floated long enough to enable those on board to seize lifebelts. They threw themselves into the water and were able to keep afloat until picked up.

Lieut. William E. Middleton, was on the bridge at the time of the disaster and went down with the forepart of the ship. The Tiger had a complement of 59 men and was of 400 tons.

A HORRIBLE SIGHT.

An officer who was an eye-witness to the sinking of the Tiger gave the following account of the accident:

"The first we knew that anything had happened was when we saw a flash and heard a loud report. This we supposed to be a gun in reality, however, the flash was the report resulted from the sea water reaching the boiler-room of the Tiger.

This caused an escape of steam which must have scalded to death everybody that it touched. It was horrible to see the forms struggling in the water. Many of the men went under just as help was within reach. I do not think that there is any hope of raising the Tiger or recovering the bodies, as the wreck lies in too deep water."

The Tiger was in a serious accident last September, when during night manoeuvres she fouled herself upon the Portland breakwater.

STORY OF A SURVIVOR.

A stoker rescued from the Tiger gave a vivid account of the accident.

"The Berwick flew up out of the blackness and seemed to fall on us," he said this man. "The noise of the impact was not great, but in a few seconds that vessel ripped in halves. The forward half of the Tiger reared up like a frightened horse and then sank beneath the waves. The engineer-lieutenant, who was in the engine room at the time, shouted, 'All hands on deck,' but owing to the roaring of the steam and the noise of the engines none of the men stokers could not hear him.

We did realize what had happened and it was all we could do to make our way against it. Everything happened with startling suddenness. A minute or two after the collision we were drifting past the Berwick in the full glare of the searchlights. The next thing I remember is being dragged from one of the overturned boats in a semi-conscious condition.

CANADIAN HORSE SHOW

In spite of the commercial and financial depression, the prospects of the best class of horses have never been so high in Canada as at present. The show ring horses are held at higher prices than animals of the same class in the United States. This fact has a special interest in relation to the fourteenth Canadian Horse Show which is to be held in the St. Lawrence Arena, on April 29th, 30th, and May 1st and 2d. The entries promise to be larger than at any previous show. All the leading exhibitors will be largely represented. Hon. Adam Beck, of London, has added to less than ten new hunters to the timetable possessed by Mrs. Beck and himself. One of the new ones is said to be a better horse than Kakabeka, which won the premier honours at the International Horse Show in London last year. Mr. Frank Dixon, a leading amateur of Toronto, is buying prize winners in New York so as to compete for the King Edward Hotel Challenge Cup. Among other exhibitors who will be present are A. Yeagher of Simcoe, Langden Wilks, Galt; Dr. H. E. Webster, Ottawa; Gordon J. Henderson, Hamilton; Dr. McCoy, St. Catharines; Arthur Jarvis, Dr. W. A. Young, H. Cox, George Pepper, Crow & Murray, Toronto.

Reduced rates can be obtained on all railways. It is expected that His Excellency the Governor-General will be present.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two conditions must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both necessary. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—for a time becomes pernicious especially to stomach, while the Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. Together they make a remedy of almost magic power, seeking the repair of the nerves, the cause and all blood ailments.

Dr. Shoop's "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous irritability, encourages sound, refreshing sleep, relieves headache, backache and palpitation, brings vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"Who is Sylvia?" asked Mrs. Krill in the words of Shakespeare's song.

"She is the daughter of Mr. Norman," said Paul quickly, "and I engaged to marry her."

Mrs. Krill's eyes traveled over his shabby suit from head to foot and then back again from foot to head. She clicked her tongue in a manner contemptuous manner. "I fear you will be disappointed in having a rich wife, sir," said the elder woman severely.

"I have not lost the money yet," replied Paul hotly. "Not that I care for the money, but I do care for Sylvia Norman."

"With whom I have nothing to do."

"She is your husband's daughter."

"But not mine, Mr. Krill," said Mrs. Mand—the legal daughter of Leonel and myself," she added meaningly.

"Quite so, madam!" replied Paul coolly, his face turning white. "What do you mean?"

Paul sat down and concealed his face with a groan. He was thinking not so much of the loss of the money, although that was a consideration, as of the shame Sylvia would feel at her position. Then a gleam of hope darted into his mind. "Mr. Norman was married to Sylvia's mother under his own name. You can't prove the marriage void."

"I have no wish to. When did this marriage take place?"

Beecot looked at the lawyer, who replied, "Twenty-two years ago," and he gave the date.

Mrs. Krill flashed in a black morocco bag she carried and brought out a shabby blue envelope. "I thought this might be needed," she said, passing it to Paul. "You will find there my marriage certificate. I became the wife of Mr. Leonel Krill thirty years ago. And, as I am still living, I fear the later marriage"— She smiled blandly and shrugged her shoulders.

Throwing back his head, Paul retorted, "You forget, madam, there is a will."

Mrs. Krill's fresh color turned to a dull white and her hard eyes shot fire. She laughed bitterly. "I shall dispute the will if it is not in my favor. I am the widow of this man and I claim full justice. Besides," she went on, writing her full name with her tongue, "I understood from the newspapers that the money was left to Mr. Krill's daughter."

Paul rose and flung back his head again. "Sylvia has got the money yet, madam," he said defiantly.

Not at all disturbed, Mrs. Krill smiled her eternal smile. "I am here to get it. There is a will, you say," she added, turning to Pash. "And I understand from this gentleman," she indicated Beecot slightly, "that the money is left to Mr. Krill's daughter. Does he name Mand or Sylvia?"

Pash slapped down the certificate irritably. "He names no one. The will is a hasty document, badly worded, and simply leaves all the testator died possessed of to—my daughter."

"Which of course means Mand here. I congratulate you, dear," she said, turning to the girl, who looked happy and flushed. "Your father has made up to us both for his cruelty and desertion."

Seeing that there was nothing to be said, Paul went to the door. But there his common sense left him and he made a valedictory speech. "I know that Mr. Krill left the money to Sylvia."

"Oh, no," said the widow, "to his daughter, as I understand the wording of the will runs. In that case this nineteen girl has nothing."

"Pash" cried Beecot, turning despairingly to the little solicitor.

The old man shook his head and sucked in his cheeks. "I am sorry, Mr. Beecot," said he in a pitying tone, "but as the will stands the money must certainly go to the child born in wedlock. I have the certificate here," he laid his hand on one of his, "and of course I shall make inquiries."

"By all means," said Mrs. Krill graciously, "my daughter and myself have lived for many years in Christchurch, Hants. We keep the inn there—not the principal inn, but a small public house on the outskirts of the village. It will be a change for us both to come into five thousand a year after such penury. Of course, Mr. Pash, you will act for my daughter, I suppose?"

"Mr. Pash acts for Sylvia," cried Paul, still lingering at the door. He knew there was on the horns of a dilemma. "If what Mrs. Krill says is true I can't dispute the fact," he said irritably, "and I am unwilling to give up the business. Prove to me, ma'am, that you are the lawful widow of the late client, and that this is my late esteemed client's lawful daughter, and I will act for you."

Mrs. Krill's ample bosom rose and fell and her eyes glittered triumphantly. She cast a victorious glance at Beecot. But that young man was looking at the solicitor. "Hats leave the inkling that will be bitterly; "you will not prosper, Pash."

NO MORE CATARRH.

T. B. WALLACE WILL NOT ALLOW IT TO EXIST IN NAPANEE.

"There will be no more catarrh in Napanee," says T. B. Wallace, "when people fail to follow the law of common sense."

T. B. Wallace makes this statement because of the great success that has followed the use of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles. So positive is this treatment in curing all and yet pleasant cure that he sells it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

It follows nature's plan in curing diseases of the throat and lungs by bringing healing medication right to the very spot where the disease germs exist. With this treatment, health-giving oils and balsams are breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that every breath you take while using Hyomei is a breath of healing air. It kills all catarrhal germs and prevents their growth, so that the cure is thorough and permanent.

Remember that Hyomei is sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures. If you have any catarrhal trouble, you should take advantage of T. B. Wallace's liberal offer.

"Rats leave the sinking ship," said he.

in a pious tone, and so disgusted Paul that he closed the door with a bang and went out. They was greeted with a chuck farthing at the door and keeping Mr. Green to Hay from coming in.

"You there, Beecot?" said that gentleman coolly. "I wish you would tell this brat to let me enter."

"Brat yourself, you!" cried Tray, pocketing his money. "Ain't I a-doin' what you bids me? He's engaged with two pretty women"—he leered in a way which made Paul long to box his ears—"so I don't quite spot. You've got tired of them, Mr. Beecot?"

MANOR HOTEL

E. McKENTY, Proprietor.

The Manor Hotel, situated directly opposite the C. P. R. Hotel, and very close to the C. P. R. Station, offers the very best accommodation to travellers at the most moderate rate of $1.00 per day. The entire house has recently been renovated and refurnished, and a new heating apparatus installed at great cost, and it is at all times the proprietor's aim to make his guests thoroughly comfortable, and he has all the best ways been eminently successful. The Manor is undoubtedly the best $1.00 per day hotel in the Canadian West. 15d

Owing to the little progress made in the negotiations between Britain and the United States over the Atlantic fisheries it is feared a renewal of the modus vivendi may become necessary.

Fierce Fight at Montreal.

ARMED WITH A SHOT GUN, JAMES SMITH FIRED FROM WINDOWS AT ALL WHO APPROACHED.

Montreal, April 7.—For five hours last night one desperate man, sheltered in a Mance street house, held scores of policemen and firemen in defiance, shot one officer through the heart, and wounded two others before he was captured, with three bullet wounds in his own body.

James Smith, otherwise known as "Count" Smith, who was the cause of the trouble, lived at 34 Mance st., a rooming house kept by Mrs. Pritchard. He had got behind in his payments, and yesterday became troublesome, and threatened Mrs. Pritchard with a shot gun. During the afternoon she went to police headquarters, and swore out a warrant against him.

Constables O'Shaughnessy and Fou ceault were sent to serve the warrant. On ringing the bell, Smith came to the door. "You had better not come in here," he said in a quiet tone. Walking into his room of the passage he came out with a shot gun, and, poking it through the wire slow, fired straight at Foucault's head. The charge, however, made only a glancing wound, knocking the constable backward into his comrade's arms. O'Shaughnessy helped his companion to a woodyard near by, and reported to headquarters by telephone.

Constables George Shea, Evariste Boisclair, Victor Ouimet and Ernest Demerais were sent from No. 5 Station. They found the door locked. When Smith came to open he fired at Shea without a moment's warning, and with fatal aim this time, for the constable fell back dead.

Soon scores of policemen and thousands of people surrounded the place, the crowd taking great risks of being shot in case Smith opened fire on the officers. A guard was put on that the man might in no way escape, and proceedings were stopped for a time to see if there were not some method of capturing Smith without losing more lives. Smith could be seen from time to time passing the windows with the gun over his arm, apparently undisturbed.

At nine o'clock Chief of Detectives Carpenter decided that something had to be done, and arranged a combined attack of firemen and police from front and rear of the house. Firemen under the window of Smith's room had the nozzles of the hose turned in an acute angle, so that he might not shoot, and finally the signal to turn the water on was given. Just as Chief Carpenter whistled for the attack, a spurt of flame shot out from the door of the house, and he fell, shot through the hand and groin. For a moment he lay unaided in the danger zone, and then policemen rushed forward and assisted him to safety, and an ambulance took him to the General Hospital.

For half an hour the water bombardment was kept up, and then Smith appeared at a rear window, where Chief of Police Campeau was directing the attack. He fired, without hitting anyone, and the flash gave his location. In an instant everybody that had a gun fired at him, and he was undoubtedly hit then. After a time the attacking forces cautiously made their way into the house, and found the besieged lying wounded on his bed, quite calm and apparently sane. He had been hit three times, one just over the heart, the shot not having penetrated deeply, once in the elbow, and again on the point of the jaw.

The crowd, numbering now five thousand, had been impatient at the orders given the police to take Smith alive, and were now furious, and ready to kill the man. By telling them that he was already dead, the police succeeded in fighting a way to the ambulance with him, and he was also taken to the General.

Smith is a book agent, and was well known about the city, where he has lived for a number of years past. He was always most carefully dressed, and had the appearance of a military man. It is said that he served in the army in the Southern States. Some say he is a Parisian Frenchman. Of late his business has not been good, he had taken to drinking alone in his room, and his mind was presumably affected by the liquor.

Over six feet tall, with hair parted behind, and wearing a silk hat, frock coat and patent leather shoes, Smith was a conspicuous figure. He was about sixty years of age and unmarried. It is supposed that John Smith is merely an assumed name. Down-town business men with whom he had dealings, considered him odd in his ways, the general impression of that he was suddenly crazy. His dead was evidently that of a maniac, though he was found quiet and apparently sane on the bed where the police broke in after the fight.

Mrs. Pritchard had until recently considered him her "star boarder."

MOUNTAIN GROVE.

We are called to chronicle the death of two old and respected residents. On March 20th there passed peacefully into rest Edward Barr, having attained to a honorable age of four score and nine years. He was a member of the Methodist church for years and a consistent Christian, with always a helpful word to the needy. The funeral was one of the largest in years, showing the respect in which he was held. Mrs. Barr, Sharpe preached a very interesting sermon from the text, "Be ye of good cheer for I have overcome the world." It being in touch with his life. Six of his grandsons acted as pall bearers, while the congregation from Arden and Mountain Grove paid their last respects. Besides a widow he leaves four sons and three daughters to mourn the loss of a kind husband and parent.—On April 1st, Mrs. Crozier died after a few days' illness, he being another landmark and one of Olden's most respected citizens. His funeral service was also conducted by the Rev. Mr. Sharpe, the church being filled. He was also a member of the Orange Order, under which order he was buried. He leaves a family of three daughters—Mrs. Booth, Mrs. Willie—J. Uers was called to wedlock to Flossie Fox, at the home of Mr. Halfpenny, Sharbot Lake.—Mr. James Irwin, Campbellford, and H. J. A CAREFULLY PREPARED PILL.—Much attention was paid to Dr. Ward's in the experimenting with the ingredients that enter into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, and they were brought to the state in which they are now offered to the public only after years of study. The fame of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of their proper study, and the praise spoken from dyspepsia or disordered liver and kidneys may justly accept them as being what they are represented to be.

Merchant—See here, I'm told you've been slandering me behind my back.

Customer—I guess not. What did I say?

Merchant—That the pepper I sold you was half peas.

Customer—Well, spell it, and see.

A SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE. — Everyone wishes to be successful in any undertaking in which he may engage. It is therefore extremely gratifying to the proprietors of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills to know that their efforts have met with a success which would prove a blessing to mankind were they more widely known and their expectations fulfilled. The endorsation of these Pills by the public is a guarantee that a pill has been produced which will fulfil everything claimed for it.

Old Lady (who has given the tramp a nickel)—Now what'll you do with it? Tramp (meekly)—Buy a drink, mum, if I buy an auto, there ain't enough left to hire a garage, and I'll have to get a schooner. I kin handle that myself.

"Why don't you send him, "How is it with you and Mrs. C.?"

A MEDICINE WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.—Only the well-to-do can afford to possess Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which is a medicine chest in itself because it is a cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, colds, coughs, catarrh, asthma and a score of other ills, internal and external, burns, sprains, etc., is within the reach of the poorest home in the dominion. It should be in every house.

Those should always have at hand a bottle of Kidd's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the present day sovereign remedy for coughs and colds and inflammation of the lungs. Burglars Stood Off Villagers

Daring Attempt to Steal $3,000 Failed Because Inner Door of Vault Withstood Explosions —Several Shots Fired by Robbers Who Were Placed on Guard.

PLUCKY BANK CLERK ATTACKED THE ROBBERS WITH STONES AND BRICKS.

St. Catharines, Ont. April 7.—One of the most sensational bank robberies in the history of the country occurred early this morning in the little village of St. David's, 9 miles from here, when four men made a most determined effort to get at the money in the vaults of the Imperial Bank. The noise of blowing open the vault awoke the town and the robbers held off the populace with revolvers while they worked at the vault.

From what can be gained here at this hour, it appears that a number of strange men arrived in St. David's last evening, apparently intending to spend the night there. They were seen walking the streets until midnight. Around that time they went to Doyle's residence and stole a couple of horses, which they hitched to two buggies and then they drove over to the blacksmith shop. Here they procured tools with which they pried open the front door of the Imperial Bank, seemingly not caring whether they were seen or not. On gaining access to the place two of the robbers remained on guard with revolvers, while the other two blew open the vault.

The first explosion blew off the big iron door. The noise of the explosion was heard by Charles Hamilton, one of the bank clerks, who lives at Doyle's, and he ran up the street to see what was happening. Unfortunately he had left his revolver in the bank, but with a pluck seldom displayed, the young man, when he saw the state of affairs, made his way to the rear of the bank building, where, under cover of the trees, he opened fire at the robbers on guard with stones and bricks. The robbers returned the fire with their guns and sent shot after shot at the dauntless bank clerk, who, as he shied his missiles, yelled lustily for help.

Presently the residents began to emerge from their homes, awakened by the firing, a good many of them convinced that it was another Fenian Raid. But the fact that they were discovered did not bother the robbers. They had come for the money and intended to get it, even if they had to stand the whole town off.

The appearance of the robbers in the doorway of the bank was sufficient to make the boldest among the villagers wary and they kept pretty well under cover. Meantime the two robbers inside the bank worked feverishly at the vault, which contained about three thousand dollars. It was ascertained afterwards that the inside steel door stubbornly withstood the attack of the explosives used.

The robbers hit another fuse while about half the village was held off by the two determined parties, and tried to get the little door opened. About this time a young man of Homer, named Gerling, drove into town and was amazed at the Wild West appearance of things around the bank. One of the robbers on guard walked up to the buggy, and, using his revolver threateningly, ordered Gerling to get out of town as fast as he could drive.

"I didn't wait for any money," said Gerling this morning, "I just simply went."

The increasing numbers of the populace finally frightened the robbers, and when the second explosion failed to break open the door they decided to quit. With drawn revolvers the robbers came out of the bank and jumped in the waiting buggies. While one drove the others covered the villagers with their guns and the horses were put to a gallop. The robbers disappeared in the direction of Niagara Falls. The wires were soon put in operation and the police were notified in every direction.

Chief Parnell, of Toronto, had a talk over the telephone with St. David's very shortly after the robbery and immediately put his men on watch.

Examination of the vault in the bank afterwards revealed the fact that the second explosion had so loosened the inner door that it could hardly be pulled out without the aid of a tool.

The robbers are believed to be Buffalo crooks who had planned the whole thing.

TO PURIFY A ROOM.

Get a pitcher of water, and in the Room for it to stand for twenty-four hours it will have absorbed all the impurities and foul odors in the air, which will have become quite pure, but the water will slightly stink. To clear the water in the pitcher, repeat the process. At ordinary temperatures a pail of water will absorb a pail of carbonic gas and several pints of ammonia gas, especially if warm. Also by reducing the water to the temperature of ice, and kept in a room for a while is unfit for use, least of all for drinking purposes. Always keep it away from fireplaces and gaseous heating. If water is carried to sleeping apartments to use for drinking through the night it should be kept closely covered in glass or earthen jars. Be careful of the chlorin in this respect, as such water is far more injurious than impure air.

ONTARIO ARCHIVES TORONTO

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

We publish herewith the second of a series of old letters. These were written by an "old resident" and published in The Beaver in 1874 and 1876. There are seven letters in the series, and the source from which we secure them is one of scrap books belonging to the Historical Society.

LETTER II.

And it came to pass in those days, that for many years Napanee was a waste, lonely wilderness, and the land thereof was covered with thorns, briars and thistles, and as there was an entailment upon the land, therefore it could not be sold. And Solomon, who was a wise and just man, said unto his brethren, behold the land of our fathers which we have inherited, is a goodly land, and should flow with milk and honey and corn, and the flesh of wheat. Let us go up and possess the land, and build a city, and sell the same and get gain. And his brethren all with one accord, having heard the words of Solomon, said, it shall be done. And it came to pass that Solomon took ship and sailed to the east and went over to the other side of the Sea, to the land of his forefathers, where good Queen Victoria now reigneth, and he prayed the King, and the Commons, and the Lords of the land, to pass a law to set aside the entailment upon the land of his inheritance, that the King and the Commons and the Lords heard the words of Solomon, and they answered, let it be done; and it was done, and the law was passed by the Lords and the Commons and signed by the King. And Solomon returned to the land of his brethren and told them all what had been done, and Solomon was afterwards a ruler and a judge over the people, and was in favor with the people.

Accordingly, in the year 1852, the first survey of Napanee was plot proper was made by Samuel M. Benson, P. L. S., of Belleville. This plot extended from East Street to West Street and from the River to Addington Street, containing about one quarter of a mile square. Several other surveys were made some, so that the Town now is nearly two miles square. Those town lots were immediately put into the market and sold off rapidly at reasonable rates, averaging from $100 to $200, and are now worth from two to three thousand dollars each, beside buildings. Those on Dundas, Bridge, Main and Streets were taken up first, and building operations soon commenced. Among the first to build was Mr. D. D. Pringle, who put up the Hotel now owned and occupied by Mr. J. Culhane. Mr. Pringle shortly afterward sold it to Mr. Miles Shorey, and erected another public house on the opposite side of the street, now called the Tichborne House. These two hotels were kept for many years by Pringle and Shorey, and were the principle public houses in Napanee.

Mr. John V. Detlor, about this period, built on the corner opposite the Tichborne House, and opened a general country store. He continued in business in Napanee for many years, but some time ago removed to Goderich, where he has acquired wealth and honorable position. About this time also, Asher Wilson, Esq., and M. M. Dickinson, erected the building on the corner of Dundas and Clarke Streets, Napanee, and occupied by Thos. Walker.

Here Mr. Benson opened, and for many years kept a general store, carrying on an extensive trade. His head clerk for some time was the late Alexander Cooper who afterward purchased large quantities of grain, and subsequently was elected M.P.P. for the county. Mr. Cooper was a pushing man. Several other buildings were erected about this time, but most of them have either been destroyed by fire, or removed and replaced by larger more substantial. Stores were also opened in Clarkeville, on the east side of the river, by Mr. McNeil and Mr. Hamby, which have long since been closed, but the buildings are still standing as memorials of the past.

About 40 years ago Mr. David Robin put up a building opposite where Grange's Bring Store now stands, and opened a store and had a fair trade. He after this became a very prominent man in our county, being several times elected Reeve of Richmond and Warden of the united counties, and for many years had a seat in Parliament. He was a very energetic man, a warm friend, and an obliging neighbor.

A few years later, Mr. Alex. Campbell put up the building now owned by Mr. Wm. McMullen, opposite the Campbell House, and opened a store, he also built the Campbell House, and for many years held the position of Postmaster.

And now we are entering on the first year of the reign of Victoria, Queen of the land of our father and of the isles of the sea, and many lands and provinces, and who rules with wisdom, and was just and discreet in all her ways, and one Lion, whose sir name was McKenzie, who was evil disposed and stirred up the people to commit acts of rebellion and to fight against the Queen and her people, and behold a man named James, of the clan of Fraser, and he was a man of the highest stature in the town, and of great energy, and one Archibald whose sir name was Campbell, were appointed captains of a host, and they raised companies of men of valour and who were not afraid of these rebellious people, and who were loyal to the Queen, and they marched and they went forth to put those rebellious and evil-disposed men and to defend the land of their fathers and their children. And so it came to pass, that the wickedness of the wicked soon came to an end, and many of those were met with the sword, and many more were put in prison, and others were hanged, and peace and harmony was restored to the land, and the captains and the soldiers all returned in safety to their families and friends, and the fair men and maidens and all the people rejoiced when their power was gone, and joy and rejoicing, and peace and prosperity, reigned in the land for many years.

About the year 1852, Napanee was made a Police village, and three Trustees were elected to look after the affairs of the place. It was, however, still under the jurisdiction of the Township of Richmond. But in 1855, Napanee was created an incorporated village, and elected five Councillors, one of whom was chosen Reeve, who acted as Police Magistrate for the village. The first election took place on the 2nd day of January, when Robert Evans was elected Reeve; Geo. H. Davy, Donald McPherson, Robert Evans and Abraham Fraser, Councillors; James F. Bartles being village Clerk. For years it remained favorably, however, the elections for Municipal honors were generally contested, and generally turned on politics between the Reformers and Reformers, sometimes one party being in power and then the other, protests and writs of Quowarranto were then quite common. For several years an agitation was carried on for a separation of Lennox and Addington from Frontenac, and through the indefatigable exertions of John Stevenson, Esq., the matter was consummated in 1864, and on the 1st day of January, 1865, Napanee was proclaimed a County Town by the Government, and at the ensuing town meeting, R. C. Davy, Esq., was elected Mayor; John Stevenson Reeve; Wm. McGilvary Deputy Reeve and Wm. Miller, John T. Strange, S. Mel. Detlor, M. T. Rogers, John Gibson, Thomas Herring, Henry W. Forward, Councillors; Wm. V. Detlor, Clerk; Wm. H. C. Davy was elected Mayor for three years in succession. In 1868, C. Dalton, Esq., was elected Mayor for four years; John Stevenson, Esq., Deputy Reeve; and S. Mel. Detlor, C. E., Miller, T. M. Rogers, R. Williams, Alex. Henry, Jas. Perry, M. P., and Thos. Parks, Councillors.

In 1871, A. L. Morden, Esq., was elected Mayor and has been re-elected for the third time. The Councillors are S. Mel. Detlor, Reeve; Jas. Perry, M. P., Deputy and Messrs. Joy, C. James, F. Pruyn, Hall, Dr. H. L. Cook and John Ham, Councillors for the present year and W. R. Dickinson, Secretary.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

On Thursday evening, 2d inst, a company of over fifty people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Caverly, Napanee, to tender them a farewell, and to present the latter with a gift, and address in appreciation of her work in connection with the W. S. Auxiliary, as well as the services she has rendered in other lines of church work. Mrs. J. J. Fralick made the presentation, and in the absence of Mrs. (Rev.) Horton, Mrs. Geo. I. Perry read the following address:—

To Mrs. George Shepherd,—

Having learned with regret that you purpose leaving our community and taking up your abode elsewhere, we, the members of the W. M. S., of Morven and Centre, desire to express our regard and appreciation of the services you have rendered the Auxiliary since you have served as a delegate, also, as you have filled the position of treasurer for some time past, by your co-workers. In this connection, wish to express how we value your influence in the cause that maintains and upholds the spreading of the Gospel; and we believe that you have tried to impress the highest principles of this organization upon all those with whom you come in contact. Your cheerful disposition and hopeful spirit to always look on the bright side of things—saying the "silver lining to every cloud,"—has frequently been a source of inspiration to some of the less sanguine members of our Auxiliary.

In the church, we will miss you, though remembering our loss, we will gain to those among whom you will reside; and we hope you and your estimable will find true, kind friends wherever you may choose to go.

We now desire you to accept, as a slight mark of our regard, this fruit dish, together with the good wishes and prayers of the Auxiliary.

Signed on behalf of the Morven Circuit W. M. S.,

MRS. (REV.) G. HORTON.

RECIPE MIXED OFTEN.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking : Mix by shaking well in a bottle three ounces Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one druggist to a leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys, cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short time. A New York druggist who has had thousands of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it swear by it. Especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble should give this recipe a trial.

The druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

AN ANGEL HUSBAND.

There is in Brooklyn a young recently married couple who have been having the usual half-pathetic and half-humorous experiences of trying to somewhat limited means and total inexperience. Recently there was a hitch in the delivery of the meat-eting and Sunday found them with practically empty larder. When dinner-time came the young wife went into tears. "Oh, this is horrible!" she wept. "Not a thing in the house fit for a dog to eat. I'm going home to mamma, I will."

"If you don't mind, dear," the husband exclaimed, as he visibly brightened, and reached for his hat, "I'll go with you."

I USED TO KILL BIRDS.

(Our Dumb Animals.)

I used to kill birds in my boyhood,
Bluebirds and robins and wrens,
I hunted them up in the mountains,
I hunted them down in the glens.
For sport, I was sinful,—
I did it only for fun,
All I had rare sport in the forest
With the poor little birds and my gun.

But one beautiful day in the springtime
I spied a brown bird in a tree,
Merrily swinging and chirping
As happy as bird could be ;
And, drawing my gun to my shoulder,
I fired, and my aim was true ;
For a moment the little thing fluttered,
Then off to heaven it flew.

I followed it quickly and softly,
And there to my sorrow I found,
Right close to its nest full of young ones,
The little bird dead on the ground ?
Poor babies ! my mother was calling,
But now they could never be fed ;
For the kind mother-bird who had loved them
Was lying there bleeding and dead.

I picked up the bird in my anguish,
I stroked the wee motherly thing,
That could nevermore feed its dear young ones,
Nor dart through the air on swift wing.

I took a little vow in that moment
When my heart with much sorrow was filled,
That never again in my lifetime
Would I shoot a poor innocent bird !

Magistrate Praises Zam-Buk.

Magistrate Rasmussen, of 203 Marguette St., Montreal, writes : "For many years I was troubled with a serious eruption of the skin. This was not only painful, but at times very painful. I first tried various household remedies, but these proved altogether useless. I then consulted a doctor. No one, but several doctors in turn were consulted, but I was unable to get any permanent relief. Some time back I was induced from a justice of the Peace (Magistrate Perry, J.P. for B.C.) who had been cured of a chronic skin disease by Zam-Buk, and I determined to give this balm a trial. After a thoroughly fair test, I can say I am delighted with it. I have the best of reasons for this statement ; because while everything else I tried—salves, embrocations, soaps and doctors' preparations, failed absolutely to relieve my pain and rid me of my trouble, three boxes of Zam-Buk worked a complete cure. I am glad to say this balm should be even more widely known than it is, I hope that my experience will lead other sufferers who are in need to try this herbal healer. Zam-Buk."

For healing sores, running sores, cuts bruises, burns, boils, eruptions, scalp sores, pimples, spring eruptions, chapped hands, and diseases of the skin Zam-Buk is without equal. All druggists and stores sell it. 50c. box or postpaid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

SENSIBLE HOBBY.

WELL KNOWN PEOPLE DEVOTE SPARE TIME TO UPBUILDING HEALTH.

There is no common-sense hobby for any person, unless tainted with it, as insatiable advance in medical discoveries and the growing popularity of physical culture.

In the diseases of digestion and nutrition, for example, as acknowledged medical treatment has been found to do little. It is relied upon as a certainty to banish the weird troubles of disordered digestion and assimilation, and making a complete cure.

People suffering with headache, indigestion, sleeplessness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, dizziness, after eating, specks before the eyes, irregularities, and general debility, and are cured by many distressing results of a weakened stomach, should profit by the discovery of Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

T. B. Wallace has sent out circulars by Mi-o-na of stomach and general ruin, which state at length the faith he has in believer in the power of this remedy to cure practically every case and he shows this faith by giving a guarantee with every 50-cent box of Mi-o-na to refund the money unless it does all that is claimed for it. He takes the whole risk, and Mi-o-na will not cost you a penny unless it cures.

"How do you know Mr. Beecot's name?" asked Hay calmly.

"Lor', sir, didn't you and me pal him from under the wheels?"

"Oh," said Grezon, suddenly enlightened, "were you the boy? Since you have washed your face I didn't recognise you. Well, Beecot, you look disturbed."

"I have reason to. And since you ask this boy pulled me from under the wheels of the motor," said Mr. Beecot, glancing from one to the other, "I should like to know what became of the driver."

"I'm sure I don't know," said Grezon quietly. "We talked of this before. I gave it as my opinion, if you remember, that it was picked up in the dark by the late Aaron Norman and a coward to seal his mouth. At least that is the only way in which I can conjecture you lost it."

"You never saw it drop from my pocket?"

"I should have picked it up and returned it had I seen it," said Hay, fixing his eyeglass. "Perhaps this boy saw it."

"Saw what?" asked Tray, who was listening with both his large ears.

"An old blue velvet case with a brooch inside," said Beecot quickly.

Tray shook his head vigorously. "If I'd seen it I ha' picked it," he said impudently. "Catch me givin' it back y' Mr. Beecot!"

"Why don't you ask the detectives to search for the brooch," said Hay, smiling.

"It is in the detective's possession," said Paul sullenly; "but we want to know how it came to pin Norman's tie together."

"I can't imagine, unless he picked it up. If lost at all it must have been lost in the street the old man lived in, and you told me he wasted the whole night."

"Not he wasn't on the spot!"

"Well," cried Tray suddenly, "the one eyed cove? Ho, yuss, but wasn't he! Wigs, yuss, they was a-gittin' the ambulance, an' the peelers was a-runnin' round, he come dancing like lightning out of his sharp."

Beecot thought this was strange, as he understood from Deborah and Bart and Sylvia that Norman had known nothing of the accident at the time. Then again Norman himself had not recollected it when he was in that visit to the hospital within a few hours of his death. "I don't think that's true," he said to Tray sharply.

"Oh, cuss it," said that young gentleman, "not d' I care. Th' ole cove come an' danced in front o' me, and then he gits int his shorp again. Trew is trew, sely wot y' like, mister—ho."

Beecot tossed the back on the bed. After all, he was not worth arguing with and a listless instinct. Still, in this case he might have spoken the truth. Norman might have appeared on the scene of the accident and have picked up the brooch. He thought he had found it, and, meantime, had cut his hand to Hay. In spite of the bad character he had been face to face with that young man, he saw no reason why he should not be civil to him, until he found him guilty. Meantime, he was on his guard.

"One moment," said Grezon, grasping the detective's arm, "I have something to say to you," and he walked a little way with Paul. "I am going in to see Pash on business," which means a little money to me. I was the unfortunate cause of your accident, Beecot, so I think you might accept £20 or so from me."

"No, thank you all the same," said Paul gratefully, yet with a certain amount of caution. "I can struggle along. After all, it was an accident."

"You are a hard hearted sort of chap," said Hay coldly, but rather annoyed at his friendly advances being flouted. "Well, then, if you won't accept a loan, let me help you in another way. I have a few rooms. I have a young publisher coming also, and if you meet him he will be able to do something for you. He's under obligations to me, and you can be certain I'll use all my influence in your favor. Come, now—next Tuesday—that's a week off. You can't have any engagement at such a long notice."

Paul smiled. "I never do have any engagements," he said, with his boyish smile, "thank you. I'll look in if I can."

"Then I count on you," said Hay. "This publisher will do a lot for you. By Jove, what a good looking girl!"

He said this under his breath. Miss Maud Krill appeared on the doorstep where the two young men stood and stumbled against Grezon in passing. His hat was off at once, and he apologized profusely. Miss Krill, who seemed a young woman of few words, as Paul thought from her silence in the office, smiled and bowed, but passed on, without saying a "thank you." Mrs. Krill followed, escorted by the treacherous Pash, who was all smiles and hand washings and bows. Apparently, he was quite convinced that the widow's story was true, and Paul felt sick at the news he would have to tell Sylvia. Pash saw the young man and, meeting his indignant eyes, deemed back into his office like a rabbit into its burrow. The widow sailed out in her calm, serene way, without a look at either Paul or his companion. Yet the young man had an instinct that she saw them both.

"That's the mother, I expect," said Hay, putting his glass firmly into his eye. "A handsome pair. Gad, Paul, that young woman—eh?"

"Perhaps you'd like to marry her," said Paul bitterly.

Hay drew himself up stiffly. "I don't marry stray young women I see on the street, however attractive," he said in his cold voice. "I don't know either of these ladies."

"Pash will introduce you if you make it worth his while."

"Why the deuce should I?" retorted Hay, staring.

"Well," said Beecot impulsively telling the whole of the misfortune that had befallen him, "that is the wife and child is the daughter of Aaron Norman, alias Krill. The daughter inherits five thousand a year, so marry her and be happy."

"But your Dulcinea?" asked Grezon, dropping his cynicism in amazement.

"She has my good opinion," said Paul, turning away. He could the quiet call of Hay, who had gone to look at the end of the street he lived in, and the new Grezon entering the office of the lawyer. If Hay was the man Hurd said he was, Paul thought he had a good laugh at the baboon and marry Sylvia after her misfortune was large and safe.

CHAPTER XII.

WHEN Paul reached his garret he found a letter from his father and opened it with some trepidation. It proved to contain joyful news. Mr. Beecot evidently knewn that Paul was not such a fool as he had been of yore and hinted that this sudden access of fortune which had led him to engage himself to a wealthy girl had come from his father and not from his mother. Mrs. Beecot, however, was aware that Paul had acted badly and had not remembered what was due to the best of fathers, but since he was prepared to settle down with a rich wife, Beecot senior nobly forgave the past and Paul's conduct generally mentioned in detail) and would be glad to welcome his daughter-in-law. Then Beecot, becoming the tyrant again, insisted that the marriage should take place at Wargrove and that the fact of Sylvia's father being convicted should be suppressed. In fact, the old gentleman left nothing to the young couple, but arranged everything himself in his own selfish way, even to choosing, in Wargrove, the house they would inhabit.

Paul, facing the situation, bitterly wrote to his father and explained how the fortune had passed from Sylvia, but declared with all the firmness of youth that he intended to marry the girl all the same. If Beecot senior, said Paul, would permit the marriage and allow the couple a small income until the husband could earn enough to keep the pot boiling, the writer would be grateful. If not, Paul declared firmly that he would rather die a slave to make a home for his darling than nothing in the world would make him give up Sylvia.

As Paul entered he heard a heavy woman plunge down the stairs and found his arm grasped by Deborah, very red faced and very furious. At the moment he crossed the threshold, Bart could be heard hatcheting boxes together in the cellar, as the faithful Deborah's belongings ready for removal to Jubilee-street, the cottage and the drying ground for the washing had already been secured through Pash. But Paul knew not that he was at what was going on. A glance at the handsome ex's tearful face revealed that she knew the reason, in which case Sylvia must also have heard the news.

"You," cried Deborah, seeing the sudden whiteness of Paul's cheeks and shaking him so much as to hurt his injured arm, "she knows, she do—oh, Lor', bless us but that's should come to this—and there she's setting a-crying out her beautiful eyes for you, Mr. Beecot. Thinking of you she's throwin' her over, and if you da," sheered Deborah, with another shake, "you'd better be his daughter to her face than face me in my presingt state. Seein' you from the winder I made bold to come down and speak your blessings, for if them do mean ne marriage and the breaking of my pretty's 'eart, never shall she set eyes upon you. I doubles faced Josiah, and—and"— Here Deborah grasped for breath and again shook Paul.

"Deborah," he said in a quiet voice, releasing himself, "I love Sylvia for herself and not for her money!"

Deborah threw her brawny arms in the air and her apron over her red head. "I knowed it!—oh, yuss, indeed," she sobbed in muffled tones.

"I see you know all," said Paul, as soon as he could slip in a word.

"Know all," almost yelled Deborah, dragging down the apron and revealing flashing eyes, "and it's a mussy I ain't in Old Bailey this very day for scratching that monkey of a Pash. Oh, if I'd known wot he was, never should he 'ave got me the laundry, though the same may have to go, weese luck. He, yuss, he come, and she opens the door to kitting, as is almost as big a cat as she is. Mrs. Krill, bless her, eh, yuss, Mrs. Krill, the sneaking, smiling Josiah!"

"Did she see Sylvia?" asked Beecot sharply.

"Yuss, she did," admitted Deborah, "me lettin' her in not knowin' her scratchin's. An' the monkey an' the kitting come too, a-sayin' oot the land as you may say."

Paul nodded. "Calling names won't do any good, Deborah," he said sadly. "We must do the best we can."

"There ain't no chance of the lawy fortune that woman to the gallers, I s'pose, sir?"

"The woman is your late master's awful wife. Pash seems to think so and has gone over to the police. Now Deborah clinched her mighty fists and moaned.

Beecot was soon in the sitting room and found Sylvia on the sofa, her face buried in her hands. She looked up when she recognized the familiar foot steps and sprang to her feet. The next moment she was sobbing her heart out on Paul's faithful breast, and he was comforting her with all the endearing names he could think of.

"My own, my own," he kept saying, lay," whispered Paul, smoothing the pale, tear stained face, "don't weep. You have lost much, but you have me."

"But Paul, though my mother may not have been married to my father"—

"She was, Sylvia, and Mrs. Krill was married to him earlier. Your father committed bigamy, and you, poor child, have to pay the penalty."

"And am I still his daughter?" she asked, her lips quivering.

"Yes, you are my own darling, Sylvia," murmured Paul, kissing her hair. "Don't let us talk of the matter. I fear from the attitude of Pash and Mrs. Krill will make good her claim. Were there a chance of keeping you in possession of the money, Paul would never have left you so easily."

"I am so sorry about the money on your account, Paul."

"My own," he said cheerily, "money is a good thing, and I wish we could have kept the five thousand a year. But I have you, and you have me, and although we cannot marry for a long time yet"—

"Not marry, Paul! Oh, why not?" Then, with a flash of intuition, she went down to memory.

Sylvia looked at his white eyes, then at the room, and then around the room. "Nothing here is mine, except—except—a few clothes," Mr. Paul said that Mrs. Krill would take everything. Let me marry you, darling, she whispered coaxingly, "and we can live in your garret. I can cook and mend and be your own little wife."

The next moment she was sobbing her heart out on Paul's faithful breast.

Beecot groaned. "Don't tempt me, Sylvia," he said, putting her away. "I dare not marry you. Why, I have hardly enough to pay the fees. No, dear, you must go with Debby to her laundry, and I'll work night and day to make enough for us to live on. Then we'll marry."

"To think that you should still wish to marry me. I am penniless!—I have—no name, and"—sobbed Sylvia.

"Dearest, you will soon have my name."

"But Mrs. Krill said"—

"I don't want to hear what she said," cried Paul impatiently. "She is a bad woman. I can see badness written all over her smiling face. We won't think of her. When you leave here you won't see her again. My own dear little sweetheart," whispered Paul tenderly, "when you have this unhappy house let the bad past go. You and I will begin a new life. Come, don't cry, my pet. Here's Debby."

Sylvia looked up and threw herself into the faithful servant's arms. "Debby—I'm—I'm—not rich."

Deborah placed her young mistress in Paul's arms. "There, let 'im make you happy, pretty lily of the valley, Lor', as if anything bad 'ud ever come to you two while silly old Debby have a leg to stan' on an arms to wash. Though the laundry—oh, Lor'!" and she sobbed her head till it grew scarlet.

"What of it, Mr. Beecot, I ask?"

"Have you enough money to pay a year's rent?"

"Yes, me and Bart have saved one 'undred between us. Rent and furniture and taxes can come out of it, sure. And my washin's what call washin'," said Deborah emphatically. "No lost lettings and lord shaved and raggid collars. I'd wash ag'in the queen 'erself, though I see it as shouldn't. Give me a tub, and you'll see if the money don't come in."

"Well, then, Deborah, as I am too poor to marry Sylvia now, I want her to stop with you till I can make a home for her."

"An' where else should she stop but with her own silly, foolish Debby, I'd like to know? My flower, you come an' be the queen of the laundry."

"I'll keep the accounts, Debby," said Sylvia, now all smiling.

"You'll keep nothin' but your color an' your dear 'eart up," retorted Deborah, sniffing. "Me an' Bart 'ull do all. An' this blessed day we'll go to Jubilee-town with our belongings. An' you, Mr. Beecot?"

"An' where else should she stop but with her own silly, foolish Debby, I'd like to know? My flower, you come an' be the queen of the laundry."

"I'll come and see you settled, Deborah, and then I return to earn an income for Sylvia. I won't let you keep her long."

"She'll stop as long as she have the will!" shouted Debby, hugging Sylvia. "An to that Krill cat"—

"She can take possession as soon as she likes. And, Deborah," added Paul significantly, "for all that has happened, I don't intend to drop the search for your late master's murderer."

"It's the Krill cat as done it," said Debby. "Though I ain't got no reason for s-saying' of such a thing."

CHAPTER XIII.

AS Paul expected, the next letter from his father contained a revocation of all that had pleased him in the former one. Beecot senior wrote many pages of abuse. He always did babble like a speckled goose when annoyed. He declined to sanction the marriage and ordered his son at once—underlined—to give up all thought of making Sylvia Norman his wife.

Sylvia, under the charge of Deborah and escorted by Bart Tawney, had duly left Gwynne street, bag and baggage, and she was now established in Rose cottage, Jubilee-town. The house was a small one and there was not a single rose in the garden around it. She was assigned the best room in the small abode, and one of the first things she did was to write a letter to Paul telling him that she meant to Rose cottage to witness the marriage of Deborah and Bart. The handmaiden thought that Sylvia would be safer there, and could make full use of her intended husband.

"If he wasn't here always," said the best of Sylvia's letters, "and I'm always missing. I know him. An' me getting a bonny together won't be easy unless I'm there to help him. An' I've got him a big box, to take round the bills, let alone that he ought to sleep in the 'cuss in a proper bed."

Deborah, as an American would say, was a hustler, and, having made up her mind to do a thing, she did it and got it under her feet. For three Sundays she had the pleasure of shocking the neighborhood by hanging out her clothes on the line. Lord Gwynne himself, who had called to see Lord ——'s tenant, was horrified at the sight, and Murphy trying to get Deborah to take down the clothes at once. But Deborah was not to be moved so he left. "I'm for"

"Do you speak for Bart?" asked Paul.

"Bart's a fool. But I pays a third part and my little bit on every week. But what I come here to say is that I thought to find out the antecedents of Aaron Norman."

"Have you a reward, Hurd," said Paul, with a sigh.

"Oh, that's all right! The widow, by bad advice of Pash, doubled the reward. One thousand pounds it is now—worth winding, eh?"

"Humph!" said Paul moodily. "I shouldn't think she has much husband so much as that."

Hurd's brown eyes shot a red flame which showed that he was excited, though he was cool enough externally. "Ah, but she's a random manager, "she certainly does act the loving widow is rather an exaggerated fashion. Pash don't get the cash now, or at least her daughter has, which is the same thing. The two Krills are thick as thieves in a fashionable hotel in the west end and are looking for a house. The old woman manages the money and she will be one too many for Mr. Hay."

"What? Who may he know Mrs. Krill? He said he didn't."

"Quite right. He didn't when the is dined first to Pash's office. But Hay, on the lookout for a rich wife, got Pash to introduce him to the lidies, and struck acquaintance with him. He's making up to the daughter and in the few weeks that have elapsed and now is admitting them to find a house. The daughter loves him, I fancy, but whether the mother will allow the marriage to take place I can't say."

"Surely not on such a short acquaintance."

Hurd bent forward as about to say something, then changed his mind. "Really, I don't know—Hay is fascinating and handsome. Have you been to see him yet?"

"No," he asked me, but all these troubles have put him out of my head. Why do you ask?"

"Because next time he invites you, go."

"You warned me against him."

"And I warn you again," said the detective dryly. "Don't ask me to explain, for I can't. But you go to see him when he invites you and make yourself agreeable, especially to Mrs. Krill."

"Am I likely to meet her?" asked Paul, with repugnance.

"Yes, I fancy so. After all, you are engaged to the daughter of the dead man, and Mrs. Krill—I don't count Maud, who is a tool—is a decidedly clever woman. She will keep her eye on you and Miss Norman."

"Why? She has the money and need take no further interest."

Hurd closed one eye in a suggestive manner. "Mrs. Krill may not be as sure of the money as appearances suppose. To lose a lovely wife and a fine fortune at once. Eh, what a pity!"

"I have lost the fortune certainly," said Beecot, lighting his lamp, "but the wife will be mine as soon as I can save sufficient to give her a better home than this."

M. le Comte de la Tour sat down and gracefully flung open his waistcoat so as to expose a spotless shirt front. "What," he asked, lifting his darkened eyebrows, "you mean to marry that girl?"

"Of course," said Paul angrily. "Do you think I'm a brute?"

"But the money?"

"What does that matter? I love her, not the money."

"And the name. Her birth"—

"I'll give her my own name, and then we'll see if we will dare say a word against my wife."

Hurd stretched out his hand and, grasping that of Beecot, shook it warmly. "Upon my word you are a man, and that's almost better than being a gentleman," he said heartily. "I've heard everything from Mr. Pash, and I honor you, Mr. Beecot; I honor you."

Paul stared. "You must have been brought up in a queer way, Hurd," he said dryly, "to express this surprise because a man acts as a man and not as a blackguard."

"Ah, but you see in my profession I have mixed with blackguards, and that has lowered my moral tone. It's refreshing to meet a straight, honorable man such as you are, Mr. Beecot. I liked you when first I set eyes on you and determined to help you to discover the assassin of Aaron Norman."

"Lemuel Krill you mean."

Hurd looked round the bleak garret expressively and shrugged his shoulders. "You can't bring Miss Norman here."

"No. But I may make enough money to give her a better home."

"Can I help you?"

"I don't see how you can. I want to be an author."

"Well," said Hurd, whose British speech was a strange contrast to his foreign appearance, "it's not a bad game to be an author if you get a good serial accepted. I don't look surprised. I know about newspapers and publishers as I know about most things. See here, Mr. Beecot, have you ever tried your hand at a detective story?"

"No. I write on a higher level."

"You won't write on a higher level," replied Hurd coolly. "If you get a newspaper which will give you—if I remember rightly—£600 for a good detective yarn. You apply for it."

"But I couldn't make up one of those police-court business."

"Pooh! It's a trick. You set your puppets in such and such a way and start into them as I'll put them, to the benefit of my experience as a 'tec, and I'll lay my pipe and your own writing we'll be able to find out who threw the pepper I talk of. Then, with £100 you'll have a neat egg to start with."

"I accept with pleasure," said Beecot, moved, "but I really don't know why you should trouble about me."

"Because I believe a little secret an honorable gentleman," said the detective, smiling cynically. "I'll see about the story for you. Meantime, I'll speak to a great party to meet luckinessly Miss Norman."

"Ah! You still suspect him?"

"I do, and with good reason. He's got another girl under his feet. Lord Gwynne himself, who is a friend of Lord ——'s, told me that Hay is engaged to the daughter of the dead man, and Mrs. Krill—I don't count Maud, who is a tool—is a decidedly clever woman. "I do, and with good reason. He's got another girl under his feet. For three Sundays

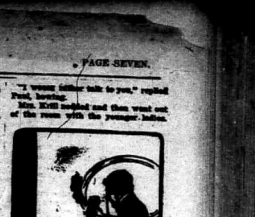
"I wonder what's left to pay?" replied Paul, bowing.

Mrs. Krill nodded and then went out of the office with the younger lodger.



"I want you to drink to the health of my future bride," he said.

The three gentlemen filled their glasses and Paul, who had Hay passed around a box of cigars. Soon they were smoking and chatting in a most amicable fashion. Lord George talked a great deal about racing and cards and his bad luck with both. Hay said very little and every now and then cast a glance at Paul to see how he was taking the conversation. At length, when Sandal became a little rehearsed on the subject of his losses, Hay abruptly changed the subject by calling his glass and those of his companions. "I want you to drink to the health of my future bride," he said.

"Hear, hear!" cried Paul, staring. "Miss Krill?"

"The same," responded Hay coldly. "You see I have taken your advice and intend to settle. Pash presented me to the ladies when next they came to his office, and since then I have been almost constantly with them. Miss Krill's affections were discengaged, and therefore, with her mother's consent, became my property. Is it not so, Lord George?"

"Yes, sir," said Lord George, draining his glass and filling another, "and, by Jove, for your sake, I hope she's got money."

"Oh, yes, she's well off," said Hay calmly. "And you, Paul?"

"I congratulate you, of course," stammered Beecot, dazed. "Isn't it so sudden. You haven't known her above a month."

"Two weeks or so," said Hay, smiling, and, sinking his voice lower, he added: "I can't afford to let grass grow under my feet. The widow mourned might snap her up, and Mrs. Krill would only be too glad to secure a title for the sake of knowing what she could be wished to be amiable, but it was difficult when he reflected that this young man, smiling woman and refined Sylvia of a fortune and bad spoken of her in a contemptuous way. But Beecot, swallowing down his grief, held his little candle to the devil without revealing his repugnance too openly. And apparently Mrs. Krill believed that his composure was genuine enough, for she was quite at her ease in his presence.

The daughter was dressed like the mother, save that she wore jewels in place of diamonds. She had not half the beauty of the older woman. Hay also introduced Paul to a handsome young fellow of twenty-one, with rather a feeble face. This was Lord George Sandal, the pigeon Hay was plucking, and, although he had charming manners and an enumeration of worldly wisdom, he was evidently one of those who had come into the world spoiled and bridled for other folk's riding.

A third lady was also present, who called herself Agnes Glen, and Hay informed his friend in a whisper that she was an actress. Paul then remembered that he had seen her name in the papers as famous in light comedy. She was pretty and kittenish, with fluffy hair and an eternal smile. It was impossible to imagine a greater contrast to the massive firmness of Mrs. Krill than the lively, girlish demeanor of the little woman, yet Paul had an instinct that Miss Glen, in spite of her profession and odd name and childish giggle, was a more shrewd person than she looked. Every one was very merry and chatty, all save Maud Krill, who smiled and fanned herself in a statuesque way. Hay paid her great attention, and Paul knew very well that he intended to marry the girl women for her money. It would be hardly fair to be thought, with such a firm looking mother-in-law as Mrs. Krill would certainly prove to be.

The dinner was delightful, well cooked, daintily served and perfectly served. A red shaded lamp threw a rosy light on the white cloth, the glittering cutlery and bright china, and the number of dishes was less than the wines and were then the Graces, and every one laid themselves out vigorously to make things bright. And again Maud Krill may be mentioned as an exception. She sat silent and stately, a corpse, merely smiling heavily when addressed. Paul, glancing at her severe face, could not help but think that wondered if she really was as calm as she looked and if she really lacked the power to be another moment to the front.

The dinner passed off pleasantly. Lord George began to talk of racing, and Hay responded. Mrs. Krill alone looked shocked. She didn't believe in gambling, she said icily.

"I hope you are not very down on me," said Hay. "Lord George and I propose to play bridge with you both in the next room."

"Maud and Miss Glen," said the widow. "I'll talk to Mr. Beecot, unless he prefers the fascination of the green cloth."

ONTARIO ARCHIVES TORONTO

"Yes. He is our mentor in London society. I don't think," added Mrs. Krill, studying his face, "that you like Mr. Hay."

"As I am Mr. Hay's guest," said Paul dryly, "that is rather an unkind question to ask."

"I asked no question. I simply make a statement."

Beecot found the conversation rather embarrassing. In place of his pumping Mrs. Krill, she was trying to pump him, which reversal of his design he by no means approved of. He changed the subject of conversation by drawing a powerfully attractive red herring across the trail. "You wish to speak to me about Miss Norman," he remarked.

"I do," answered Mrs. Krill, who saw through his design, "but apparently that subject is as distasteful as a discussion about Mr. Hay."

"Both subjects are rather personal, I admit, Mrs. Krill. However, if you have anything to tell me which you would like Miss Norman to hear I am willing to listen."

"Ah! Now you are more reasonable," she answered in a pleased tone. "It is simply this, Mr. Beecot: I am very sorry for the girl. Through no fault of her own she is placed in a difficult position. I cannot give her a name, since her father sinned against her as he sinned in another way against me, but I can, through my daughter, who is guided by me, give her an income. It does not seem right that I should have all this money"—

"That your daughter should have all this money," interpolated Beecot.

"My daughter and I are one," replied Mrs. Krill calmly. "When I speak for myself I speak for her. But, as I say, it doesn't seem right we should be in affluence and Miss Norman in poverty. So I propose to allow her five hundred a year on conditions. Will she accept, do you think, Mr. Beecot?"

"I should think her acceptance would depend upon the conditions."

"They are very simple," said Mrs. Krill in her deep tones and looking very straight at Paul. "She is to marry you and go to America."

Beecot's face did not change, since her hard eyes were on it. But he was puzzled under his mask of indifference. Why did this woman want Sylvia to marry him and go into exile? He temported. "With regard to your wish that Miss Norman should marry me," said he quietly, "it is of course very good of you to interest yourself in the matter. I fail to understand your reason, however."

"Yet the reason is patent," rejoined Mrs. Krill, just as quietly and quite as watchful as before. "Sylvia Norman is a young girl without much character—"

"To that I disagree with you."

"Well, let us admit she has character, but she certainly has no experience. In the world she is exposed to much trouble and perhaps much temptation. Since her position is the fault of her father and she is entirely innocent I want her to have a happy life. For that reason I wish her to marry you."

Paul bowed, not believing a word of this philanthropic speech. "Again I say it is good of you," said he, with some irony, "but even if I got out of the way her nurse, Deborah Tawney, would look after her. As matters stand, however, she will undoubtedly become my wife as soon as we can afford a home."

"You can afford it tomorrow," said Mrs. Krill eagerly, "if you will accept my offer."

"A house in America!" said Paul. "And why?"

"I should think both of you would like to be away from a place where you have seen such a tragedy."

"Indeed." Paul committed himself to no opinion. "And supposing we accept your offer, which I admit is a generous one, you suggest we should go to the States."

"Or to Canada or Australia or, in fact, you can go anywhere so long as you leave England. I tell you, Mr. Beecot, even at the risk of hurting your feelings, that I want that girl away from London. My husband treated me very badly—he was a brute always—and I hate to have that girl before my eyes."

"Yet she is innocent."

"Have I not said that a dozen times?" rejoined Mrs. Krill impatiently. "What is the use of further discussion? Do you accept my offer?"

"I will convey it to Miss Norman. It is for her to decide."

"But you have the right since you are to be her husband."

"Pardon me, no. I would never take such a responsibility on me. I shall tell Miss Norman what you say and convey her answer to you."

"Thank you," said Mrs. Krill graciously. But she was annoyed that her golden bait had not been taken immediately, and in spite of her sanctity Paul could see that she was annoyed, the more so when she began to explain. "Of course you understand my feelings."

"I confess I don't quite. Naturally the fact that you are connected with the murder in the public eye"—

"Pardon me," said the woman swiftly, "but I am not. The name of Krill has hardly been noticed. The public know that Aaron Norman was murdered. No one talks of Lemuel Krill or thinks that I am the widow of the murdered man. Possibly I may come across some people who will connect the two names and look askance at me, but the majority of people—such as Lord George there"—she pointed with her fan—"do not think of me in the way you say. As he did, they will think they remember the name."

"Did Lord George say that to you?" said Paul swiftly.

"No. But he did to Mr. Hay, who told me," rejoined Mrs. Krill quite as swiftly.

"To-night?" asked Beecot, remembering that Hay had not spoken privately to Mrs. Krill since they came in from the dining room.

"Oh, no—on another occasion. Lord George has several times said that he has a faint recollection of my name. Possibly the connection between me and the murder may occur to his mind, but he is really so very stupid that I hope he will forget all about the matter."

"I wonder you don't change your name," said Paul, looking at her.

"Certainly not, unless public opinion forces me to change it." she said defiantly. "My life has always been above reproach and shovelboard, not like that of my husband."

"Why did he change his name?" asked Beecot eagerly—too eagerly, in fact, for she drew back.

"Why do you ask?" she inquired coldly.

Paul shrugged his shoulders. "An idle question, Mrs. Krill. I have no wish to force your confidence."

"There is no forcing in the matter," responded the woman. "I have taken quite a fancy to you, Mr. Beecot, and you shall know what I do."

"Pray do not tell me if you would rather not."

"But I would rather," said Mrs. Krill bluntly. "It will prevent your misconception of anything you may hear about us. My husband's real name was Lemuel Krill, and he married me thirty years ago. I will be frank with you and admit that neither of us were gentlefolks. We kept a public house on the outskirts of Christchurch, in Hants, called the Red Pig." She looked anxiously at him as she spoke.

"A strange name."

"Have you never heard of it before?"

"Yes. Had I heard the name it would have remained in my memory from its oddity."

Paul might have been mistaken, but Mrs. Krill certainly seemed relieved, yet if she had anything to conceal in connection with the Red Pig why should she have mentioned the name?

"It is not a first class hotel," she went on smoothly and again with her false smile. "We had only farm laborers and such like as customers, but the custom was good, and we did very well. Then my husband took to drink."

"In that respect he must have changed," said Paul quickly, "for all the time I knew him—six months it was—I never saw him the worse for drink, and I certainly never heard from those who would be likely to know that he indulged in alcohol to excess. All the same," added Paul, with an after thought of his conversation with Sylvia in the Embankment garden, "I fancied from his pale face and shaking hands and a tightness of the skin that he might drink."

"Exactly. He did. He drank brandy in large quantities, and, strange to say, he never got drunk."

"What do you mean exactly?" asked Beecot curiously.

"Well," said Mrs. Krill, biting the top of her fan and looking over it, "Lemuel would tell him by the old name—never grew red in the face, and, even after years of drinking, he never showed any signs of intemperance. Certainly his hands would shake at times, but I never noticed particularly the tightness of the skin you talk of."

"A certain shiny look," explained Paul.

"Quite so. I never noticed it. But he never got drunk so as to lose his head or his balance," went on Mrs. Krill, "but he became a demon."

"A demon?"

"Yes," said the woman emphatically, "as a rule he was a timid, nervous little man, like a frightened rabbit, and would not harm a fly. But drink as you knew, changes a nature to the contrary of what it actually is."

"I have heard that."

"You would have seen an example in Lemuel," she retorted. "When he drank heavily, he became a fiend or a sultan. From being timid he became bold; from not harming any one he was capable of murder. Often in his fits did he lay violent hands on me. But I managed to escape. When sober he would mean and apologize in a provokingly tearful manner, hated and despised him," she went on, with flashing eyes, but careful to keep her voice from reaching the gamblers. "I was a fool to marry him. My father was a farmer, and I had a good education. I was attracted by the good looks of Lemuel and ran away with him from my father's farm in Buckinghamshire."

"That's where Stowley is," murmured Paul.

"Stowley?" echoed Mrs. Krill, whose ears were very sharp. "Yes, I know that town. Why do you mention it?"

"The opal serpent brooch with which your husband's lips were fastened was pawned there."

"I remember," said Mrs. Krill calmly. "Mr. Pash told me. It has never been found out how the brooch came to fasten the lips—so horrible it was! She shuddered.

"No. Mr father bought the brooch from the Stowley pawnbroker and gave it to my mother, who sent it to me. When I had an accident I lost it, but who picked it up I can't say."

"Stowley?" echoed Mrs. Krill.

"Somebody said you picked it up," remarked Beecot, who did decidedly, "else it would not have been used in that cruel way, though, indeed, the brooch should have been used at all I can't understand. I suppose my husband found it and fell from why he wanted to buy the brooch?"

"Who told you that he did?" asked Paul quickly.

Mr. Pash. He told me all about the matter, but not the reason why my husband committed suicide."

"Pash doesn't know," said Beecot, "nor do I. Your husband, I fancied when first showed the brooch to me, that I don't know why. He said nothing."

Again Mrs. Krill's face, in spite of her self-control, showed relief at his ignorance. "But I must get back to my story," she said in a hard tone. "We have to leave soon. I ran away with Lemuel, who was then traveling with jewelry. He knew a good deal about jewelry, you know, which he turned to account in his pawnbroking."

"Yes, and amassed a fortune therefrom."

"I should never have credited him with so much sense," said Mrs. Krill contemptuously. "While at Christchurch he was nothing but a drunkard, whining when sober and a furious beast when drunk. I managed all the house and looked after my little daughter. Lemuel led me a dog's life, and we quarrelled incessantly. At length, when Maud was old enough to be my companion, Lemuel ran away. I kept on the Red Pig and waited for him to return. But he never came back, and for over twenty years I was boarding of him till I left the landbills and his portrait and heard of his death. Then I came to see Mr. Pash, and the rest you know."

"But why did he run away?" asked Paul.

"I suppose he grew weary of the life and the way I detested him," was her reply. "I don't know. After he went there I have told you all, so make what you can of it. Tell Miss Norman of my offer and make her see the wisdom of accepting it. And now"—she rose and held out her hand—"I must run away. You will call and see us? Mr. Hay will give you the address."

"What's that?" said Hay, leaving the card table. "Does Beecot want your address? Certainly." He went to a table and scribbled on a card. "There you are, Hunter street, Kensington, No. 32A. Do come, Beecot. I hope soon to call on your services to be my best man," and he cast a coldly loving look on Maud, who simply smiled as usual.

By this time the card party had broken up. Maud had lost a few pounds and Lord George a great deal. But Miss Qian and Hay had won.

"What luck," groaned the young lord. "Everything seems to go wrong with me."

"Stop, and we'll try another game when the ladies have gone," suggested Hay, his impassive face lighting up, "even Beecot"—

"I must go," said the young gentleman, who did not wish to be called upon as a witness in a possible card scandal.

"And I'll go, too," said Lord George, "whenever I play with you, Hay, I always seem to lose."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Grezon decently.

"Oh, he doesn't mean anything," said Miss Qian sweetly and pressing her cloak around her. "Mr. Beecot, just take me to my cab."

"I'll take you in your carriage," said Hay, offering an arm to Mrs. Krill, which she accepted graciously.

Lord George, grumbling, departed with the ever smiling Maud. Miss Qian skipped into a bosoon and offered Paul a cigarette, which he refused. As the cab was driving off, she bent down and whispered, "Be careful," with a nod at Hay.

Paul laughed. Every one seemed to doubt Hay. But that gentleman bandied Mrs. Krill and her daughter into their carriage and looked toward Lord George. "You don't want your reverge tonight?" he asked.

"No, confound you!" said the young man sullenly.

"In that case I'll drive into Kensington with Mrs. Krill and borrow her carriage for a trip to Piccadilly. Good night, Beecot. Good night, Grezon."

He waved his hand, and the ladies waved theirs, and then the three drove away. Lord George lighted a cigar and, putting his arm within that of Beecot, strolled down the road. "Come to my club," he said.

"No, thank you," answered Paul politely; "I must get home."

"But I wish you'd come. I hate being by myself, and you seem such a good sort of chap."

"Well," said Beecot, thinking he might say a word in season to this young fool, "I'll come with you."

"Oh, you cry down that, do you?"

"Well, I think it's foolish."

"It is," murmured Lord George frankly, "infernally foolish. And Hay has all the luck. I wonder if he plays squares."

This was dangerous ground, and Paul shied. "I really can't say," he said coldly. "I don't know him."

"But what do you know of Hay?" asked Sandal.

"Only that he was at school with me at Torrington. We met by accident the other day, and he asked me to dinner."

"Torrington? Yes, I had a brother at that school once," said Lord George, "but you and I, Beecot, don't get on well together, I should think. You're straight, and he's"—

"I've never known Lord George frankly, "infernally foolish. And Hay has all the luck. I wonder if he plays squares."

This was dangerous ground, and Paul shied. "I really can't say," he said coldly. "I don't know him."

"But what do you know of Hay?" asked Sandal.

"Only that he was at school with me at Torrington. We met by accident the other day, and he asked me to dinner."

"Torrington? Yes, I had a brother at that school once," said Lord George, "but you and I, Beecot, don't get on well together, I should think. You're straight, and he's"—

"I'm not," said Paul, who knew that Hay was a gambler. "I am as crooked as a corkscrew."

Sandal could not for the life of him tell whether this was a joke or not, so he laughed. "Well, I'm glad you're not straight, for I'm going to ask you to be my best man. I'm to be married next week to Miss Qian."

"Congratulations," said Paul, "and, maybe, I go down sometimes to the ball—my father's place. I don't suppose you'd know it. It's three miles from Christchurch."

"In Hants?" said Paul, feeling he was on the verge of a discovery.

"Yes. Have you been there?"

"No, but I have heard of the place. There's a hotel there called the Red Pig, which I thought"—

"Ha!" cried young Sandal, stopping again, and with such a shout that passers-by thought he was drunk. "I remember the name. The Red Pig! A woman called Krill kept that."

"He can hardly be the same," said Paul, not wishing to betray the lady.

"No; I guess not. She'd hardly have the cheek to sit down with me if she had. But Krill! Yes, I remember—my aunt, you know."

"Your aunt?"

"Yes," said Sandal impatiently; "she was murdered or committed suicide in that Red Pig place—Rachel Sandal, with her unlucky opals."

"Her unlucky opals! What do you mean?"

"Why, she had a serpent set with opals she wore as a brooch, and it brought her bad luck."

CHAPTER XVI.

IT was close upon midnight when Paul reached his garret. Sandal drove him in a hansom as far as Piccadilly circus, and from that place Beecot walked through Oxford street to Bloomsbury. He had not been able to extract further information of any importance from the young lord. It appeared that Lady Rachel Sandal, in love with an inferior, had quarrelled with her father and had walked to Christchurch one night, with the intention of joining the man she wished to marry in London. But the night was stormy, and Lady Rachel was a frail woman. She took refuge in the Red Pig, intending to go the next morning, but during the night she was found strangled in the bedroom she had hired. Sandal could give no details, as the events happened before he was born, and he had only heard scraps of the dreadful story.

"Some people say Lady Rachel was murdered," explained Sandal, "and others that she killed herself. But the opal brooch, which she wore, certainly disappeared. But there was such a scandal over the affair that my grandfather hushed it up. I can't say exactly what took place. But I know it happened at a small pub kept by a woman called Krill. Do you think this woman is the same?"

"It's hardly likely," said Paul mendaciously. "How could a woman who kept a small public house become suddenly rich?"

"True," answered Lord George as they stopped in the circus, "and she'd have let on she knew about my name if she had anything to do with the matter. All the same, I'll ask her."

"Do so," said Paul, stepping out of the cab. He was very much satisfied that Mrs. Krill was quite equal to deceiving Sandal. The wonder was that she had not let her peace to him about the Red Pig.

"You won't come on to my club? asked Sandal, leaning out of the cab.

"No, thank you," replied Paul. "Good night." And he walked away.

The fact is Beecot wished to put on paper all that he had heard that night and send it to Hurd. As soon as he reached his attic he set to work and wrote out a detailed account of the evening.

"You might find out if Lady Rachel committed suicide or whether she was strangled by some one else," ended Beecot. "Certainly the mention of the serpent brooch is curious. This may be the event to Norman's past life which led him to change his name."

Paul wrote much more and then after sent to post the letter. It was after midnight when he did, so there was not much chance of Hurd getting the letter until the morning or third post the next day. But Paul felt that he had done his duty and had supplied the information as speedily as possible, so he went to sleep with a quiet mind, in spite of the excitement of the evening. But next morning he was unable to sit down to his desk as usual and felt disinclined to go to the office. Finally he decided to walk to Piccadilly to see how Sylvia was getting along. Deborah sent him at the gate.

"Well, I never, Mr. Beecot!" said Mrs. Tawney, with her red arms akimbo in her usual attitude. "This is a sight for sore eyes. Won't my mistress be happy this day, my what you may! She's a-makin' out bills for them as 'ad wanted done, bless her 'art for a clever beauty."

"How is business?" asked Paul, entering the gate which Deborah held.

"Bless you, Mr. Beecot, I'll be a lady of forting soon," answered the prospective wife of the policeman. "My wedding 'ave come in in just season. One 'ad think folk never 'ad no fleas down Lambeth way the way they 'ave. Why, said Deborah, rubbing her nose hard, "in my way, which is a way. If you'll only send along Deborah Mills, Mrs. Mills, I'll be proud to show you what can be done with frontin, an' no thumb nails down them to spile the work soon."

Paul did not reply to the last laugh, all absently. His answers puzzled Deborah had ever heard her mistress drop any hint as to his having come from the place where Mrs. Krill resided and the question on the spur of the moment.

"Do you know Christchurch, in Hants?"

Deborah rubbed her knuckles into her eyes and at him doubtfully.

"Me as said as I'd no relatives must 'ave put the truth now, as I 'ave," said she testily.

"Well, then, why, for my sake, 229 Jermyn, worked for a time in Christchurch, in Hants?" asked Paul impatiently.

"Oh, that's good! But, I says about this Hay, what a goner 'ot he had fallen for Sylvia."

"Is Miss Norman at home?" asked Paul impatiently.

"No, you may 'ave me or not, as you please, Mr. Beecot," said Mrs. Tawney, "but deceive you I won't. Me an' Tilly, not bein' of 'appy mattiches', don't encourage them in others, which, as I 'ave said, Deborah, 'father 'evin' him a fewture, but why she went to the country or why I know not. Mrs. Krill 'ave come no one knows. And may I ask, Mr. Beecot, why you rank of that place?"

"Your late master came from Christchurch, Mrs. Tawney. Did you never hear him mention it?"

"That I never did, for close he was, Mr. Beecot, say what you like. I never knowed what he'd got married or left the old fellow he died. If I'd he'd knowed," added Mrs. Tawney, biting her finger, "as he'd bin married afore and intended to cast out my lovely Sylvia, I'd 'ave strangled him myself."

"He had no intention of casting out Sylvia," said Paul unwisely; "he certainly left her well provided for."

"Then why 'ave that other got it?"

"Sylvia's name wasn't mentioned, and Miss Krill was legally entitled as the legitimate daughter."

"Call her what you like, she's a cat, as her mistress 'ave the signs of age is believin'. Will I write to my sister Tilly, as I don't love, Mr. Beecot, and ask if she knowed master when he was in that there place, which she can't 'ave, seeing she's bin there but ten year, and he away twenty?"

"No, Deborah, you'd better say nothing. The case is in Hurd's hands. I'll tell him to write to you about the matter to him. But you must be decalred about Miss Krill's age."

"I'll 'ave it down to a hair's nose," retorted Mrs. Tawney, "so don't talk of deceivin's. Thirty and more she is, I'll be bound, let her Jezebel of a mar lie as she like, an' can say what you will, Mr. Beecot. But there's my pretty smilin' from the winder and the tub's a-waitin', so you go in and smooth my affections while I see that Mrs. Purr irons the shirts, which she do lovely, there's no denyin'. Hoh!" And Deborah plunged round the corner of the house.

Paul walked through the newly cemented garden in which he saw unmistakable proofs of Sylvia's love for flowers, and reached the door in time to take the girl in his arms. She was pale and joyful, and her eyes were as bright as stars. "Paul, darling," she said shyly, "how early you have come!" Then, when she was struggling with the accounts, "I'm so glad you are here. And Deborah pleased?"

"Eighty-one," said Paul, looking at the long list of figures Sylvia had been trying to add up. It was all over the head sache with these accounts, darling."

"I must help Debby, Paul, and I get on very well with the old of an arithmetic." And she pointed to a small blotchbook which she had evidently been studying.

"Let me take the burden from your shoulders," said her lover, smiling, and sat down at the table, which was strewn with bills. In about an hour he had rubbed all these and had made them out neatly to Deborah's various customers. Then he directed the envelopes, as Sylvia rested them up. All the time they laughed and chatted and despite the dull toil thoroughly enjoyed themselves. "But I am glad to see, Sylvia," said Beecot, pointing to three library volumes by Ouida, "that you enjoy your-self occasionally."

"Oh," said Sylvia, pouncing on them "I've got you now, Paul! I wanted to my something to you. 'The Confessions of a Thug,'" she read out and looked at him with a frown of displeasure. "By Colonel Meadows Taylor. A very interesting book, but rather a bloodthirsty one for you, dearest."

"Delight got it," confessed Miss Norman, "along with some other books from a literary customer who could not pay his bill. It is very strange, Paul, that 'The Confessions of a Thug' should be among the books."

NEW STRENGTH FOR THE SPRING.

Nature Needs Assistance in Making New Health-Giving Blood.

In the spring your system needs toning up. In the place of the healthy and strong you must have new blood, just as the trees have new sap. Nature demands it and nature's laws are inexorable. Without new blood you will feel weak and languid. You may have twinges of rheumatism, or the sharp, stabbing pains of neuralgia, there may be disfiguring pimples or eruptions of the skin, a tired feeling in the morning, and a variable appetite. These are some of the signs that the blood is out of order, that the long trying months of indoor winter life have laid upon you. A purgative medicine, such as too many people take in spring, can't help you. Purgatives merely gallop through the system and further weaken you. Any doctor will tell you that the way for sick people need in the spring is a tonic medicine, and in all the world Dr. Chase's tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for this reason they help to make new, rich, red blood—your greatest need in spring. This new, red blood clears the skin, drives out disease and makes weak, easily tired men, women, and children bright, active and strong. Try this great blood-building medicine this spring, and see what new life and energy it will give you.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

JOHN PAISLEY

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the sufferings; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes—50 cents and $1.00.

AMBITIOUS POULTRY.

This is the season of the year when that worthy member of the feathered fraternity, the hen, becomes overtime and does her best to produce an egg of immense proportions. Here are a couple of efforts. On Friday Mr. W. T. Waller laid on the editor's table an egg weighing over 4½ ounces, and measuring 7x8 inches. The same day Mr. Chas. Stevens placed on that one of his flock of hens had presented him with an egg weighing 4 ounces, and measuring 6x7½ inches.

Come and bring your bibles. Meeting each week except Sunday, at 7.45; Sunday at 3 and 7 p.m. Everybody welcome. Especially you. ODDFELLOWS AT TAMWORTH.

On Tuesday evening about 65 members of Argyll Lodge, No. 212, I. O. O. F., proceeded to Tamworth by special train to institute a new lodge there. On the way their number was augmented by nearly 100 more from the villages along the line, and it was quite an excursion train that arrived in Tamworth that night. All the surrounding lodges were well represented and a lodge of about 25 members was instituted. The officers being installed by Bro. Fred. Scott, D.D.G.M., of Napanee. Bro. H. H. Blackaby, of Kingston, organized the lodge. Lunch was then served in the hall, and a very pleasant time was spent by all. The special arrived in Napanee at 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

Port Arthur has adopted eastern standard time.

HISTORICAL

CHRONICLES OF NAPANEE.

minister, a warm-hearted friend, and a sincere Christian. He has many warm friends, and not an enemy in Napanee.

THE OLD WHITE CHURCH.

Was commenced about the year 1841, upon the plot of land on which the new M. E. Church now stands, which was also presented by the Cartwright estate. It was a stone building, 45 x 56 feet, built by Ezra A. Spencer, contractor, and was dedicated to the worship of God about the year 1844. The Rev. John Bailey was P. E., and the Rev. H. H. Johnston minister in charge at the time.

In 1872 the Rev. S. G. Stone was appointed to this place, of which time it is prognosticated that the name had the right ring for a new church. And in this we are pleased not to have been disappointed. Mr. Stone was born in the County of Northumberland, in 1836, ordained in 1862, and had been five years at the City of Ottawa, previous to his appointment to this place. He is an eminent preacher and a clever businessman, and deserves great praise for the manner he has, with the efficient aid and assistance of the congregation, succeeded in erecting one of the finest churches in connection to which he belongs.

This edifice was commenced in June, 1872, and completed in October, 1873. The building—which is built of red brick, with the base and arches of the windows and bottom of the tower of blue and white cut lime stone—is 103 x 66 feet. The spire is 185 feet in height, which is supposed to represent colored slanting in different shades. While the exterior architecture of the edifice is exceedingly handsome, the internal arrangements inside are unsurpassable. The seating capacity is in most appropriate patterns; the walls and ceilings are very tastefully decorated and painted; the gallery, finished in fret work with solid white ash facing, and scarlet back ground, extends across the front end and two-thirds up the sides the pews are built of white ash, with walnut capings, and the pulpit is finished in a style in keeping with the whole inner portion of the church. The cost of the building was $17,000. Besides this, there has been erected lately a powerful organ, at a cost of $1,600, by Prof. Phillips, of this place. The above church was dedicated by Bishop Richardson and other ministers on the 17th of October, 1873.

THE CANADA PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Is a handsome stone edifice, of Gothic architecture, situated in the West Ward, upon a beautiful site, also presented by the Messrs. Cartwright. The building is about 64 x 85 feet, with a tower and basement. Its erection was commenced on the 1st July, 1874, and the basement opened by Prof. Innes, of Kingston, on the 12th of March following. The main audience room was dedicated on the 6th of June, 1869, by the Rev. Dr. McVicker, of Montreal, and the Rev. Mr. McLaren. The church is very neatly and comfortably finished, and is very creditable to the Rev. John Scott and the congregation through whom it was erected.

The Rev. Mr. Scott was born in Northumberland, England, in 1824, came to Canada in 1853, graduated at Toronto University, and was ordained at the Rev. Mr. Macdonald's church, near Perth, in 1853; came to Napanee in 1855, officiating in the old Academy, and afterwards for several years in the Town Hall. Mr. Scott and his estimated lady are most kind and attentive to the poor and sick, and have many warm friends in Napanee and vicinity. He is truly the friend of all and the enemy of none.

THE ST. MARY'S R. C. CHURCH.

Is a very substantial stone structure, about 40 x 80 feet, situated on the corner of West and Thomas streets, the land having been donated by the Cartwright estate. The church was built in 1853, and is very neatly finished internally.

The Rev. Father Brows, a very estimable gentleman, was for several years the priest of this church. He was a few years since removed to the Town of Port Hope, being succeeded by the Rev. Father Leonard, who still officiates, and is highly esteemed by the members of his church. He unobtrusively attends to the best interests of his church and congregation, never interfering in other people's matters.

TESTING HIS TONGUE.

The Unhappy Experience of a Young Married Woman.

A young married woman in Brooklyn suspected that her husband was imbibing in wine. She determined, however, to say nothing till she had confirmed her suspicions. In conversation with her bosom friend she said she would give anything to discover the truth. The friend mentioned that a man even slightly intoxicated cannot pronounce words of length. This gave the young wife an idea, which she proceeded to put into execution.

When the young woman got home again, the unwelcome wife assured that the worst had been ascertained. She burst into tears and took from her hand bag a paper, which she handed to her friend.

"I gave him this," she sobbed.

The friend read from the list the following words: "Philopropmitiveness, disproportionateness, pyrexia, apothesis, parachronism, hypochondriasis, phonochrony, synartegenesmatic."

"And," sobbed the unhappy wife, with a fresh sob, "the wretch missed nearly all of them!"

DESERONTO

OUR RURAL SCHOOLS.

A large amount of misapprehension as to the school law has had the effect of creating a prejudice against the child going to rural schools, to feel very uneasy as to the outcome of the Government's changes.

First, a rumor was started that the Government propose doing away with the Model Schools in the cities, and forcing all pupils training for the teaching profession to attend Normal School at Ottawa, Toronto or Hamilton. When the rumor got started, it is hard to put out, at all events, the feeling was very common, all through the rural districts in the Country. Through interviews with the representatives of the press, from time to time, the Minister of Education has set forth the policy of the Government as to rural schools. The Government's intentions is to carry out the platform laid down by the Conservative party before taking office.

Ninety per cent. of the pupils in the public schools of past years, through High Schools or Collegiate Institutes and have to be satisfied with an education obtained in the rural or public schools as fitting them for their avocation in life. The Government promised, before taking office, that every effort would be made to elevate the standard of rural schools so that a child could obtain as good a general education sufficient for all practical business purposes in the Province, without going to the County Town or other centre to finish their course. The Minister of Education stated positively that it was not the policy of the Government to do away with Model Schools, but the Government proposed having, at least, one good strong Model School in each County and to double the grant to those Model Schools, making it a regulation requiring students to attend the Model School for double the length of time they formerly did, thus insuring a good strong foundation for their professional life as teachers and the Government further proposed to make the rural schools as efficient as possible and this year have made a special grant of $60,000.00 for educational purposes to be used and distributed among rural schools to pay the expense of continuation classes in the rural schools. By this means, this year and from now on, every rural school will have the privilege of having in the school a continuation class which means that all the subjects taught in the Model School or Collegiate Institute may be taught in the rural schools and schools that have this class will get the proper grant from the extra grant by the Government of this $60,000.00.

The Minister of Education also stated that every encouragement would be given to combine district schools in the rural districts by which two or more school sections may combine their schools into one strong school rather than have two or more comparatively weak schools and further that the Government had in view to arrange so it possibly can be accumulated, the creation of practically a High School with full course of study in each Township in the Province, and the result is that from now on, every farmer can have his children get the full benefit of the course up to and inclusive of the first form of the High School in the rural schools at home and thus save one or two years' attendance at High School.

These changes have shown as commendable desire on the part of the Government to amend the school law from time to time so as to make it as useful as possible and must, in every way, be in accordance with school books, will be, as far as possible, rectified and adjusted by the present Government, and in so doing apart from the University and the School of Science the estimates for 1908 provide for the distribution among the people to enable them to employ more teachers in their schools, and generally for the benefit of education in the sum since $600,000 more than 1904 the last year of the Ross Government.

EASY TO MIX THIS.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affliction with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing the most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the real poisons and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Dr. Boschelle of Thomasville, Ga., a physician well known in the South, writes: "I have used Vinol in my general practice with most extraordinary results, and find it the most reliable remedy for throat and lung troubles and to creat strength."

Dr. Wm. BASEBALL CLUB ORGANIZED.

On Friday evening last a meeting was held for the organization of a baseball team for the coming season. A large number of enthusiastic followers of the game, as well as players, assembled at the Public Library at 8 p.m. and the following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. J. P. Wallbridge.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. H. Warner.
President—Dr. N. J. Sills.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. A. L. Embury.
2d Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. L. Boyes.
Manager—Mr. Bailey Dorland.
Secty. Treas.—Mr. J. B. Allison.
Captain—Mr. Jack Derry.
Executive Committee — Messrs. Herb. Daly, Jack Derry, J. B. Allison, Jas. Pringle and Clarence Trimble.

The membership fee for club members was placed at the nominal sum of 50 cents, and the secretary was authorized to draft a petition for presentation to the public for subscriptions.

It is the prospect of a base ball league being formed to take in the towns of Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Belleville and Kingston, and arrange for a schedule of games at the different places during the coming season.

The outlook is bright in Napanee for a good ball team this summer. We understand that the Driving Park can be obtained for practice, etc., which will do away with the severe handicap of former years as it was impossible to secure a proper ground for practice.

A new complete outfit is required this summer, and we feel sure our citizens will donate liberally towards a fund for the purchase of the same. It will require at least $100.00 to buy the necessary equipment, and we trust our citizens are assured of a representative team, the subscription list will likely be readily signed, as also will the list for summer game played in any country to-day.

The following have consented to form the different clubs will meet in Napanee to-day to organize a league, schedule of games, etc.

REDISTRIBUTION.

This bill has passed its second reading in the House, and has been met with considerable criticism from the loyal opposition in the Local House.

The plan for redistribution has been placed upon two principles; one is that the fair per cent. of the population of each riding should be made equal, and second that where at all possible, the boundaries of the existing ridings should constitute the boundaries of the riding. Hereto Townships were taken out of one County and added to a section of a Township in another County to make a riding under some supposititious name, which riding was not of necessity limited to the boundaries of any one County. The changes, that resulted from the redistribution, will be the changes, that might be justifiable on the principles above laid down, but there are some glaring ridings back in their own Counties and in increasing the number of representatives in the City of Toronto to eight.

Mr. Whitney, in his closing speech to the Legislature, contrasted the difference between the redistribution of seats and the gerrymander, he recalled the following historical fact:

WHAT A GERRYMANDER DOES

The Conservative party elections in 1883 was: Liberal 127,804, Conservative 126,002, giving a Conservative majority of 2,137.

This vote resulted in the election of 66 Liberals, 39 Conservatives, or a Liberal majority of 10.

The Hon. Oliver Mowat redistributed the Province, changing the boundaries of 46 constituencies. In the election of 1886 the popular vote was: Liberal 153,131, Conservative 167,890, or a Conservative majority of 9,869, but the standing of the parties in 1886 was 59 Liberals, 29 Conservatives, giving a Liberal majority of 30.

Then, in spite of the fact that the popular vote of the Conservatives had been thus ironed out the result of the distribution was that the Liberal majority in the Legislature was 30 seats.

A rumor was in the air, some time since, that the Township of Camden would be annexed to the Riding of Lennox & Addington, to counteract the gain to the Conservatives of the Riding of Lennox, and prevent the gain making the gerrymander for their own gain, did not materialize, the change which many in this Riding, would like, to have done so that Lennox and Addington remained as now so nearly equal, that if the Camden takes from Addington and placed on Lennox the proportion of population would be destroyed and although the Conservatives would have a great gain to the Conservatives of the Riding of Lennox, the gerrymander would enable Pain in the head—pain anywhere, but in some form a companion, pain is always present. Pain is also usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and he knows it he has created a book, a little book, taken—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—that tells how to relieve pain, how to banish it, how to prevent it. Pain is nearly always unnecessary.

PAIN

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's a painful periods with women, pressure. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood pressure—blood pressure. If you have a pain in your heart, it's blood pressure. Headache, painful periods, sleeplessness, nervousness, pain in the heart, are unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and purple and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'd find it under pain always. It's simply Common Sense.

"Really, I don't see why," smiled Benoit, fingering the old leather volume.

"It's the finger of fate, Paul," said Sylvia coaxingly, "saying how late or how soon it be has created a book, and it shall be found out what goor is."

"Good!" Paul looked more puzzled than ever.

"It's an Indian word," explained Sylvia, "and means sugar. The things eat it before they strangle any one."

"Oh," laughed Benoit, "and you think your father was strangled by a thug? My dear child, the thugs were stamped out years ago. You'll read all about it in the preface of that book. If I remember, Sir Walter Shore has read the work. Besides, darling," he added, drawing her to him caressingly, "the thugs never came to Bradwell."

"Paul," said Sylvia, still more solemnly and resenting the laugh, "do you remember the thing that came into the shop?"

"Oh, was peam the street hawker that Bart spoke of? Yes, I remember that such an Indian entered, according to Bart's tale, and wanted to sell boot laces, while that young imp Tray was dancing on poor Bart's body. But the Indian wasn't a thug, Sylvia."

"Yes, he was," she exclaimed excited. ly. "Hokar, he said he was, and Hokar was a thug. Remember the handful of coarse brown sugar he left on the counter? Didn't Bart tell you of that?"

Paul started. "Yes, by Jove, he did!" was his reply.

"Well, then," said Sylvia triumphantly, "that sugar was good, and the thugs eat it before strangling any one, and father was strangled."

Benoit could not but be impressed. "It is certainly very strange," he said, looking at the book, "and it was queer your father should have been strangled on the very night when this Indian Hokar left the sugar on the counter. A coincidence, Sylvia, darling."

"No. Why should Hokar leave the sugar at all?"

"Well, he didn't eat it, and therefore, if he was a thug, he would have done so had he intended to strangle your father."

"I don't know," said Sylvia, with a look of obstinacy on her pretty face.

"Oor!" Paul looked more puzzled than ever.

"But remember the cruel way in which my father was killed, Paul. It's just what an Indian would do, and then the sugar—oh, I'm quite sure this hawker committed the crime."

Benoit shook his head and strove to dissuade her from entertaining this idea. But Sylvia, usually so amenable to reason, refused to discard her theory, and indeed Paul himself thought that the incident of the sugar was queer. He determined to tell Hurd about the matter, and then the hawker might be found and made to explain why he had left the goor on the counter. "But the sect of the thugs is extinct," argued Paul quickly; "it can't be, Sylvia."

"But it is," she insisted. "I'm sure." And from this firm opinion he could not move her. Finally, when he departed, he took the books with him and promised to read the novel that night. Perhaps something might come of Sylvia's fancy.

The lovers spent the rest of the time in talking over their future, and Benoit looked hopefully toward making sufficient money to offer Sylvia a home. He also described to her how he had met Mrs. Krill and related what plan was proposed to be done. "Do you think we should accept the five hundred a year, Paul?" said Sylvia doubtfully. "It would just everything right, and so long as I am with you I don't care where we live."

"If you have the decision to me, darling," said Paul, "I think it will be best to refuse this offer. Something is wrong, for I am sure Mrs. Krill would not be so anxious to get you out of the country."

"Oh, Paul, do you think she knows anything about the murder?"

"No, dear. I don't think that. Mrs. Krill is far too clever a woman to put her neck in danger. But there may be a chance of her daughter telling the truth, Sylvia." he added, "your new Maud Krill. How old would you take her to be?"

"Oh, quite old, Paul," said Sylvia decisively; "she dresses well and paints her face, but she's forty."

"Oh, fifty, not so much as that."

"Well, then, thirty and over," insisted Sylvia. "Debby thinks the same as I do."

"Don't you think Debby's zeal may lead her to exaggerate?"

"Debby is a dear, but no exaggerator," said Sylvia, slightly offended, "and I have eyes in my head as well as Debby. That girl, or that woman, I should say, is over thirty, Paul."

"In that case," said Benoit, his color rising, "I fancy I see the hand-some of Mrs. Krill's desire to get you out of the country, Maud," he added deliberately, "may not be your father's daughter, after all."

"What makes you think that?"

"Well, according to the marriage certificate and to Mrs. Krill's admission, she was married to your father thirty years ago. If Maud is over thirty—can't you see, Sylvia?"

"Yes," Sylvia colored. "You mean she may be the same as I am?"

"Not exactly, dear," replied Paul, nothing like. "I mean that Mrs. Krill may have been a widow and have had her little girl with her when she married your father. In that case Maud certainly could not get the money, and so Mrs. Krill wants you to leave England."

"In case I would get it," said Sylvia, excited.

Paul looked puzzled and rather sad. "I can't care dear," he replied doubtfully. "Certainly the money is left to my daughter, but as the marriage with your father unfortunately is void I fear you would not inherit. However," he said grimly, "there would be a certain pleasure in taking the money from that woman. Maud is a mere puppet in her hands," he laughed. "And Mrs. Krill would marry a poor bride," he ended maliciously.

Sylvia could not quite understand all this and only saw that they would have to solve the problem with a pretty gesture of indifference. "What will you do, Paul?" she asked.

"I'll see Hurd and tell him what you and Deborah say about the age of Maud Krill."

"Why not see Mr. Pash?"

"Because he is a traitor," replied Benoit darkly; "he has deceived me, has lost your confidence, he will certainly try and give Maud Krill possession of the money. No, I'll speak to Hurd, who is my friend and yours. He is clever and will be able to unravel this tangle."

"Tell him about the goor also, Paul."

"Yes. I'll explain everything I can, and then I'll get him to go down to Christchurch and see what happened there when your father lived with Maud's mother."

"What did happen, Paul?" asked Sylvia anxiously.

"Nothing," he replied with an assumption of carelessness, for he did not want to tell the girl about the fate of Lady Rachel Sandal, "but we may find in your father's past life what led to his murder."

"Do you think Mrs. Krill had anything to do with it?"

"My own, you asked that question before. No, I don't. Still, one never knows. I should think Mrs. Krill is a dangerous woman, although, I fancy, too clever to risk being hanged. However, Hurd can find out if she was in town on the night your father was killed."

"That was on the 6th of July," said Sylvia.

"Yes. And he was murdered at 12."

"After 12," said Sylvia. "I heard the policeman on his beat at a quarter past, and then I came down. Poor father was strangled before our very eyes," she said, shuddering.

"Hush, dear. Don't speak of it," said Paul, rising. "Let us talk of more interesting subjects."

"Paul, I can think of nothing till I learn who killed my poor father and why he was killed so cruelly."

"Then we must wait patiently, Sylvia. Hurd is looking after the matter, and I have every confidence in Hurd. And, by Jove," added Benoit, with an afterthought, "Mrs. Krill doubted the reward. Were she convicted in the matter she would not risk sharpening the wits of so clever a man as Hurd. By Jingo, whoever strangled your father it was not Mrs. Krill."

"It was this Indian," insisted Sylvia, "and Mrs. Krill—"

Paul laughed, although he was far from thinking she might be wrong. Of course if the woman committed the deed she should strangle the old man. In the first place, the thugs have been driven out, in the second, if any one lived, they certainly would not exercise their craft in England, and in the third, Hokar, putting aside his strong strangled victims to Kali-worship, was a thug. Mrs. Krill would not choose for playing at a conflicting part. Finally, there was the letter to be answered. Paul was anxious to get back to get the proofs from Pash. Paul suggested if Hurd had found out what he wanted he would call on Sylvia. "If all very difficult," sighed Benoit, "and the more we go into the matter the more mystery we find. Well, I suppose I must go. Hurd, if anyone, will unravel the mystery," and Sylvia agreed with him.

CHAPTER XIII.

Paul, on leaving Sylvia, walked to the office of Mr. Hurd, and found that gentleman in his private room. Hurd was a man of middle age, with a clever face and a pair of keen eyes. He was at the present moment busily engaged in writing, but on the entrance of Paul he looked up and nodded. "Sit down, Benoit," he said, in a pleasant voice, "I'll be with you in a minute."

Paul seated himself and looked about him. The room was not unlike that of a study, with its shelves filled with books and its writing table littered with papers. At the end of the table was a large safe, and on the wall opposite the door hung a map of Hurd's property. Paul noted this map, but in the meantime he was more interested in the man himself. Hurd was a tall, thin man, with a clean-shaven face and a pair of keen eyes. He was dressed in a gray suit, and his head was bent over the papers, showing a bald patch on the top of his head. Paul noted this bald patch, and also that Hurd's hands were long and thin, with a peculiar nervous movement of the fingers. He thought that a man with such hands would be a good lawyer, and that they would be useful in the detection of crime. At length Hurd finished what he was writing, and, pushing the papers aside, looked up at Paul. "Now, Benoit," he said, "I am at your service. I suppose you have come to see me about Mrs. Krill's proposal?"

"Yes," said Paul, "and also to consult you about the murder of Lady Rachel Sandal."

"Ah!" said Hurd, "I thought as much. I'm an amateur detective myself, you know, and I've been investigating that matter. Well, I'll be glad to hear what you have to say, and I'll tell you what I've found out. Light your pipe," he added, pushing a tobacco jar toward him, "and make yourself comfortable."

Paul accepted the invitation, and filled his pipe from the jar. Hurd, who was a smoker, followed his example, and then, leaning back in his chair, looked at Paul with a pair of keen eyes. "Now, Benoit," he said, "I'm ready to hear what you have to say."

"Before I begin," said Paul, "I may as well tell you that I am engaged to Sylvia Krill."

"Indeed!" Hurd looked surprised, but not displeased. "I congratulate you, my boy. Sylvia is a charming girl, and I am glad you have won her affections. Mrs. Krill will be pleased."

"I'm not so sure of that," said Paul, with a laugh. "Mrs. Krill is not over-pleased with me, I fancy, as I have refused the offer she made me to go to Australia."

"Australia!" Hurd looked surprised. "Why should she wish you to go there?"

"Because she wants to get Sylvia out of the country, and Maud Krill into possession of the money."

"Ah!" Hurd looked grave. "I see. Mrs. Krill is far too clever a woman to put her neck in danger. But there may be a chance of her daughter telling the truth, Sylvia." he added, "your new Maud Krill. How old would you take her to be?"

"Oh, quite old, Paul," said Sylvia decisively; "she dresses well and paints her face, but she's forty."

However," he said grimly, "there would be a certain pleasure in taking the money from that woman. Maud is a mere puppet in her hands," he laughed. "And Mrs. Krill would marry a poor bride," he ended maliciously.

Sylvia could not quite understand all this and only saw that they would have to solve the problem with a pretty gesture of indifference. "What will you do, Paul?" she asked.

"I'll see Hurd and tell him what you and Deborah say about the age of Maud Krill."

"Why not see Mr. Pash?"

"Because he is a traitor," replied Benoit darkly; "he has deceived me, has lost your confidence, he will certainly try and give Maud Krill possession of the money. No, I'll speak to Hurd, who is my friend and yours. He is clever and will be able to unravel this tangle."

"Tell him about the goor also, Paul."

"Yes. I'll explain everything I can, and then I'll get him to go down to Christchurch and see what happened there when your father lived with Maud's mother."

"What did happen, Paul?" asked Sylvia anxiously.

"Nothing," he replied with an assumption of carelessness, for he did not want to tell the girl about the fate of Lady Rachel Sandal, "but we may find in your father's past life what led to his murder."

"Do you think Mrs. Krill had anything to do with it?"

"My own, you asked that question before. No, I don't. Still, one never knows. I should think Mrs. Krill is a dangerous woman, although, I fancy, too clever to risk being hanged. However, Hurd can find out if she was in town on the night your father was killed."

"That was on the 6th of July," said Sylvia.

"Yes. And he was murdered at 12."

"After 12," said Sylvia. "I heard the policeman on his beat at a quarter past, and then I came down. Poor father was strangled before our very eyes," she said, shuddering.

"Hush, dear. Don't speak of it," said Paul, rising. "Let us talk of more interesting subjects."

"Paul, I can think of nothing till I learn who killed my poor father and why he was killed so cruelly."

"Then we must wait patiently, Sylvia. Hurd is looking after the matter, and I have every confidence in Hurd. And, by Jove," added Benoit, with an afterthought, "Mrs. Krill doubted the reward. Were she convicted in the matter she would not risk sharpening the wits of so clever a man as Hurd. By Jingo, whoever strangled your father it was not Mrs. Krill."

"It was this Indian," insisted Sylvia, "and Mrs. Krill—"

Paul laughed, although he was far from thinking she might be wrong. Of course if the woman committed the deed she should strangle the old man. In the first place, the thugs have been driven out, in the second, if any one lived, they certainly would not exercise their craft in England, and in the third, Hokar, putting aside his strong strangled victims to Kali-worship, was a thug. Mrs. Krill would not choose for playing at a conflicting part. Finally, there was the letter to be answered. Paul was anxious to get back to get the proofs from Pash. Paul suggested if Hurd had found out what he wanted he would call on Sylvia. "If all very difficult," sighed Benoit, "and the more we go into the matter the more mystery we find. Well, I suppose I must go. Hurd, if anyone, will unravel the mystery," and Sylvia agreed with him.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

"Do you think the navy is not well ordered?"

"I do," answered Mr. Serius Barker. "I have nothing to say against the ships. But look at the names they give some of the boats: 'Cygnet,' 'Pigmy,' 'Minnow' and 'Lizzie Pot.' As soon as the enemy made a sight of them he'd be sure to get away. What we want to do is to name them like 'Little Pot,' 'Zephyr' or 'Asphodel.' Make us want to go on the pleasure boats at the summer resorts. Is a pretty good navy in some respects but what it needs is more strategy."

A CURE FOR CONSTIVENESS. — Constiveness comes from the refusal of the digestive organs to perform their duties regularly and properly. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are noted as scientific purgatives, and are recommended that certain ingredients in them have a specific action upon the liver and bowels so as to remove their torpor and restore them to healthy action. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are to bear testimony to their power in this respect.

Language is the vehicle of thought, but a lot of times it travels empty.

IN NATURE'S STOREHOUSE THERE ARE CURES.—Medical experiments have shown conclusively that there are medicinal virtues in even ordinary plants growing around us which give them a value that cannot be estimated. It is held by some that Nature provides a cure for every disease which neglect and ignorance have made of upon man. However, this may be, it is a fact that Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, deriving their roots and herbs, are a sovereign remedy for all disorders connected with the digestion.

Visitor—Do my sharpening! What do you mean, sonny?

Little Pitchers—Mamma asked papa what you came here so much for, and papa said it was because you had an axe to grind.

"I always was lucky," said Sauntering Sim.

"I don't see," replied Ruffled Rube, "how you can say that. Here you are all run down sick will de axe, and not owin' where your next meal's comin' from."

"Dat's wot I tell you. It's just plain luck to be sick. Wot if I was healthy and had a big appetite?"

An uncontrollable flood is rapidly advancing upon Great Falls, a city of 15,000 population, near Helena, Mont., and it is believed that the Boston and Montana smelter, one of the largest in the world, is doomed to destruction. The Small Requisites Are as Important as the Easter Hat or Suit

A new Suit goes a long ways toward making up the Easter outfit—but it does not complete it by any means. It's the little things—the Hat, the gloves, the neck dress, the ribbons and such like that add the finishing touches.

Discerning women consider these things just as important as the Suit—the hat must become, the glove must match in color, ribbons must be the exact shade, and design, the neckwear must be in harmony with everything else, and the hosiery must be new and stylish.

We've prepared a liberal assortment of these things for discerning women. And no matter what may be your requirements you'll find our varieties satisfying, our qualities up to our usual high standard, and our prices as always the very lowest for like quality.

Easter Suits

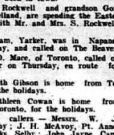
Beautifully stylish suits made of the best materials in the most recent modes and tailored and trimmed in the most expert fashion. For example, these

Brown Panama in a very pretty shade, jacket is lined all through with rustling taffeta silk, ¾ length sleeves, Japanese shoulder, silk braid trimmed. Skirt is full flare, with many pleats. Size 36. A manufacturer's sample, $30.00 for $25.00.

Medium grey covert broadcloth, silk lined, semi-fitting coat, pleated skirt. A sample garment, $25.00.

Navy and Green Panamas and light Tweed, hip length coats, mercerized linings, sizes 15 to 18 years, and 34, 36, 38. Special, $10.00

Easter Wash Fabrics



Dainty, crisp, delightful, just about the most notable assemblage of choice materials for Spring and Summer wear that we have ever shown. You should see these.

McBRIDE'S DIMITIES AND ORGANDIES.—Made in Ireland, every pattern is of that dainty type that anybody can wear. Beds, sprigs, and small figures, 25 cents yard.

WHITE BARRED MUSLINS. — Dimity cord forming many designs in cross bar effect, in the new thing running through piece after piece, 20c to 45c. yard.

CREPE VOILE.—A soft uncrushable wash fabric that is brought out in a lot of beautiful designs. The printing in most cases produces the shadow effect. 40c. yard.

BORDERED ORGANDI. — These come double fold and are only to be had in Dress Pattern lengths. Floral bordered effects and running to plain at the hem of robe. Pinks and Light Blue. $5.00 pattern.

Easter Neckwear

The newest conceits in fashionable neck dressing—Collars in new designs, new stocks, also ribbons, ruchings and a host of dainty neckwear and novelties.

Easter Hosiery

Some new conceits in hosiery — embroidered effects, several shades and colorings to match gowns and shoes — really hosiery that is choice —the dependable kinds.

Easter Millinery

Just such daintiness, jauntiness and nattiness as should attend the most exclusive Easter offerings. New shapes and styles including many kind of garniture, braids, ribbons, feathers, flowers, etc.

Mr. Givens however, has in recent years done little in law, having given himself over wholly to newspaper and magazine work. He has served as editorial writer on the Buffalo News, the Niagara Falls Cataract Courier, the Syracuse Courier and the New York Commercial, while for the last six years of his active newspaper work he was financial editor of the New York Times. In addition, he has contributed largely to American magazines. The new management announces that the Standard will be an independent Conservative newspaper.

Mrs Crossye (bursting with envy) —It's—er—very nice indeed, Mrs. Bricktop, for—for Brussels. By the way, I nearly forgot—what I came for. I wish you would lend me your lawn mower for a few moments.

"Lawn mower? Why, certainly. But what on earth can you want with a lawn mower at this time of the year?"

"I desire to thin down our velvet pile carpet in the nursery; the children are always losing their marbles in it."

IN CASE OF ACCIDENT.

Don't blunder. Do instead of those are dangerous games, and the best to withdraw. If they don't, and the others do, they were better off up with the irony.

Accident to reader: Send aid to the injured. A great deal of unnecessary suffering has been caused by accidents hastily rendering third or even fourth aid where first aid was indicated.

In case of drowning, select a best method of resuscitation. There are 4,629 best methods in all. Have them about you in the form of three separate paper clippings and run them over briefly before acting.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

On May 6th, the people of Napanee are to have the privilege of hearing Prof. Hutt, of the Ontario Agricultural College. He will address the Horticultural Society on the subject of Floriculture. There is no man in Ontario better qualified to treat this subject. The meeting will be open to all, and at this time when the Society is using every effort to awaken the interest of all classes of citizens in the growing of shrubs and flowers, it is to be hoped that a large number will turn out to get the benefit of this address.

There will be a question drawer, and if any one has experienced any difficulty in the management or cultivation of any flower, shrub, tree or fruit, the opportunity is now offered to have that difficulty solved by the most competent man in the Province of Ontario.

The meeting will be held in the rooms of the Historical Society. Bring along your questions. The Professor will be glad to answer one and all.

Judge tells this story of a boy who wrote on the blackboard at school: "John Jones can sing the girls better than any fellow in the class." A stern inquisition conducted by the teacher fastened the authorship of this declaration upon John Jones himself, and the culprit was severely mandated to remain after school was dismissed. His sympathetic classmates lingered in the vicinity to learn his fate. "Well, did she lick you?" they inquired, when he finally appeared. "Nope," said John. "What did she keep you in for, then?" they asked. "I ain't agoin' to tell," he answered; "but it pays to advertise."

Mr. Merchant, don't you possess some advantage over the general run —some particular point of superiority—which it would pay to advertise?

SOOTHES AND HEALS.

HYOMEI GIVES QUICK RELIEF IN CATARRH TROUBLES.

Be wise in time and use Hyomei at the first warning of catarrhal troubles.

Do not let the disease creep along the delicate mucous membrane, gradually gaining from the nose to the throat, thence into the bronchial tubes, and then downward until the lungs are reached and you are in danger of consumption.

Hyomei will cure all catarrhal forms and stages of catarrh. It is so uniformly successful in curing this most common and dangerous disease that T. B. Wallace takes all the risk of a trial himself.

There is no other treatment for catarrh that is like Hyomei or just as good. Hyomei can take this home give quick and sure relief and at no little cost. Its medication is breathed through a pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, thus reaching the most remote cells of the air passages, killing catarrhal germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

Begin the use of Hyomei to-day and you will soon find that the offensive breath, the droppings into the throat and the discharge from the nose and all other symptoms of catarrh are overcome and cured. Mr. and Mrs. Noble McGill :—

This bespeaks our regrets at your removal and we trust that in your new home and new field of church labor you may win as high a standing in the estimation of those you meet, though to them this is not necessarily a letter of recommendation.

Mrs. McGill, all the way from your childhood up you have filled a place in the church so well that you have drawn upon yourself the endearment of all, and you will now be much missed in the Sabbath School and Church.

We are glad that you will still remain a member of our Woman's Missionary Auxiliary.

It would seem, Mr. McGill, that your parents must have had some premonition of what kind of a boy and man you would make, when they gave you the worthy name of 'Noble', or else you have ever endeavored to live up to its full meaning. We admire your good judgment, though to some of white or black horses. Also dealer in Tinware, Eavetroughing, stoves, etc. Fixture framing a specialty. Both, Ontario. judgment, though to some of white or never given you such lofty feelings as to be unapproachable, and we rejoice that you have never fallen into the depths of the earth in any of the many holes that you have drilled therein.

Your success and welfare in the future will still be our interest. Please accept these gifts as a small token of our esteem, and we ask in return your kindly thoughts of the people of Wesley neighborhood.

After the presentation of parlor table, bedroom set, parlor and kitchen lamp, Mr. McGill gave a very fitting and able reply, after which all joined in singing "Blest be the tie that binds." Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable evening spent, closing with the Glory Song.

City of Chelsea Fire Swept.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE IN SUBURB OF MUCH VALUE. OVER 1,500 LIONS. — FINE RESIDENCES BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY FLAMES.

Chicago Engines Rushed the Premises — City Hall, Large Public Buildings and Many of the Banks in the City Destroyed—Dynamite Used to Check the Fire. The Water Oil Tanks Exploded.

Boston, April 12.—An apparently insignificant fire, which started in rubbish rags on a dump in the city of Chelsea to-day, developed in a few minutes into a conflagration which obliterated the greater part of the suburb. Five hundred dwelling houses and public buildings were destroyed, 1,500 families driven from their homes and property loss of many people made homeless. Two lives are reported to have been lost, one at a late hour to-night it was reported that two more bodies had been found in the ruins, a woman having shot herself in a frenzy over her inability to save her property, and probably to seventy-five persons were injured.

LOSS TEN MILLIONS.

In the confusion attending the situation accurate estimates of the loss were impossible, but conservative estimates of it mostly $10,000,000. The fire was the worst conflagration Boston has had in many years. It raged before a forty-five-mile an hour gale for more than six hours, defying the combined fire departments of Chelsea and several cities and towns and a large detachment of Boston firemen and repairmen.

The fire area, which was of the form of an ellipse, a mile and a half long and a mile wide at its widest part, extended diagonally across the city from the water front to the boundary between Everett and Chelsea to the north. Everett escaped with the loss of two fine residences, the attempt to check the flames at the Everett end of the gale, and their main efforts were directed against the flames which were driven upon either side. Their last stand was taken on the square late in the afternoon and for hours the issue of battle was waged. At 9 o'clock word was passed that the flames were winning, and with renewed energy the contest was pressed, but at 11.30 official announcement was made by Fire Chief Tarbox that the fire was under control.

The great majority of the buildings were of wood and were completely destroyed, but stone and other material were almost as quickly and completely demolished by the fierceness of the blaze.

THE BUILDINGS DESTROYED.

Among the structures destroyed were thirteen churches, two hospitals, the Public library, City Hall, five schoolhouses, twenty-two engine houses, nearly a score of factories, and all the city banks.

The flying embers and the showers of sparks were carried across Chelsea Creek to the East Boston district, and fires were started in many places. The Marines at the Charlestown navy yard, volunteered and a detachment of the men of 185th Company, and Rear-Admiral Swift also sent eight of the men on board the receiving ship Wabash. These soldiers were not commanded by officers, but were instructed to give their services wherever needed.

MARINES HELD CROWD BACK.

Marines with fixed bayonets held back the crowds while the militia and sailors helped families remove their goods. Advance squads of militia and police warned out families living in the path of the fire which leaped over block after block with astonishing rapidity.

The presence of the uniformed guards overawed the rougher element. Within half an hour after the commencement of the fire, the Roosevelt Public library, Chelsea Trust Company on Maple street was in flames as was also the plant of the Soden Carpet Company's works. Tons of tarred paper stored in the latter caused a dense smoke, which made the work of the firemen almost impossible. Soon a dozen factories and business tenements west of Everett avenue were in flames and the fergers say that they were utterly unable to cope with the conflagration.

CHURCH FULL OF PEOPLE. AFIRE.

The roof of the People's A. M. E. Church on Fourth street was found to be ablaze, while services were in progress. The congregation was unaware that a serious fire was raging below. Fortunately the pastor, Rev. Charles P. Watson, that the building was in danger of burning, and he notified the worshipers of the danger and advised them to file slowly from the building. Ten minutes later the church was in ruins. Burning embers borne on the high wind had started fires in scores of places all the way from Everett avenue across Broadway, leaping the business street by the city, and creating new sources of danger in the poorer tenement and residential section of the city between Broadway and the waterfront.

ESCAPE FROM HOSPITALS.

By requisitioning ambulances from surrounding towns and cities and calling into service all available carriages the police were able to speedily remove the inmates of the two hospitals outside the city limits.

MYRTLE, MANITOBA.

Spring is at last here, welcomed by all notwithstanding the beautiful winter we have experienced. The snow for the last two days has almost entirely disappeared as a result of warm south western winds in some cases the farmers are already at work on their land. The season and everything else points to a bumper crop for the great west this year, and in this locality in particular, as it is one of the best farming districts in Manitoba or any other part of the west. It is in that famous belt of land known as Red River Valley, consists of beautiful rich black loam soil. It is easily worked and gives highest results in the fall per acre of any land in Manitoba. It is steadily situated as regards railroad facilities and good markets. It is between forty and fifty miles west of Winnipeg. Those easterners who intend to visit the west this year would be wise in visiting this beautiful section of country before journeying farther west. There is still land to be had in this locality at low reasonable prices, both land under cultivation and a great deal virgin prairie land. There is a chance of a life time for one to invest money here, and in a very short period of years realize great returns on the capital so vested.—John Reid, Irvine Burgess and Mr. Duncan arrived here from Eastern Ontario with a car load of horses last week.—Mr. Sutton, Mason City, Ohio, U.S., arrived here last week and has gone on a farm belonging to S. Young ladies desiring to purchase new hats would do well to call at his display of beautiful bonnets. Call early and avoid the rush.—Messrs. John Reid and Irvine Burgess spent Monday in Carman.

WHAT CAUSES INDIGESTION?

TO BE CURED, WEAKNESS OF STOMACH MUSCLES MUST BE OVERCOME

The chief cause of indigestion is the lack of gastric juice

By taking Mi-o-na stomach tablets the stomach muscles will be stimulated and strengthened and the flow of gastric juice will be increased. Mi-o-na does not do the stomach's work; it makes the stomach strong enough to do it. In this way the trouble is completely cured and there is no further need of medicine.

No matter how severe a case of stomach trouble you have, Mi-o-na will cure it by strengthening the whole digestive system, and you will soon find that both stomach and bowels do their work in perfect satisfaction.

If you suffer with sick headache, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles, or any of the other symptoms of indigestion, here is the chance to get a remedy on the fair, square, every known-costs nothing unless it cures.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

Everyone Needs a Tonic in Spring to Purify and Build Up the Blood.

If you want new health and strength in spring you must build up your blood with a tonic medicine. Indoor life during the winter months makes it impossible for the depressed condition and feeling of constant tiredness which affects so many people every spring. This condition means that the blood is impure and watery. That is what causes pimples and unsightly eruptions in some others have twinges of rheumatism, or perhaps stabbing pains and headaches. Poor appetite, frequent headaches, and a desire to avoid exertion is also due to bad blood. Any or all of these ills can be banished by the fair use of such a tonic medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine helps to make new, rich red blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ, strengthens the nerves and brings a feeling of new health and new energy to weak, tired out men, women and women. Here is proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is a great cure for all spring medicines. Mr. Henry Baker, Chipman, N.B., says:—"Last spring I was weak and nervous and that I could hardly drag myself about. My appetite was poor. I did not sleep well and dreaded work. My blood was in a terrible condition, which caused pimples and small boils to break out all over me. These sores itch and pain and caused me much trouble. I tried several medicines, but without the least benefit, until one day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He spoke so highly of this medicine that I decided to take his advice and give the pills a trial. I got a half dozen boxes and the result was that by the time they were finished I felt like a new man. together different man. They purified my blood, built up my whole system, and I have not had a pimple on my flesh for a week ago. For this reason I can highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood builder and nerve tonic." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or sixboxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

'PARSIFAL' COMING TO KINGSTON.

"Parsifal", in whatever shape it is presented, whether with all the beauty of Caruso's voice and Conreid's operatic orchestra, or in the blatant translation depicted by Henry Savage; or whether in the form of English music drama, as it will be seen at the Grand Opera House, Kingston, on Tuesday, April 21st, it will always remind an education in itself. No one knows the beauties of the wonderful story. There is about it that pristine atmosphere of mysticism, that charm of medievalism, that constant succession of symbolic utterance and acts which makes it impossible to class it with anything modern, one which lifts it to the realm of classic.

The medal was awarded to Miss Grace Martin. Judges, A. E. Paul, Miss Mary E. B. Wilson and F. L. Hooper. Chairman, Rev. J. R. Real.

shores were rich and the Conservatives advertised a portion of Cobalt Lake for sale. Thirty-four acres in this lake realized $1,005,000 cash. Under Liberal administration four acres in this same lake brought $12.50, or $3.00 per acre.

Kerr Lake was also a mineral wealthy. It was advertised in the same way as Cobalt Lake. The best tender received was from a staunch Conservative friend—$52,000. Hon. Mr. Cochrane, being a practical man and knowing the value of the deposit there, wouldn't sell. The second advertisement brought a tender for $178,000 and 10 per cent. royalty for all time to come. Did the Liberals at Ottawa ever turn down a tender like that from a friend of the Government?

Here is the way the Liberals did it: Peterson Lake lies midway between Cobalt and Kerr Lakes, and contains 250 acres. It was sold for $3.00 per acre, or $750.00, and the speculators afterwards sold it for $250,000 in cash.

The present Conservative administration is made up of honest, conscientious officials, who are working in the interests of the people of the Province, and millions of dollars are pouring into the treasury. I want the Conservative electors present at this meeting when they go home to tell their Liberal friends that they are going to vote for the Conservative candidate because it is money in his pocket to do so, and that he approves of the business policy of the party in comparison with Liberal rule.

You are getting one thing in Ontario to-day. The officials of the country are honest because you have an honest Premier at the head of an honest Government. The Government's 25 per cent. royalty share of the O'Brien mine last year, was $330,000.

The Whitney Government is going to sweep the country from end to end at the next election by as large a majority, if not larger than before, because there is no substantial grievance against it and there is not the slightest reason for the Conservative voter to go back on the Government, and the broad thinking Liberals are going to support the Government more strongly than ever this year because of their honest, upright, straightforward policy.

In closing, Mr. Ganey highly commended the excellent committee work done by Mr. Carscallen, and prophesied a handsome majority for him in Lennox on polling day.

Mr. Carscallen, on rising to speak, was given a rousing reception, and spoke briefly and to the point. He would strive to do in the future what he had tried to do in the past. If he had erred, it was in judgment, not intentionally—of course there are none of us infallible. This Government, since coming into power, has saved millions of dollars for the Province in their policy of conducting the sales of our mineral lands. We, of this County, are sharing in the benefit of those sales in the grants we are getting for our Schools and County roads. This County has also benefitted from the assessment of Railroads, and we have received our proportion of the taxes.

The people of this Province will have a secret ballot at the next election, not like the late Ross Government policy and the numbered ballot.

It would be impossible for him to make a personal canvass, and he asked for their votes and influence, and hoped no one would feel slighted should he not be able to call on them, and wanted them all to come out and support an honest Government.

Before closing the following resolution was adopted:

Moved by Mr. Chas. Anderson, seconded by Mr. R. A. Fowler,

That the Liberal Conservative Association of Lennox in convention assembled, desire to place upon record an expression of its utmost confidence in James Pliny Whitney, K.C., L.L.D., M.P.P., Premier of Ontario and his Government.

That the high standard they have set before themselves in the Legislative Assembly and the people of this Province has given us a new and better ideal in political affairs and has raised Provincial politics out of the lower plane to which the Ross Government and its predecessors, through the liberal machine had lowered them, and has placed them on a higher level which needs must induce all citizens to take a greater interest in Provincial affairs.

That no effective criticism can be offered to the general policy of Mr. Whitney's administration which has been for the best interests of the Province conserving its boundless resources for the whole people rather than for the few in the inner ring, giving New Ontario an opportunity to expand and grow which hereinfore it has lacked; dealing fairly in the redistribution of the seats in the Legislature and well defining the principle of county boundaries as heretofore expressed and understood.

That we admire the careful manner in which the finances of the Province have been administered, while giving the Province efficient service, yet the government has been careful that the people got their money's worth.

That we would particularly remember the administration of the Liquor License Act and recall that there has never been so effective an enforcement of that Act as has taken place under the Whitney administration and that the license question has been removed from the influence of party politics and this as to other questions the conservative administration has carried out its pledges to the people.

That the promises of Mr. Whitney, during the last general election to cheapen the price of school books; to return to the municipalities a greater share of the funds thereinfore received by the Province and to introduce a scheme of prison reform which would not only lead to the moral improvement of the unfortunate criminal, but also remove the objectionable competition of prison industries with honest labor to give greater attention to the needs of the Agricultural classes, have all been satisfactorily fulfilled.

That the progressive and popular program of administration now being formulated and promulgated by the Whitney administration deserves the support of every person who has the best interests of our Province at heart.

Three cheers for the Government, Premier Whitney, Mr. Carscallen and Mr. Ganey, brought to a close the most enthusiastic and harmonious convention held in Napanee in many years.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

AGONIZING PILES.

CURED BY ZAM-BUK.

Mr. F. Astridge, of 3 St. Paul Street, St. Catharines, Ont., says: "For 15 years I suffered untold agony with dreadful piles. I was so bad at times that no one has to endure only those who have suffered as I have done. The pain was so great at times I would almost scream. I went down in weight and had no appetite. I tried everything I heard of for piles, but got no relief. I went to several doctors, but they would give me little hope of ever getting rid of them and I finally gave up in despair. One day a friend gave me a sample of Zam-Buk salve and told me of someone who had been cured. I decided to try it, and the relief I got was astonishing. I bought a box, and the piles kept on diminishing and the pain was getting less. I used three boxes and am now completely cured. I wish I could have got Zam-Buk years ago, it would have saved me a great deal of misery. One thousand dollars would be a far too small sum to amount to give for such a cure as mine. I wish I could convince every sufferer of the value of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk cures eczema, burns, chapped hands, cold sores, itch, ulcers, eczema, ringworm sores, catarrh, piles, bad legs, abscesses, face sores, spring eruptions, and all skin diseases. It is also good for rheumatism, sciatica, etc., when well rubbed in. Of all druggists and stores, 50c., or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

MRS. ANNA CLARK.

On Thursday, 2d April, death removed from our midst one of the oldest residents of North Fredericksburgh, in the person of Mrs. Anna Clark, relict of the late James Clark, who predeceased her about twenty years ago. Deceased's maiden name was Anna Brower, and was born in Brooklyn, New York, on January 1st, 1818. Her parents removed to Fredericksburgh when she was but six years of age, and she has been a continuous resident of the township nearly ever since, with the exception of a few years which she spent visiting in Canada. Mrs. Clark was twice married, her first husband being Cox, whom she married in 1837, and by whom she had a family of eight children, who are all living, surviving her. They are Mrs. Charles Hyde, Ellis McCabe, Grey, and Mrs. Wm. Hoskin, Napanee. Mr. Cox died about seven children were born: James Clark, Prince Edward; Samuel Clark, Waterloo; Mrs. Wm. Bell, Napanee; Mrs. Richard Lindsay, Rochester, and Mrs. Henry Bleecker, Mrs. Miller, Trenton, and Mr. Geo. Clark, Fredericksburgh, all surviving.

Service was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Bailey, Sterling, on Sunday, 5th April, by Rev. Mr. Stanyer, and brought to Napanee and placed in the vault in Napanee Cemetery.

Deceased was a great favorite with all who knew her and will be sadly missed by her many friends and relatives.

"Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

The Particulars of a Remarkable Cure Told by a Presbyterian Clergyman—The Sufferer Brought Back From Death's Door.

St. Andrew's Manse,
Cardigan, P.E.I., Jan. 1908.

Though I have never been sick myself, I have had experience in using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I thought you might be glad to know of the wonderful cure they have wrought in Mr. Olding's case. Leaving a visit to my home in Metcalfe, Ont., some years ago, I was prevented to find our next door neighbor and friend, Michael Olding, very ill. He is not expected to live," my mother informed me, "and you must go over and see him as he is liable to pass away at any moment." Not expected to live; that was the opinion not only of the doctor of my father, but also of his wife and family as well. Upon visiting him I found the saddest evidence to confirm their opinion.

Mr. Olding had for years been afflicted with rheumatism and bronchitis, but now a complication of diseases was threatening his life. He had been confined to his bed for months and during that time had grown steadily, evidently glad to see me, he conversed with me for a short time, and then seemed to realize that it was the beginning of the end. He was then a growing weaker; his feet were swollen to twice their natural size, and his cough could not be heard. I prayed with him and commended his soul to eternity, and when I took his hand in parting it was the last time I expected to see him in the flesh.

Three years later while on another visit to my mother's Michael Olding was seemingly in better health than I had ever seen him, for, as I said, he had always been ailing. In short description he that asked his wife to get some Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They soon began to benefit him. His appetite and strength began to improve and to the astonishment of his friends he rapidly regained his health. Now, though the burden of well nigh four score years is upon him he is able to do a fair day's work and is in the enjoyment of good health. The sufferer has ceased to trouble him as in former years.

Mr. Olding himself as well as his neighbors and the writer of this letter confidently believe that his rescue from the very jaws of death was due entirely so miraculous to the use of the Pink Pills, according to the directions on the wrappers.

REV. DAWIN SMITH M.A.

Mr. Olding himself writes:—"I am glad Rev. Mr. Smith has written you about my wonderful cure for I cannot recommend them to friends who are ailing."

A FAMILY GATHERING.

A happy gathering of relatives assembled at the home of Mr. H. Abbott, on the evening of April 16th, to welcome home the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, who were married last month. The guests were laden with baskets containing many good things. During the evening the whole company, numbering about thirty, sat down to a well-filled table, in the centre of which was the bride's cake. The bride received many presents, all of which, in the course of the evening were duly admired by everyone. Before dispersing, the guests crowded in the parlor and sang the old singing of "God be with you till we meet again," after which Mr. I. B. Hoagland, one of the guests, offered up a prayer in which the members of the home were specially remembered. The company, thinking what a pleasant evening they had spent, left the house wishing many good wishes behind them.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your house. Every cough, from a simple cold only—you know what I mean—to the dreaded hour after the funeral bell tolls. Don't blindly suppose it with a dispelling poison. It's a strange how some things find root about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has ordinarily warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. Why? Because the strength of all such is dangerous. Read the label on the bottle of your Cough Mixture, if there's one! Read further than very reasonable. Then, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on it. Dr. Shoop's is the one name in the medicine, also it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is made to be by those that know it best, a truly reliable remedy for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and all your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the ingredients with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can be safe on the safe side by demanding

THE OPAL SERPENT

By FERGUS HUME.

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "The Mandarin," "Lady Jim," etc.

Copyright, 1907, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

Hurd nodded smilingly and continued. "One night—it was dark and stormy—Lady Rachel had a row royal with her father. Then she ran out of the hall saying her father would never see her alive again. She may have intended to commit suicide certainly or she may have intended to join her lover in London. But whatever she intended to do, the rain cooled her. She staggered into Christchurch and fell down insensible at the door of the Red Pig. Mrs. Krill brought her indoors and laid her on a bed."

"Did she know who the lady was?" Hurd shook his head. "She said in her evidence that she did not, but living in the neighborhood she certainly must have seen Lady Rachel sometimes. Krill was drunk as usual. He had been boasting all the day with a skipper of some craft at Southampton. He was good for nothing, so Mrs. Krill did everything. She declares that she went to bed at 11, leaving Lady Rachel sleeping."

"Did Lady Rachel recover her senses?"

"Yes—according to Mrs. Krill—but she refused to say who she was and merely stated that she would sleep at the Red Pig that night and would go on to London next morning. Mrs. Krill swore that Lady Rachel had no idea of committing suicide. Well, about midnight Mrs. Krill, who slept in one room with her daughter, was awakened by loud shouts. She sprang up her feet and hurried out; her daughter came also, as she had been awakened and was terrified. Mrs. Krill found that her husband was raving mad with drink and smashing the furniture in the room below. The skipper"—

"What was the skipper's name?"

"Jerwell—Jervey Jessop. Well, he also, rather drunk, was retiring to bed and stumbled by chance into Lady Rachel's room. He found her quite dead and shouted for assistance. The poor lady had a silk handkerchief she wore tied tightly round her throat and fastened to the bedpost. When Jessop saw this, he ran out of the inn in dismay. Mrs. Krill descended to give the alarm to her neighbors, but Krill struck her down and struck his daughter also, making her mouth bleed. An opal brooch that Lady Rachel wore was missing, but Mrs. Krill only knew of this next day. She was insensible from the blow given by Krill, and the daughter ran out to get assistance. The neighbors entered, Krill was gone, and, notwithstanding all the search made for him, he could not be found."

"And Jessop?"

"He turned up and explained that he had been frightened on finding the woman dead. He picked the brooch off him on his craft at Southampton, and he gave evidence. He said that Krill when drunk and like a demon, as Mrs. Krill told you, had left the room several times. The last time he came back, he and the skipper had a final drink, and then Jessop retired to find the body. It was supposed by the police that Krill had killed Lady Rachel for the sake of the brooch, which could not be discovered"—

"But the brooch"—

"Hold on. I know what you are about to say. We'll come to that shortly. Let me finish this yarn first. It was also argued that, from Lady Rachel's last words to her father and from the position of the body—tied by the neck to the bedpost—she had committed suicide. Mrs. Krill, as I said, declared the deceased lady never mentioned the idea of making away with herself. However, Krill's digital and the chance that, being drunk, he might have strangled the lady for the sake of the brooch while out of the room, made many think he was the culprit, especially as Jessop said that Krill had noticed the brooch and commented on the opals."

"What was the skipper's name?"

"He was a traveler in jewels once, according to his wife."

"Yes, and left that to turn innkeeper. Afterward he vanished, as I say, and became a pavestroker in Gwynne street. Well, the jury at the inquest could not agree. Some thought Lady Rachel had committed suicide and others that Krill had murdered her. Then the family didn't want a scandal, so in one way and another the matter was hushed up. The jury brought in a verdict of suicide by a majority of one, so you can see how equally they were divided. Lady Rachel's body was laid in the family vault, and nothing more was heard of Lemuel Krill."

"What did Mrs. Krill do?"

"She stopped on at the inn, as she told you. People were sorry for her and helped her, so she did very well. Mother and daughter have lived at the Red Pig all these years, highly respected, until they saw the handbills about Krill. Then the money was claimed, but in the circumstance of Lady Rachel's fate was so old nobody thought of mentioning it till this young lord did so to you, and I, as you see, have hunted out the details."

"What is your opinion, Hurd?" asked Paul, deeply interested.

"Oh, I think Krill murdered the woman and then cut to London. That accounts for his looking over his shoulder, etc."

"But how did he get money to start as a bookmaker? Promises are not leased in Gwynne street for nothing."

"Well, he might have got money on the brooch."

"No. The brooch was pawned by a mystical gentleman," Paul started up. "Captain Jessop, perhaps. You remember?" he said excitedly.

"Ah," said Hurd, pulling his pipe with satisfaction, "I see you understand. I mentioned that about the brooch to hear what you would say. Yes, Jessop must have pawned the brooch at Stowley, and it must have been Jessop who came with the note for the jewels to Pash."

"Ha," said Paul, walking excitedly about the room. "Then it would seem that Jessop and Krill were in league?"

"I think so," said Hurd, staring at the fire, "and yet I am not sure. Jessop may have found that Krill had killed the woman and then have made him give up the brooch, which he afterward pawned at Stowley, though why he should go near Mrs. Krill's old haunt I can't understand."

"Is Stowley near her old house?"

"Yes—in Buckinghamshire. However, they pawned the brooch I suspect Jessop lost sight of Krill till he must have come across him a few days before the crime. Then he must have made Krill sign the paper ordering the jewels to be given up by Pash so that he might get money."

"A kind of blackmail, in fact."

"Well," said Hurd doubtfully, "after all, Jessop might have killed Krill himself."

"But how did Jessop get the brooch?"

"Ah, that I can't tell you, unless Norman himself picked it up in the street. We must find these things out. I'm going to Christchurch to make inquiries. I'll let you know what I discover," and Hurd rose.

"One minute," said Paul hastily. "Do you think Miss Krill is the dead man's child?"

"Of course. She's as like my mother as two peas. What do you mean?"

Paul detailed what Sylvia and Deborah had said. "So if she is over thirty," said Bercot, "she can't be Krill's child or else she must have been born before Krill married his wife. In either case, she has no right to the name."

"It's strange," said Hurd musingly. "I'll have to look into that. Meanwhile, I've got plenty to do."

"There's another thing I have to say."

"You'll confuse me, Bercot. What is it?"

"The sugar and that hawker," and Paul related what Sylvia had told him about thuggism. Hurd sat down and stared. "That must be bosh," he said, looking at the sweet. "And yet it's mighty queer. I say," he took the three volumes, "will you lend me these?"

"Yes. Do carefully. They are not mine."

"I'll be careful. But I can't dip into them just yet, nor can I go into the Hindoo business, let alone this age of Miss Krill. The first thing I have to do is to go to Christchurch and see"—

"And see if Mrs. Krill was at home on the night of the 6th of July."

Hurd started. "Oh," said he dryly, "the night the crime was committed, you mean! Well, I didn't intend to look up that point, as I do not see how Mrs. Krill can be implicated. However, I'll take a note of that," and he did so, and then continued: "But I'm anxious to find Jessop. I shouldn't be at all surprised to learn that he committed the double crime."

"The double crime?"

"Yes. He might have strangled Lady Rachel and twenty years later have killed Krill. I can't be sure, but I think he is the guilty person."

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE next afternoon Hurd was on his way to the former's abode of Mrs. Krill. During the train journey he had taken notes and arranged what inquiries he should make. It struck him as strange according to his wife's statement that of her association with the Red Pig, considering the reputation of the place in connection with Lady Rachel Estafa's murder or suicide. It would have been better had Mrs. Krill changed her name by letters patent and taken a new life on her dead husband's money. The detective could not understand the reason for that unnecessary frankness.

Before leaving town he took the precaution to call on Pash and note down a description of the man who had pawned the brooch, but failed to obtain any mention of the matter. Pash was under the impression that the crime had been committed in Gwynne street, and the only person of a man (who had given no name) who had answered, with the broad chin of a bulldog, a clear-cut nose and eyes and reddish hair mixed with gray. He also had a scar running from his right temple to his mouth, and though this was partly concealed by a beard, yet it was distinctly visible. The man was dressed in blue serge and had on gloves, hands slightly clinched and rolled in his pockets. Hurd saw from these things down and had little doubt that he would recognize the man if he came across him. Connecting him with the individual who had pawned the brooch at Stowley, Hurd fancied he might be Jessop. He resolved to look for him in Southampton, as, judging from the evidence given at the inquest on Lady Rachel's remains, that was the port of call for the mariner.

At the station immediately before that of Christchurch, Hurd glanced at a telegram which he produced out of his pocketbook and then leaned out of the carriage window. A pretty, daintily dressed little woman saw him and at once entered the carriage with a coy laugh. She was Miss Aurora Qlan, and Paul would have been confidently astonished had he overheard her conversation with Mr. Hurd. For the detective and the actress had the compartment to themselves and talked freely.

"It's the safest place to talk in," explained Miss Qlan, producing a bag of chocolats and eating during the conversation. "Of course, I told the landlady at the Red Pig that my brother was coming down, so we can go there right enough. But walls have ears. I don't think railway carriages have, though, and we have much to say, Billy."

"Have you found out anything, Aurora?" asked Hurd.

Miss Qlan nodded. "A great deal considering I have been in the place only twenty-four hours. It's a good thing I'm out of an engagement, Billy, or I shouldn't have time to leave London or to look after that man Hay. I don't like him

OBITUARY.

Mrs. J. S. Lochhead, the subject of this brief sketch, formerly Miss Eliza Ann Baker, was born in Camden, on June 3d, 1833, and passed to her reward on Wednesday, April 8th, 1908. She was of U. E. Loyalist descent. When seventeen years of age the change took place which altered the whole current of her life and made her what her life proved to be, a benediction to her home and a blessing to the community. Our departed sister was a consistent and devoted member of the Methodist church for fifty-seven years, and a lover of the old fashioned class and prayer meetings.

On Sept. 30th, 1857, she was united in marriage to James S. Lochhead, of Centreville, where she resided the remainder of her life. The fruits of her godly life were best seen in her home, where for many years, she presided with wisdom, tact and self-poise. Her strong common sense and true maternal instincts under the direction and control of the divine spirit, made her a centre of influence, not only in her own family, but in the church, the village, and the community at large, where she was a veritable tower of strength in any time of trouble.

Her death came unexpectedly. Going out to mail a letter to one of her children, she slipped and fell, becoming unconscious almost immediately. She remained in that comatose state till evening, when she was not for God took her.

The funeral services were conducted at the house by her pastor, Rev. S. Allin, and were very impressive. What a contrast there was between gathering and the one on Sept. 30th of last year, when she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding.

Her husband, four daughters, Janet at home; Mrs. T. C. Craighead and Clara, of Vancouver, and Laura, of Peterborough, and three sons, Dr. J. A. of Hamilton, J. Mortimer, at home, and William, M.A., of Berlin, remain to mourn a loss indeed, but with a sure and certain hope of meeting on the other side of the river, where we shall see as we are seen and know as we are known.

A. S. KIMBERLY has full stock new Crawford, Red Cheeks, Alaska and Alpha Seed, Gold Vine Peas, Wilt Proof Seed Corn. All kinds Flour, Grain, Meats, Cracked Corn, Cracked Hay. It will pay you to ask my price on anyone. Cash or Trade. The 3S and The 3S. 14d Bridge st., Tweed, Ont.

LETTER FROM REV. JARVIS.

To the Members of the Congregation of the Church of S. Mary Magdalene, Napanee.

My dear Brethren.—The address, which was handed me to-day, signed by such a large proportion of the congregation, has touched me very deeply. I am well aware that many of the kind things you have said of me must not be taken too seriously, but the sincerity which prompted their utterance is too evident to be put down to mere complimentary commonplace.

I have made many mistakes, and it would not be hard to discover many incidents in my ministry amongst you that were worse than mistakes, but these you have said of over in silence; and I trust I may look for a like forgiveness when we shall all have to give an account of our stewardship at the last great day.

I thank you for your kindly expressions of feeling towards my wife and family, and beg to assure you that they are fully appreciated by them.

The very substantial cheque which accompanies the address is most acceptable. May I regard it as equivalent to a trip to the Old Country for Mrs. Jarvis and myself? We had hoped to be present at the great Pan-Anglican meetings in London next June. If other difficulties can be overcome, your generous gift will remove the last.

With prayers for God's richest blessings upon you as a congregation and upon each of you individually, Believe me, my dear Brethren,

Yours very faithfully in Christ.

HOUSE BURNED.

About 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon fire broke out in Mr. Levi Fish's frame house, South Napanee. The high wind fanned the fire which gutted the building before water could be got into play. The firemen were very prompt and soon had the engine on the shore of the river, pumping a good stream of water. The roof, back part and interior were badly burned. Willing hands assisted in removing the furniture and contents of the house, a great deal of which were ruined.

Chronicles of Napanee.

We publish herewith the fifth of a series of old letters. These were written by an "old resident," and published in The Beaver in 1873 and 1874. There are seven letters in the series, and the source from which we secure them is one of the many books belonging to the Historical Society.

LETTER V.

The first postmaster who was appointed at Napanee Mills received his commission from Daniel Sutherland, Esq., Deputy Postmaster General of British North America, in the year 1826. At this time the whole mail matter from Montreal to York (now Toronto) was carried on man's backs. It is true

Sow barley for profit

I won't pay you to grow what everybody grows,—get out of the rut this year and sow plenty of barley. Get 35 bushels an acre from ordinary land,—48 pound bushel,—brought 80c. spot cash readily last year,—ought to bring more than that this year. Barley is a ready-money crop that too few Canadian farmers grow. Try it—you'll be glad you did.

OLD PEOPLE OF NAPANEE NEED VINOL

It Strengthens and Vitalizes

With old age comes feebleness and loss of power; the organs act more slowly and less effectively; the blood is often sluggish and watery; digestion is weak and food is not assimilated at it used to be.

Vinol repairs worn tissues and checks the natural decline. It tones up the digestive organs, aids assimilation, makes rich, red blood, and strengthens every organ in the body. In this natural manner Vinol replaces weakness with strength.

Vinol is not a patent medicine but a delicious cod liver preparation which contains all the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil in a concentrated, tasteless form. Old people, invalids, the useless oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

If it because we know so well of what Vinol is made that we offer to return money if it fails to benefit. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

that old Mr. Andrew Loyst, whose posterity now live in Sheffield, was one of the couriers. He used to say that in his day he could "cut go" any horse, by striking his usual "dog trot." From 1820 to 1826 His usual "dog trot." From 1820 to 1826 His mail is made that we offer to return money small, so carried on horse-back, three times a week, between Kingston and York on a pair of drums of horses, the bridle was thrown over the horse's head and passed through a hook at the back of the saddle. Every letter was paid in spite of all comers until the mail was overhauled.

The mail service at this time was a Government grant of £400, to improve the road through "Indian Wood" to Belleville, and J. P. Roblin, Esq., after some delay completed a bridge near James Bowen's. John B. was then, as he has ever since been a most consistent "cold waterman," although engaged in the whiskish trade.

At the early days of Napanee Mills, salmon were very plentiful, and in their breeding season to ascend the falls, after the dams were built, were frequently shot by the sportsmen of that date, among whom was Joe Lowe, a black slave whom the late Richard Lowe, Esq., of Portsmouth, brought with him from the United States. There is no more shooting or fishing for poor old Joe. He has gone where the good people go. He was a great favorite among the children, and a fine old negro, was cared for to the last by Mrs. Blanchard, of Picton.

Among old papers we have come across a bill head of Jeremiah Addington, of 1830, when the election was held at the cross roads between Fralick's and the Bellevue and Sidney road, and lasted for four days. The candidates were Marshall S. Bidwell, Barker Primy, and Samuel Casey. The election commenced at 8 a.m., and closed at 5 p.m., each day. It closed on the morning of the 4th day by the retirement of the third candidate. R. Hamilton's store, Port Hope, W. Perry, Esq., of Tamworth, W. J. Fairfield, Town of Bath, Asa and Amos Scharmshorn and John Kitchen, offering to build market house, May 23d, 1855.

Among the first merchants who flourished in Napanee, I might mention Richard Hudgings, who kept a general store. His Store, and the old white house near by, which Hudgings built in 1827, and which was father of the late Thomas Robinson, Police Magistrate of Kingston.

In 1837 Allan McPherson took the old Red Store, and in '71 he took in McGregor as partner until 1826. Mac. afterwards ran the store on his own account. Frederick Hosford was for many years clerk for him, and he died and was killed the McPherson family 30 acres of land, upon which Upper Napanee now stands. He was a very old gentleman, and died a bachelor.

About the year 1831, R. Ham, McNeil and McHenry (father of Donald C.) and Thomas Ramsay, opened stores in Clark's block, they others enlarged in mechandise, very few of whom, however, made fortunes.

After the old mill was given up by Mac. it was taken by an Englishman from Newfoundland, whose name I forget. It was given to some as a reason for his unpopularity, that his legs were too fat; by others that he paid too much rent; and by others that there was too little flour in his bags. He gave us a military dinner given in Shorey's best style, the Colonel being present, all were as happy as "good beer could make them by the aspersion of the old dog." One of the officers who was always right (T. Wright), volunteered the song, "There was a miller lived in one town," who had a wife named Jane, who had a mother named Joan, who had a cat named Jenny, that in the absence of the husband of Jane, the mother of Joan, and the cat Jenny, a great rascal prowled about the premises, and that Miss Jane, the small maid on the other side of the river, was in the habit of pet and pound barley and split peas until they resembled a dog, and that Jenny had passed spring water was attached into "her waters."

Colonel Lowe was among the first to start a failing, carding, and cloth dressing factory, near where Perry's factory now is. Among his employees was his imported slave Joe, and the world-renowned Tobias Brush, one of a very large family of colour, who early located at Hinch's bridge, on Newburgh road. Of this family there is but one survivor, Hiram, the youngest. Poor Tobe, although he lived until his half way, while his skin never faded. He was drowned in Napanee River a few years since. Both young and old will remember Tobe.

Thomas Dier, a dyer by trade, and who died a bachelor, succeeded Mr. Lowe in the business, who was followed by C. J. Cramer, who also built a distillery and a woolen factory on the site now occupied by James Perry. About the year 1840 Peter Goodmurphy erected a carding mill, which was driven by a large inclined horizontal wheel, with horse power.

Levi W. Nichols, Esq., now of Richmond, in the thirties, built a foundery on Mill Street, near Dundas, which Capt. John Herring succeeded him in the business.

John McGill Detlor erected a brewery on West street, which was afterwards run by Alex. Margach, and is now converted into a dwelling. Many of the brewers have passed away, and the building still stands, where Warner's store house is erected.

Mr. Johnson was the first to attend to the "understandings" of the inhabitants. He had a small tannery and shoe shop, west of Napanee, near New Dundee. He was followed by Robert McGuinness. The principal part of shoemaker's work was done by tramps, who carried their kits, stopped when and where required, leaving from the house, and re-entering with them a supply of the material required.

About the first tailoring establishment in the place, was Edward Matthews "tailor sailor" shop over old Mr. Birney's dwelling. He was succeeded by the late Edward Jenkins, of Richmond, who built in Clarksville. He was a wee bit and up to time. Next came R. Foot of Sand Hill, who, while he lived was ever ready for his customers. Then came Robt. Bell who for a long time had a good run.

As rubbed makers and millwrights we had Wm. G. P. Bartels, who first opened business in a log building near Farrell-ton's burying ground, and had a place for an undertaker. He also made skiffs and, for those days, very fine ones, one of which was raffled at the old Red Tavern in 1825. Bradford Tuttle succeeded Bartels as rubbed maker and undertaker, and for many years our respected and esteemed citizen, Mr. C. McKeen, carried on the same business, but has some time since retired.

John Hawley, Esq., of Richmond, who will be 89 years of age on the 4th of March next, remembers many of the incidents previously narrated, and has supplied when old Mr. Kesler started his tripe hammer, and resided driving cattle for eighteen yoke of oxen which were employed in drawing a large oak stick of timber for the trip-hammer shaft for the latter. He also remembers going to mill on horseback frequently, and turning to crank to bolt his own grist. Father Hawley is still smart, and can see to read the smallest type without glasses. He has gained his "second sight" a few years after the late Dr. Dafoe, of Richmond, Dr. Sibbe, and has read the New Testament through right from Genesis to Revelation at several times.

Old Mr. George Schryver was born near Napanee in 1793, is now living in Napanee, and has resided in the same immediate neighborhood all the early times. He also married a sister of the late Hezekiah Wills. Mr. Schryver has been a widower for about eighteen years of age, and is now employed in the mill and store of his son Perry's plaster mill now stands, where he resided. The latter was a very fleshy old gentleman Tuttle, in the distilling business. George, however, never followed the business. He remembers old Mr. and Mrs. Keeler. The latter was a very fleshy old lady, who used frequently to say that "the more she ate, the less she got," and that "the older she got, the better she felt." About the year 1820 Methodist preaching was not looked for by the early settlers. Sunday was a day of rest, and the Sabbath was observed. Occasionally a Presbyterian clergyman could be got, and then together with a few gentlemen, Messrs. Hawley, Mr. McDowal, of Bath, but when the time for the marriage came, the Minister was sick and could not tie the knot. So he sent a certificate by Dr. Ash, of Bath, and Squire Wills, Justice of the Peace, who made them one forth, which at that time was legal.

SIMPLE HOME RECIPE.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is roun-dered by an eminent authority, who writes us in New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, but we who have used it, will say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the delicate urinary organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

If druggist here at home when asked should not have the ingredients supply the ingredients "he mix the prescription for readers, also recommends it as harmless.

DEALING WITH CRIME.

Ontario's Experiment a Step in the Right Direction.

From "Bystander's" department of comment in the St. John (N.B.) News is an article which follows is reproduced. It is timely and very pertinent. The writer is a resident of Montreal, and his comparisons between the two component, so to speak, of Ontario and Quebec, are always of interest. He has invited attention to many points at which the two provinces differ—and all, of course, to the credit of the differences in the character of two peoples. And Ontario has not suffered by comparison. In the present article "Bystander" draws attention to another matter—the question of dealing with crime and criminals—in regard to which there is a divergence of feeling and inclination in Quebec and in Ontario. He also makes some thoughtful comment on the tendency of human nature in general to seize upon "an incident rather than a philosophy," in its consideration of crime. He says:

Ontario is about to try the experiment of reforming rather than merely punishing its criminals. In the first place, it is going to abolish the word "prison." This itself is a fine step in advance.

Then it will turn the prisoners into the open air. It will put them on the land. It will give them honest work to do, in the open, in the face of nature. There will, of course, be supervision and discipline, but it is confidently expected, as well it might, that the criminal will be redeemed to citizenship by this method of taking him by putting him in a dark cell, and leaving him there to eat his heart out.

This action of Ontario deserves to be blazoned abroad. The experiment which the province is putting its hand to, has been tried in the United States, with conspicuous success. There are many pious souls who consider that the only way to deal with crime is for society to commit crime too.

We all know the excellent, churchgoing people who cry softly over the tender pages of the sermon, but who, at the same time, insist that the criminal be rigorously punished, and banished from society and cut bread and water, upon the principle, one supposes, that if you only make the prisoner wretched, through treating him as a brute beast, he will feel a saving remorse. When the poor woman was taken in a wrongful act Christ did not say: "Put her in a dark cell: shut her out from the light of heaven: lash her on the back; make her atone for her sin by brooding over it in the long silence."

"Neither do I condemn thee; go in peace and sin no more," was the gentle word of the Master, who knew that the only reformative agency which can be applied to any human ill is—Love.

Good people talk about saving society; about the need of severity; about the badness of the criminal; like the jail or the penitentiary ever reformed any creature? The records loudly say—"no."

The world is beginning to see the fatal contradiction between the practice and the teaching of Christianity. The chief essence of Christianity is forgiveness, but it is a so-called Christian society which says to the criminal, "We cannot and will not forgive you, no recovery, no redemption; nothing but punishment.

Before we can show logic, not to speak of mercy, we must find out why the criminal is in the dock. If we examined carefully we might discover that we had our part in putting him there—we who represent society—that society which imposes conditions of life so intolerable for millions that vice and crime are inevitable.

We sometimes poke cheap fun in the papers at Ontario because it is more strenuous than it is graceful—supposedly; but this great Province of Confederation stands for large, hopeful things, making for the general advance. Quebec might well copy Ontario, for in our province we have undoubtedly applied to our criminal administration as in other relations of life.

That languid, lifeless feeling that comes with spring and early summer, can be driven away easily and pleasantly by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best spring medicine.

MADE MILLIONS IN BUTTONS.

Gustavus Wittstein, of East Hampton, Mass., made millions in buttons. He had great difficulty in making them look like pearl and hard rubber, but in spite of those admirable traits found that people preferred to buy a button that looked like white stockings for the nobility, and so he made them. They were durable and dimensionless. His wife brought up a family of children and greatly increased her husband's fortune by covering by hand the wooden buttons of the time, while engaged in the work. The possibility of an improved button suggested itself. The couple put their heads together until they invented and perfected the machinery for making pearl shanks. Out of the early factory of the kind in America, and at one time it was said that Wittstein was making half the buttons in the world. He was 87 years old when he died, and his fortune—made from buttons—was estimated by his friends eight to ten millions of dollars.

The invention of envelopes is attributed to E. H. Brewer, a stationer and bookseller, who lived in Brighton, England. He had small sheets of paper made for him on account of their size, were inconvenient for writing addresses. In order to remedy the defect he put the sheets together and when he died, and his fortune—made from buttons—was estimated by his friends eight to ten millions of dollars.

WHAT CAUSES INDIGESTION?

TO BE CURED, WEAKNESS OF STOMACH MUSCLES MUST BE OVERCOME.

The chief cause of indigestion is the lack of gastric juice.

By taking Moozoa, stomach tablets the stomach muscles will be stimulated and strengthened and the flow of gastric juice will be increased. Moozoa does not do the stomach's work, it makes the stomach strong enough to do it. In this way the trouble is completely cured and there is no further need of medicine. No matter how severe a case of stomach trouble you have Moozoa will cure it. By strengthening the whole digestive system, and you will soon find that both stomach and bowels do their work as they should.

T. B. Wallace sells Moozoa in 50-cent packages, and guarantees to refund the money if the remedy does not give complete satisfaction.

A MAGIC PILL.—Dyspepsia is a fee with which men are constantly grappling but cannot exterminate. Indigestion and its all attendants are vanquished, and to all appearance in another direction, when the digestive apparatus is as delicate and mechanism of a watch or scientific instrument in which even a breath of air will make a variation. With such persons disorders of the stomach ensue from the most trivial causes and cause much suffering. To these Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are recommended as mild and sure.

SILLSVILLE.

The Epworth League met in the church on Friday evening (Good Friday) at 7.30 o'clock. The programme was under the literary department, and the Committee prepared an interesting time. "Hymn writers"—Sketches of the lives of the sainted sages—Thos. Wesley, Isaac Watts, Fanny J. Crosby, etc., were given, and some of their hymns were sung in solo, duet and congregation.—The weekly league meetings have since the middle of February been held at the homes of the members, and have been well attended. Two weeks ago the Social committee took charge and after intellectual, social games were enjoyed, refreshments were served, thus providing a pleasant and profitable evening, and ensuring speeches, readings and good singing were also promptly given by the young men.—Now, dear readers, you who may have concluded that our Epworth League had died, not hearing from us of late, will please understand that we are alive and working in all departments. In fact since our organization in 1893 between fourteen and fifteen years ago, with but very few exceptions, a weekly prayer meeting has been held. The Missionary Department receives special attention, our rule being to hold a monthly missionary meeting, twelve months in the year. The givings toward the Forward Movement are great in advance this year, and we feel sure we must give much credit to our District Missionary President, Mr. J. M. Purves, of Newburgh, who so kindly came to us on the 17th of January, and gave us one of his rousing addresses. Our Missionary committee feels very much in debt to him for his able assistance. This is not the first visit he has paid our league, but we trust it will not be his last.—Our pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Boyce, are always ready to give any possible assistance to our Society, and therefore they come to our meetings frequently.—The Floral committee decorated the church for the aforesaid Sunday School and Easter services on Sunday. There was also special singing.

THE DEMON, DYSPEPSIA. — In olden times it was a popular belief that demons moved invisibly through the air, always seeking to enter into men and trouble them. At the present day the demons, Dyspepsia, are at large in the same way, seeking habitation in those who by careless or unwise living invite him. And once he enters a victim he is hard to dislodge. He has a way also so possessed should know that a valiant foe is ever ready for the fray with the unseen foe in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are ever ready for the fight.

Town Visitor (to small applicant for a holiday)—What in your father?

Small Applicant—E's me father.

T. V.—Yes, but what is he?

S. A.—Oh, 'e's me stepfather.

T. V.—Yes, yes. But what does he do? Does he mend chimneys or drive 'buses, or what?

S. A.—(With a dawning light of comprehension)—O-o-w! No, 'e ain't done nothin' since we've 'ad 'im.

Burns around again, after a severe illness.—Mr. Irvine Oderkirk is now leaving for New Ontario in the near future.—Mr. Sam. Morrison spent Sunday evening at Mr. G. Black's.—Misses James Black and George Spratt took a flying trip to Tamworth on Saturday evening.—William Carroll at Richard Carroll's, on Sunday afternoon.

TRAFFORD.

(For last week.)

We once more hear the sound of wheels which reminds us of summer again. RUSSELL—PRINGLE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Lee, 588 Jessie avenue, Winnipeg, Man., when their niece, Miss Ethel Beatrice Pringle, became the wife of Andrew Sharpe Russell, of this city, the knot being tied by the Rev. Hiram Hull. The bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father. She was prettily attired in a gown of cream silk voile over taffeta, daintily trimmed with silk lace and applique, and carried a large bouquet of bridal roses and maiden hair fern. She was attended by her sister, Miss Pearle Pringle, who looked very pretty in a gown of silk mull, and carried a bouquet of roses. The groom was assisted by his brother, Alex. Russell. Miss Edna Robertson played the wedding march. The young couple were recipients of many beautiful presents.

HAY BAY FERRY.

The Citizens' Committee who were elected for this season, have had to make some repairs and improvements, in order to put the boat in first class shape to run. They have added new treads, new steel axles for new wheels, and general overhaulin, but when done it will then be better than ever, and with an experienced man with heavy team, will be able to take care of any load at all kinds of weather. This expenditure the Committee will make personal canvass for subscriptions to pay for same, and trust that they will be met with liberal amounts. When we say liberal, we only ask for enough to meet expenses, but it takes time to explain to each of the subscribers, and every citizen is as much interested as the members of the committee. They have no more time to spare than any others. All the conditions the boat was in this spring, what funds had been, put into it would have been wasted, if not put in a condition to run, to enable us to get what trade belongs to us. We hope every merchant and every citizen interested in our town will come out and help to put this enterprise out of debt.

EASTER SERVICES —IN THE— CHURCHES

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

In the services of the Presbyterian church an effort was made to harmonize everything with the spirit of the day. The pulpit was surrounded with Easter lilies, ferns and other potted plants, tastefully arranged. The choir music rendered for the occasion was ably rendered by the choir. In the morning the pastor spoke from the text, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God". Col. 3, 1. He emphasized the thought that it is the privilege of the Christian to live now and here in the "power of an endless life," that life which Christ Himself manifested both before and after His resurrection.

WESTERN METHODIST CHURCH.

The Easter services in the Western Methodist church last Sunday were very inspiring. In the morning the young people connected with the Sunday School took a very prominent part, assisting in singing, reading and reciting. Miss Rosevear, of Kingston, sang in a solo to the delight of her audience. The pastor gave an address, basing his remarks on St. Matt. 28 chap. 7 verse, "And go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead." The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Several lilies were sent in, in memory of some of the members of the school who had died during the past year. In the evening Miss Rosevear assisted the choir and sang two solos. The congregations were large.

CHURCH OF S. MARY MAGDALENE.

The services on Easter Sunday were marked with a feeling of interest and spirit to harmonize fully with the Queen of Festivals, there being a large body of communicants attending the early morning and eleven o'clock services.

The morning service* were conducted by the Rev Canon Jarvis, who preached from "If ye then be risen with Christ seek ye the things that are above." The music consisted of Jackson's "Te Deum" and anthem, "Why seek ye the living among the dead."

In the evening the Rector gave his farewell sermon to a large congregation, dwelling on the various milestones, mark ing the advance the church has made during his stay of nineteen years in this parish, wishing the new Year all success. He also left his blessing with the parish. A full choral Evensong Tallis in F—"Bunnetts" magnificat and nunc Dimittus—was rendered by the choir, together with the anthem the text was used in the morning. The "Resurrection Morn" was well rendered by Miss Herring during the offertory. The altar decorations were simple yet appropriate, consisting mostly of the Easter lily.

TRINITY CHURCH.

The services in Trinity church on Sunday last were of great interest and profit The decorations were most simple and appropriate, consisting simply of Easter lilies upon the Communion table. The music was suited to the day, very choice anthems being rendered at both services. Large congregations gathered. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. H. Embley, who preached in the morning from Mark 16, 6, "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth which was crucified. He is risen; he is not here. Behold the place where they laid Him."

In the evening the events of the passion week were passed in review and lessons of self conquest and allegiance to duty were enforced.

Words of praise were spoken by the Pastor on behalf of the management of the church to those who had contributed to its financial success during the year, and notification of the keeping of another ecclesiastical year was made, with the request for increased liberality. Trinity Church has responded generously to the appeals which have been made to the liberality of the congregation.

On Sunday evening under the auspices of the Mission Band a concert was given in the beautiful Sunday School hall of the church. Members of the Band contributed solos, recitations and choruses. The story of the Resurrection was the subject running through the entire programme.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH.

The Easter services in St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, were more than ordinarily filled to the grand feast of Easter, which follows the penitential season of Lent, when with the solemn Mass for the doctrine of immortality is preached throughout Christendom, and the resurrection of our Lord and Saviour is duly commemorated and venerated.

A special High Mass was sung at 10.30 a.m., by Rev. Father O'Connor, in which he was ably assisted by the choir, who had spent a large amount of time in careful training in preparation for the services.

The Gospel of the day afforded the Pastor a subject for an address, which was both eloquent and logical, as well as full of the highest teaching to his flock.

The decorations, which are always in charge of the ladies of the Altar Society showed the genius of the fair sex, and Creamy, whose duty it was to decorate the sanctuary for Easter, says the side altars were decorated, the one on the Gospel side in red and the one on the Epistle side in pink with appropriate flowers and lights to correspond, while the main altar was profusely covered with that emblem of the Resurrection, the Easter lily, and the effect was intensified by the white lights of the altar.

High Vespers was sung in the evening by the choir and in the twilight of the evening, when all the sanctuary lights were lighted, the ethereal and aesthetic effect of the decorations was very much intensified so that every person present went away with the feeling that the Easter services had been, as far as possible, appropriate to the season.

The Easter offering was, as usual, large and generous.

Your very dress expresses them —not completely, of course, but at least in part.

Isn't there a striking symbolism in your discarding that which has lost its newness and freshness— and in taking on a brighter, fresher and more befitting garment, that you may be in harmony with the new life about— and be a part of it. THE LATE JOHN GIBBARD, ESQ.

Death of John Gibbard, Esq.

Last Monday morning brought to a close the life of another aged citizen, in the person of John Gibbard, Esq., at the ripe old age of 94 years, 8 months and 13 days.

The subject of this sketch was born at Milton on August 6th, 1813, and was of English-Scotch descent. He remained at home with his mother until 18 years of age, obtaining such an early education as our country schools could then afford.

His first earnings, on a farm, the result of much hard work, amounted to $4.00 a month and board.

The next year he received $5 per month. He then apprenticed himself to a carpenter and joiner, with whom he worked for the next three years at $60.00 per year. He then branched out for himself and for the next two or three years was engaged in other parts of the country.

It was on the last day of August, 1839, that he came to Napanee, and has been one of our well-known and enterprising citizens ever since. A small circumstance appears to have turned the scale about his residence here. He had been offered better terms by a builder in Perry county, but was induced to go there. He walked to the steamboat landing, where Deseronto now stands, to meet his prospective employer, but found the boat had just gone, and there would be no other chance for a day or so. Disappointed, he retraced his steps to Napanee, engaged here, and had ever since loyally linked his destinies to those of this town. It was an important thing for Napanee that his lot was cast here.

His first job here was repairing the doors and windows in the new stone block in the Illewett building, now occupied by Mr. J. G. Oliver and Mrs. Knight. It was the first stone building erected in Napanee, and is one of the oldest standing in the town.

Some of Mr. Gibbard's remembrances of Napanee as it was when he first settled here, will make interesting reading. Then but a small and straggling village of a few wooden buildings. The only building north of Bridge street was the residence of Mr. John Benson, where Mr. John Thomson is now a fine residence now stands. There was also a house on the corner where the Market Hotel sheds now stand. North and west of these places were wet and swampy. Where Mr. W. T. Gibbard's residence now stands was a swamp, almost impassable. Dundas st., west of Mr. John Lowry's and Mrs. Davey's corners, was low and swampy. There were several small stores, but none of them occupied more than one small room.

There were no churches in Napanee then, or for some years after. A small square schoolhouse stood under the shadow of the large elm tree just where the embankment of the G. T. R. bridge now is on Dundas street. There the Rev. Salteru Givens held forth. The church now known as England missionary, and young John A. Macdonald (afterwards Sir John) was a member of the choir. Mr. Gibbard saw the building of the first Church of England here, east of the Court House; he also assisted in the building of the old brick Wesleyan Church, on the land of its successor, the Eastern Methodist church, where the latter's new one stands; he also took a prominent part in building the old White church, and its successor, the present Western Methodist church. He is the last one of the original official board. He well remembered when, in this county, there were more taverns than churches and schools, and more distilleries than mills, but as a temperance and church worker he has well done his share in bringing about a very important reformation.

He was converted at a Methodist protracted meeting in 1837, and has been a consistent and faithful member of the Methodist church ever since. That decoming action ever stands to him in this life. He was also for many years a member of the Napanee Board and Town Council. Mr. Gibbard has always been a supporter of the Liberal party, and though never a strong partisan, has always been there to lead him."

Mr. Gibbard's business here in a very safe and modest way, and he also took a prominent part in the agitation in business affairs.

For some years he owned and sold nearly all the farming mills in this County, and then followed contracting, and finally retired from business. He was really the founder of the present Knitting Furniture Co., limited, which has become the largest concern of the kind of any in that line now in Ontario. There was also a large planing mill and sash factory burned out. First in 1854, when nearly the whole of the north side was burned; then in 1862, when all was destroyed, including Napanee's first town council chamber and market house. Again in 1873, the loss was very severe, and Mr. Gibbard had grown old; it was, therefore, decided to form a joint stock company, starting on a larger scale, with his only son, Mr. W. T. Gibbard, as business manager. Napanee to-day owes much of its present business standing and prosperity to the late John Gibbard, Esq.

His many friends throughout the town, county and province will learn with regret of his death. He leaves an only son, Mr. W. T. Gibbard, to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate father. The funeral took place from his late residence on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. A private service was held at the house for the family, after which service was held in the Western Methodist church, of which deceased had been a life-long member. Rev. James Gardner, of Belleville, ninety years of age, a boyhood friend of Mr. Gibbard's, briefly addressed those assembled, and ex-cabinet ministers offered prayers. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Fisher, sang "Turner's lovely setting to "Rock of Ages," with beautiful expression, and at the close of the services the male voice quartette, "Still, Still with Thee" was most tastefully rendered by Messrs. Carlson, Black, Fisher and Graham.

The employees of the factory had full charge of the funeral and turned out in a body. Beautiful wreaths were presented by the employees and the Western Methodist church.

The remains were placed in the Western vault to await interment in the family plot there.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and persevere your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually when it reaches you is of inferior quality. The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy Western mill stuff, and send it right away, and offers you as inducement for the same money that you can get the purchase price refunded, if not satisfactory, if guaranteed.

Choice Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

A full stock of the best Anthracite Coal; also in the matter of the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

COUNTY ROADS.

When in Toronto last week Mr. T. G. Carwallen, M. L. A., accompanied by Mr. W. G. Wilson, waited upon Mr. Campell, Commissioner of Highways, and discussed with him the question of additions being made to the "County Road mileage." Mr. Campbell said if the Council passed a By-law adding to the County Road mileage, the By-law to become effective would require the signature of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, but he said that if the By-law was reasonable he would urge its signing. The Department would consent to the addition of a few miles in certain sections when good cause was shown for such addition, but not to an extensive addition unless the County Road system as an originally designated was complete or nearing completion. The matter is now for the County Councillors and rests with them, and if the majority therefrom desire extensions and pass such by-laws and allege fair reasons for same, it will doubtless receive the Government's approval. No one can do anything until the County Councillors themselves make up their minds to act.

MAY.

Across the world the tides of old romance
Have borne again white cloud-fleets of the May;
All round their pole the guileless children dance
Close not the windows of your heart to-day!

Close not the chambers of remembered dreams
Seal not the gardens where love bloomed of old,
But open to the crossing forest-streams
Where Spring has touched her wild wood harp of gold.

The sunset's kiss will crimson every rose;
The locust buds have claimed each loving bee;
Close not your heart to-day, for no one knows
What May will bring of hope and melody.

QUITE RIGHT, TOO!

The people of Napanee boasted a street car in Kingston one day last week, and they were right. But one thing in a certain train left the city deficient. To his utter surprise, the conductor could give no information on the time of arrival. As the Napanee man is a well-known traveller, he thought it very strange that a street car man could not give a passenger information about train times, and thought it was up to the road officials to see that schedules were placed in the cars for the information of the travelling public.

That the work of the Army deserves the support of the public is now fully admitted, although it is not very long ago since an entirely different view was taken of its methods. It is interesting to note that the work of this marvelous Organization continues to make the most successful progress. We trust that our readers will support the effort to the best of their ability. ANAEMIA OR POOR BLOOD.

Don't Wait Too Long to Correct It—As It Often Leads to Something Worse

Anaemia is a defective state of the blood in which there is a great either in quantity or quality of the little red corpuscles.

It may result from any cause that serves to deplete the general system and is recognized by a pale and haggard face — colorless lips, poor circulation and short breath, and the system is at such a low ebb that more serious diseases are easily contracted.

Anaemic people should eat plenty of red, ripe, fruit, nourishing food, good butter and cream and wholesome bread, and as for a medicine nothing excels the delicious Cod liver preparation, Vinol, which is made by a scientific extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate-of-iron, which is a needful constituent for the blood, all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil. Vinol is not a patent medicine, you know what you are taking as all it contains is named on the label.

Any anaemic or run-down person in Napanee who will follow the above suggestions is sure to gain in health and strength in a short time. We will return your money if Vinol fails to give satisfaction. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

On Tuesday evening, 21st April, the friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Hewitt, Empey Hill, assembled to the number of fifty or sixty, to spend a social evening with them, before their departure for Kingsford, where they intend to reside in the future. Also presenting them with the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt and family,—

Dear friends,—We have gathered together to-night to spend one more social evening with you, and give you a farewell, and you leave our immediate neighborhood for your new home. You can be assured that you will still hold a warm place in our hearts, and that we appreciate your worth as a neighbor and friend. Then hoping and trusting that your removal from among us, but we trust that in your new home you may long among you, grow friends and acquaintances you will still keep in a few of your old friends at Empey Hill.

We have always found you willing to help in every cause, especially to lead a hand to the poor. And we pray that God's richest blessings may follow you in all the way through life, and when you shall have crossed the River of Death with morning and dawning home, we will all meet in that home above, where parting is no more.

And now, Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt, we ask of you to accept this address, and the spoons and dozen three china plates, and China tea set, which we have purchased for you, as a slight token of our respect, and as a slight token of our regard, and we wish you every success in life, and long years of happiness in your new home in the west.

Signed in behalf of your friends.

TO PREVENT A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills When the First Symptoms Are Noticed and Save Yourself Much Suffering.

Are you troubled with pallor, loss of appetite, lack of ambition, weakness of body, shortness of breath after slight exertion, and a peculiar skipping of the heart beat, poor digestion, cold hands or feet, or a feeling of weariness and fatigue? Do not make the mistake of thinking these are diseases in themselves, but be satisfied with relief for the time being.

This is the way that the nerves give warning that they are breaking down. Nervous prostration from nervous impure and thin and cannot carry enough nourishment to the nerves to keep them healthy and able to do their work.

There is only one way to prevent the final breakdown of the nerves and the many other serious diseases which follow, and that is to make rich, red and pure, healthy blood. What is the best medicine that can do this promptly and effectively. Every dose of this medicine helps to make new blood and strengthen the weak or worn-out nerves.

Mrs. Arad Taylor, Fredericton, N.B., was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after suffering from nervous breakdown, which resulted in partial paralysis of the face. She says: "The trouble came on quite gradually, and at the outset I did not pay much attention to it. Then it grew more serious, and there was a general breakdown of the nervous system, which was followed by partial paralysis of the face, one side being completely drawn out of shape. I was under a doctor's care for a couple of months, and one treatment after another was tried without benefit. By this time I was confined to my room, and the doctor told me he could not cure me. Almost in despair I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The improvement was slow, but the building up of a run down nervous system naturally is slow. Slowly but surely this medicine did its work, and after a time I was able to again come down stairs. From that on the improvement was much more rapid and now I am as well as ever I was in the 11th hour, and I look upon my cure as almost miraculous. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me what the best medical treatment failed to do—they brought me back good health.

It is the blood building, nerve restoring power in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that enable them to cure such troubles as anaemia, rheumatism, the after effects of la grippe, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, partial paralysis and the many ailments of girlhood and womanhood. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent post paid at 50c. a box or boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUNSET EXPRESS S.P.R.R. EN ROUTE TO THE CITY OF MEXICO.

Mexico, April 20th, 1908.

Dear Beaver,—I, accompanied by my wife and eldest daughter, Minnie Georgy, am en route to the City of Mexico and Oaxaco, which latter city is about 250 miles south of the City of Mexico. Yesterday, at 1 a.m., with my two sons-in-law, Robert Mills and William H. George, and others, I left Monterey, its interests and mines. We left Oakland on Saturday, the 11th inst., and arrived at Galveston Beach on Sunday, the 12th inst., where we remained until 10 a.m. to-day, in order to witness the arrival of our big fleet of 16 war ships.

I can assure you their entrance into Long Island Sound was a fine one, directly following the other was a grand sight, and the thousands of our citizens showed their loyalty by the tremendous hurrahs for the country of their birth, and others for the country of their adoption, mingled among the numbers. I am fully persuaded that the American men and women when they try, can make as much noise as the inhabitants of Canada, but they are no more sweeter or harmonious or discordant.

On Sunday, the 12th inst., I attended the First M. E. church at Long Beach, and listened to a grand sermon delivered by Rev. Will. Belts, the son of our tour and my old friend, Rev. L. A. Belts, on the Resurrection. The church was literally packed and jammed, and many could not obtain seats. Mr. Belts' sermon was impressive, very pathetic and eloquent, and I believe from extensive travelling, and having heard so many eloquent speakers, preachers and others, I am prepared to say as to the merits of a good sermon, and I was much pleased that our young Canadian preacher could keep an audience so well bound by his eloquence for about 35 minutes.

I think too many of our preachers talk too long, I heard the Rev. Mr. Spencer preach a great sermon in London. We were sorry when he finished. It was about 40 minutes long. I have heard one common place preachers talk about 90 minutes, and I regretted I was not near the door, so I could slip out without being seen.

Will. A. Belts if his health holds out will be one of the greatest preachers on the Pacific coast, and his father, Dear, Belts, ought, and no doubt will, feel proud of his boy. I think Will's mother has a great deal to do with the growth of this intellectual and talented preacher, and I believe he was a bright young girl. She was always good, kind and loved boys to be natural in our habits.

We expect to arrive in the City of Mexico on Friday morning. After resting there a couple of days I will go to Oaxaco and visit our sisters, Mrs. Williams and Minnie will remain in Mexico City with Mrs. Kindly's people.

I am much interested in the work of your young friend, Will. Ward, editor of your Historical Society. I hope to be able after I return home to add a few pages in reviewing the past in old Lennox and Addington, which will prove very many happy and pleasant days. Nowhere have I had more enjoyment from my first recollections of your County.

I will endeavor to write you while in Mexico. Kindly remember me if you callers a hand-shaker, and say this to Editor Ward and friend W. A. Ferguson, I am writing this letter on the train, travelling southward at 60 miles an hour, and I hope you can read my writing. A good many of your citizens say I am a pensioner.

I am respectfully yours,
W. S. WILLIAMS.

On Tuesday evening, 28th April, there was at a reception in St. Mark's church, Desoronto, when the Rev. Rural Dean Kingstone made his farewell sermon, during his short stay in connection with the Desoronto parish. Before Mr. Dibb made many friends, and both in his congregation and outside of it, all were sorry to see him leave. He has gone to Mr. Dibb referred to the too short time he had been in the parish, and which he was called elsewhere he would remember with pleasure that he had so many friends among them. He exhorted his hearers to remember the Gospel he had preached to them, and hoped that never he would weary in the doing of good. He would have them all follow in the footsteps of Paul the Apostle, to whom obstacles were incidents to do good, and which he could otherwise be accomplished. Through out a sermon full of good advice the speaker kept in mind the sentiment of binding ties that had been so long forged, and brought his hearers near to him now that the time had come when farewells were to be said. At the close of the service Rev. Mr. Dibb took a personal farewell of everyone in the large congregation, and many were the words of regret at his departure. Mr. Dibb has been transferred to Napanee parish.—Desoronto Tribune.

THE HERRING FOUNDRY BURNED.

A terrific fire occurred on Friday morning about 11.30 o'clock, when an alarm was sent in from 24 to 24, at the Gilsland Furniture Co. corner. The firemen responded promptly, but a great volume of smoke was pouring out of the old Herring foundry when they arrived on the scene. In a few minutes flames burst forth from the roof of the old building and was fanned by a heavy wind from the adjoining building. Sparks from the burning structure flying all around set fire to several houses in the vicinity on several buildings, but thanks to the extinguishing work of the brigade and others the loss was confined to the foundry, with the exception of a spark that travelled nearly a quarter of a mile and fired the roof of the house occupied by Mr. H. W. Kelly, which was soon put out, although considerable damage by water was done to the carpets and furnishings. The foundry was owned by Mr. E. T. Cartwright, and was uninsured. The building was unoccupied, but the machinery was in operation at the time of the fire. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Cartwright, and was uninsured. The building was unoccupied, but the machinery was in operation at the time of the fire. The origin of the fire is unknown.

AFTER THE INITIATION.

The house is full of medicines
And mystery profound;
We cannot even run about
Or make the slightest sound.
They keep the big piano shut;
The kitchen's full of fuss;
Mother says she's twenty times
Busier father than she was.

He joined the lodge a week ago—
Got in at last quorum—
And sixteen members brought him home,
Though he says he brought them.
His hat was sprained, and one big ear
Was bruised, his eye got black.
The members had a jolly time
Right there on the mat.

He's resting on the south-to-day
And sipping weak tea soup.
The bailing, signal call and grip
And other things he's learned
He utters peaceful wrath his breath,
And other things he'd earned.
The members had an evening's work
And father took the part.

He hired a brilliant uniform,
A hat with feathers and sword,
A hat with plumes and starlit braid
And three yards of cord.
But somehow when we mention it
The lodge was strangely mute.
We wonder if he rode the goat
Or if that came free.

OLYMPIC TRIAL MATCHES IN CLAY BIRD SHOOTING.

The committee who have charge of the Olympic trial matches in clay bird shooting to be held at the exhibition grounds, Toronto, on May 20, 21 and 22, report that they will shortly have their programme ready for distribution, and that it will be the most attractive inducement ever offered to shooting enthusiasts in Canada.

The events have all been made in cash, so that those who wish to try and qualify will be able to get back a great portion, if not all, the heavy expense they are put to in shooting through the programme. There will be 15 high average prizes for the first day, also 15 high average prizes for the second day, with 15 high average prizes for those who shoot through both days.

In order to make the selection thorough and impartial, the 15 high guns from each of the first two days will shoot off on the third day for positions on the team, when there will be no entrance fee, and birds free. As an extra inducement to get those who qualify to go to England, the management of the shoot will add the net proceeds of the birds to whatever expense money the general committee allow.

The committee realize that the expenses of the shooter are very heavy, but as Canada is going in for it they would urge one and all to turn out and make the shoot a success, and if they are fortunate enough to qualify for the team to leave no stone unturned to go.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, but they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to discover that true very popular formula known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that remedy and hence to-day Shoop and his Restorative, Wisconsin, are credited and highly vital principles, so that internal organ disturbs were ever to be lost.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sick headache, Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Shoop's Restorative—Shoop's Restorative—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and recommend it conditionally.

"I wonder if Mrs. Krill murdered her husband in that cruel way," thought the detective, sitting over his tea. "But what could have been her object? She could have come up on learning from Hay that Aaron Norman was her husband, as I believe she did, and could then have made him give her the money by threatening him with the murder of Lady Rachel. I daresay Aaron Norman in his Krill days did strangle that lady to get the opal brooch, and his wife could have used what she knew to govern him. There was no need of murder. Hum! I'll see about getting the truth out of Hay. Aurora," he cried. "Oh, there you are," he added as she entered the room. "I want you to go back to town this night."

"What for, Billy?"

"Can you keep Hay into trouble?"

Aurora nodded. "I have proofs of his cheating Lord George and others, so that's what you mean," she said, "but you didn't want them used."

"Nor do I. He's such an eel he may wriggle out of our clutches. But can't you give a party and invite Lord George and Hay and then get them to play cards. Should Hay cheat, denounce him to George Sandal."

"What good would that do?" asked Miss Qian, with widely open eyes.

"It will make Hay confess about the brooch to save himself from public shame. His reputation is his life, remember, and if he is caught and handed cheating he'll have to clear out of town."

"Yes, as if that mattered! He's going to marry Miss Krill."

"If Miss Krill keeps the money, and I doubt if she will."

"But, Billy"—

"Never mind. Don't ask me any more questions, but go and pack. This Captain Jessop is in the bar drinking. I may probably have to arrest him. I got a warrant on the chance of finding him here. I can arrest him on suspicion and won't let him go until I get at the truth. Your business is to bring Hay to his knees and get the truth out of him about the opal serpent. You can do that, Aurora."

"Yes," grumbled Aurora, "I know the cost. But I don't like this long journey tonight."

"Every moment is precious. If I arrest Jessop, Matilda Junk will tell her ladies, who will naturally like to help them to may slip away. As the brooch is valuable, I am particular, and, as I believe he can give it if coerced, you can see the importance of losing no time."

Miss Qian nodded and went away to pack. She wanted money and knew Billy would give her a goodly sheaf as the reward. In a few minutes Miss Junk of the Red Fig learned that Miss Qian was suddenly summoned to town and would leave in an hour. Quite unsuspectingly she assisted her to pack, and shortly Aurora was driving in a hired vehicle to the railway station on her way to trap Grexon Hay.

When she was safely out of the premises, Hurd walked to the telegraph office and sent a cipher message to the Yard, asking for a couple of plain clothes policemen to be sent down. He wanted to have Hokar and Miss Matilda Junk watched, also the latter, in case Mrs. Krill and her daughter should return. Captain Jessop he proposed to look after himself, as there was in his hurry to make that gentleman's acquaintance, as he intended to arrest him quietly in the sitting room after dinner. Already he had informed Matilda that he would ask a gentleman to join him at the meal and taste Mr. Kar's curry.

The thought of the curry brought the Indian to his mind, and when he got back to the Red Fig he strolled round the house, inspecting the place, but in reality keeping one eye and ear open to talk to the Hindoo. Thinking he might meet the maid some time, Hurd had carefully learned a few phrases relating to thuggism—in English, of course, since he knew nothing of the Indian tongues. These he proposed to use in the course of conversation with Hokar and watch the effect. Soon he found the man sitting cross legged under a tree in the yard, smoking. Evidently he was off for the day was over, and he was enjoying himself. Remembering the description given by Bart, the detective saw that this was the very man who had entered the shop of Aaron Norman. He wore the same dress and looked dirty and disreputable—quite a waif and stray.

"Hullo!" said Hurd casually. "What are you doing? Talk English, eh?"

"Yes, sir," said Hokar calmly, "I speak good English. Missionary teach Hokar Englis."

"I'm glad of that; we can have a chat," said Hurd, producing his pipe. He also produced something else with which he had provided himself on the way from the Yard. It resembled in smother minutes Hokar was staring at a small parcel of coarse brown sugar. When all his pockets had been felt, he could not keep his countenance. His eyes rolled until they threatened to come into contact with his back, and he gazed at Hurd with a certain amount of fear. "Cloor," said that gentleman, adopting the Indian pronunciation of his pipe, "good."

Hokar turned green under his dark skin and half rose to go away, but his legs failed him, and he sat still trying to recover himself. "Do you worship the Indian goddess Kali?" he dementor.

The Indian's face expressed lively curiosity. "The great goddess."

"Yes. Kalee, you know. Did you make Tuposee after you said your prayers to Allibux Mootman?"

Hokar gave a guttural cry and grin. "Why, in course I do. I've been swinging my hammock here time in and out for the last thirty year."

"You'll be a Christchurch man, then?"

"Not me, mate. I'm Buckinghamshire—Bowley here."

Hurd with difficulty suppressed a start. Stowley was the place where the all important brooch had been pawned by a nautical man, and here was the man in question. "I should have thought you'd lived near the sea," he said cautiously, "say Southampton."

"Oh, I used t'go there for my ship," said the captain, drinking his glass, "but I don't go there no more."

"Retired, eh?"

Jessop nodded and looked at his friend—as he considered Hurd since the invitation to dinner—with a blood-

thet pair of eyes. "Come storm, come calm," he growled, "I've sailed the ocean for forty years. Yes, sir; you bet. I was a slip of a fifteen cabin boy on my first cruise, and then I got on to being skipper. Lord," Jessop smacked his knee, "the things I've seen."

"We'll have them tonight after dinner," said Hurd, nodding, "but now, I suppose, you've made your fortune."

"No," said the captain gloomily, "not what you'd call money. I've got a windlay, though, and a wife."

"Ah! Married to a rich wife?"

"Rich—I've been a couple of marriage, having been the skipper of a mermaid with a tongue. No, sir," he roared suddenly, as another fine song floating in his mouth, "I'm a single saucy bachelor am I," then changed to his gentle key, "and I intends being so all my days. Standby I have—ain't a wife, but I can draw the money regular as the corporations asked." Again he winked and drank another glass.

Hurd reflected that perhaps Jessop had killed Aaron Norman for Mrs. Krill, and she was paying him blood money. But he did not dare to press the question. He therefore proposed an adjournment to the sitting room. Jessop agreed quite unsuspectingly, not guessing he was being trapped. The man was so large and uncouth that Hurd felt behind his waist to see that his revolver was there and could be used should occasion arise.

Miss Junk brought in the dinner with her own fair hands, and explained that Hokar had made the curry, but she didn't think it was as good as usual. "The men's shakin' like a jelly," said Matilda. "I don't know why."

The detective nodded, but did not encourage conversation. He was quite sure that Hokar was being watched by the detectives, and everything was excellent. Hurd did not broach any unpleasant topic immediately, as he wished Jessop to enjoy his meal. If Jessop was guilty, the dainty dinner would be the last of its kind he would have for many a long day. Moreover, Hurd wished to learn more of the murderer's character and plied him with questions, which he answered, putting aside answered suddenly growled—

"Ask no' you might become mates, as it were," said Jessop; extending his large hand again and again. "Put it there."

"Well, we'd want to know something more about one another to become real mates," laughed Hurd.

"Oh, you're a commercial traveler, so you say, and I'm the captain of as fine a barque as ever sailed under Queen Victoria. Leastways I was, afore I gave up the voyages."

"You must miss the ocean, living at Stowley."

"I reckon it is," admitted the mariner, pulling out a dirty clay pipe at the close of the meal, "and ocean flogs don't count about here. But I've got a shanty there and five rectangles."

"You are able to, with the standby," blinked Hurd.

Jessop nodded and crammed black tobacco into the pipe and said, with the look of his pipe with a chalking

CATARRH RM DISEASE.

SUCCESS OF HYOMEI GUARANTEED BY T. B. WALLACE.

Catarrh is an insidious disease of most destructive tendency. Its approaches are unalarming and its victims are well on the road to a chronic stage or to dread consumption before they realize their danger.

It is not a blood disease; but is caused by germs that loiter and grow in the air passages, causing irritation, inflammation and offensive mucous discharges. To cure this condition, stomach dosing is ineffective and the only healing agent is Hyomei. It goes directly to every nook and corner of the air passages, disinfecting, healing and curing. To be cured of any of these, you have only to give Hyomei a trial, and T. B. Wallace will sell you an outfit with the understanding that if the trial is not satisfactory, and the treatment does not relieve, your money will be refunded.

You cannot afford to trifle with catarrhal troubles, for it neglected they grow worse and the consequences are far reaching indeed. It is best to use Hyomei at the first symptoms of catarrh—such as stoppage of the nose, offensive breath, raking in the throat, spasmodic coughing. The Hyomei you use lingers in the throat, you will be freed from all these troubles.

SILLSVILLE.

The Easter Thankoffering of the Sillsville Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society was held in the church on April 22nd. A very helpful programme of papers and readings by Mesdames White and Boyce and Miss Phippen, a solo by Miss Malone, and references from a number of ladies on "Easter Thoughts," was helpful and inspiring. Mrs. (Rev.) Boyce, Conway.

Dear Mrs. Boyce,—The members of Sillsville Auxiliary of the W. M. S. and a few friends have taken this method of showing their appreciation of your self-denying efforts in our midst.

You have been faithful in the performance of duty and always willing to do more than your share in connection with all departments of church work. It heightens our sense of obligation to you that bitterbend circumstance has but served to increase our love and respect in which you have always been held.

And what we express of esteem and affection to you we extend with the embrace to your husband, and we unite in wishing that your efforts may be crowned with success and your life be filled with peace and happiness.

Signed on behalf of Sillsville Auxiliary,

Visit The Robinson Store During Hosiery Week—May 2nd-8th

The Better Kind of Hosiery at the Right Prices

No article of wear betrays its weakness so quickly as Hosiery. If it's bad, you soon find that out; if it's good, you are made aware of the fact by the satisfactory wear it gives you.

But "satisfactory wear" doesn't imply durability alone—according to our Hosiery standard it means COMFORTABLE FIT, FAST-DYED COLORS, and SELECTED MATERIALS. The Hosiery that combines those three features IS BOUND TO GIVE SATISFACTION— including good wear.

And that is the kind of Hosiery we want to interest you in—it is the ONLY kind that ever gets into our store. Robinson Hosiery is UN-ORDINARY because it is good ALL THE WAY THROUGH. Yet it costs no more than other Hosiery which is claimed to be its equal, but isn't. Our profit is smaller—but our Hosiery sales are growing in a most gratifying manner!

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

In Memoriam.

It is our sad duty to announce the death at Napanee, on Monday, April 27th, of John Gibbard, Honorary President of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

Mr. Gibbard was born at Wilton, on August 6th, 1813. He has been a prominent citizen of Napanee for a great many years, and it seems superfluous for us to state that he has always been one of our most esteemed and respected citizens. Mr. Gibbard has seen the Village grow to be a Town, and now has gone to his reward and to join the companions with whom he spent his younger days.

Meeting, May 15th.

The next open meeting of the Society will be held on Friday evening, May 15th, at 8 o'clock. Every one will be welcomed.

At this meeting Miss Janet Carnochan, President of the Niagara Historical Society of Niagara will read a paper. Miss Carnochan is the head of the most successful Historical Society allied with the Ontario Historical Society, and has an extensive knowledge of Canadian history.

W. S. Herrington, K.C., will read a paper on "Champlain" giving the tercentenary exhibitions of the founding of Quebec by Champlain, which is to be held in July, a special notice.

This meeting should be very interesting and it is hoped that a large audience will be present. For those who have been unable to attend any of the previous meetings it might be well to state that the display of Historical relics already in the Hall is worthy of inspection.

Papers and Records.

We publish herewith a continuation of the list of documents in the archives of the Society. The reader will see what a few papers we have in most of the divisions. The officers will gladly receive additions to these collections. Please do not wait to be asked but come, push. This county should have the best collection of such papers in the Midland District.

HA! HA! HA!

GOOD DIGESTION AND GOOD HEALTH BRING JOYOUS LIFE.

Don't blame the poor dyspeptic for being blue, cross, nervous, irritable and grouchy. He cannot help it. No one whose stomach is weak, whose nerves are gone, whose tongue is furred and who hesitates at eating a hearty meal for fear of the distress that will follow, can be sweet-tempered.

Tone up the weak stomach muscles and get digestion working naturally by using Mi-o-na stomach tablets. This remedy is not a mere digestive that gives only a partial relief only. It cures all stomach troubles by strengthening the digestive machinery and putting it into such perfect order that it will digest all kinds of foods without distress, indigestion or dizziness.

Mi-o-na cures stomach troubles in a perfectly natural way, increasing the flow of gastric juices so that life's nourishment is extracted from the food and the refuse is expelled without the aid of laxatives or other medicines.

So reliable and positive is the action of Mi-o-na in curing indigestion and all stomach troubles that T. B. Wallace sells the remedy under guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. 50c. a box.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Dear Sir,—Being somewhat interested in a telephone service, I would like to state a few of the many advantages it would be to the farmer. Take the boy market gardener. He would be able to tell if the price would be better and hold the hogs, or if they were ready to go lower we could hurry and ship. There is no doubt a saving on the above alone would pay the price of a 'phone for one year.

A great many farmers from this section go to Napanee with loads of wood and produce, and with the use of a 'phone we would know when the market was high or when our goods were wanted.

The time we would be able to get a doctor by summoning a doctor, or a call for help from a neighbor, would be a great saving. Now these are only a few of the many ways that would be used to the profit of the farmer by the farmer. In my way of thinking there is not another class to-day that has as much use of a telephone system more than the farmer.

I notice in last week's Beaver a call to help pay the expense of repairing the ferry boat and bring Adolphustown trade to your town. Now it strikes me quite plain if we had a line from Napanee to town, to Napanee it would also be the means of bringing the trade to your town, and when the time comes I hope the people of Napanee will lend a helping hand.

A rural telephone service, following the road for 20 miles, was successfully installed in the Township of Rochester, Essex County, last year. Connection was made through the Townships of Rochester, Maidstone and Tilbury East, where already 72 telephones in operation, and the Rochester Council has received requests for 50 more. From a careful calculation I have found that the cost of the building of such subscriber was slightly under $40. To be paid in five years, with 6 per cent. on the unpaid principal would be $1.30 each year, together with the cost of operating the Exchange amounting to $1. would make a total yearly outlay for each 'phone of $2.30 per year.

Another progressive independent rural telephone line is that at Harrietsville, which at the end of 1907 had 265 telephones connected with it, and 200 more paid-up stock 661 shares at $10 each, paying a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum. Now that is not a bad investment.

In two years there has been over 250 rural telephone lines started business from what I hear all are giving satisfaction.

Now, in our case, the Bell Company offers at a small rental to let us have their line, and I am sure if the boys will go to Napanee, and also give us connection with Centreville, we could get a subscriber that any one on that line can call from Napanee and get the same connection in town or the neighbor in the country can call and get the same. The rates now are being operated as low as $4 a year. It is for the farmers to say if they want it, for us all to attend a meeting to be held at Bethel town hall, or Adolphustown town hall, or perhaps both. There will be several gentlemen to address the meeting. Let us all attend and help give better farmer times and help the boys to stay on the farm. Let us help with your hands in your pockets showing your interest in the matter.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space, I remain, yours truly,

W. C. J.

DEATH OF "ZAN" SMITH.

On Tuesday morning, about 8 o'clock, the body of the late Alexander "Zan" Smith was discovered floating in the river near the Reindeer dock, and was immediately recovered by Mr. Edw. Fisher. Saturday evening, 25th March, was the last seen of Mr. Smith, and as he had been in the habit for a number of years of going down to the river, it was feared that he had probably lost his balance and fallen in. Diligent search was made, but until Tuesday the search had been unfruitful. Indications about his clothing clearly demonstrate his untimely end as one of accidental drowning. Deceased was in his 68th year, and leaves three brothers and three sisters to mourn. The brothers are: Messrs. John A., Delbert, and R.T.; and J. T. Nogates and Elias, Morven. The sisters are: Mrs. Frank Vanalyck, Mrs. Wesley Hinds, Maria and Kate, Napanee. Service was held at his brothers' residence, South Napanee, on Wednesday morning, after which the remains were taken to the family plot at Morven for interment.

10 Days—Saturday, May 2d, and for—10 Days

we begin selling thousands of dollars of new Merchandise—coming to us through canceled orders! Suppose you had ordered the materials for a big dinner, and then your guests notified you they couldn't be present. If the goods were not already delivered, you would like to cancel that order, no doubt. Merchants all over the country found themselves in similar fix this spring. Anticipating a quick resumption of business, they ordered lavishly as ever, but were later obliged to request cancellation of many bills, and if it hadn't been for the leniency of wholesalers who realized the situation, you would be hearing of many store failures. But they canceled right and left, stopping shipments which were even aboard cars. After a while the wholesales sought relief offering such canceled goods at sharp reductions to retailers who had the cash and the confidence. We were fortunate in being able to handle these canceled goods, and as usual we will immediately share the advantages with our public, and as tion everybody to appreciate whatwe consider the best and largest gathering of perfect, new merchandise the town has so far bought with economy.

(Below are a few of the many offerings.)

RURAL SCHOOLS OF LENNOX.

We have learned that, although the feeling is disappearing, considerable dissatisfaction has been felt among the rural population of the Riding of Lennox over the treatment of the rural schools by the Whitney Government, and we have taken the pains to find out from the Government returns the actual financial benefit, which has been received by the rural schools in this County through Government grants, first in 1904 being the last year of the Reform Government, the rural schools in the Riding of Lennox received $998.17, and in 1907, which is the last complete returns, the same rural schools received $3314.25, or in three years the Government grant to the rural schools in the Riding of Lennox had been increased by $2316.08 or about 150 per cent more was received in 1907 under the new Act, by the rural schools in this Riding than was given in 1904. We give the exact figures hereunder so that each Township can check the figures and see exactly how they benefited by the change.

Exactions.	1904	1907	Increase
Ernestown	$329 C	$1149 69	$820 69
N. Fred.	167 44	485 00	317 56
S. Fred.	117 66	395 67	278 01
Richmond	276 81	1079 25	802 44
Adolphustown	45 22	204 56	161 34
	$998.17	$3314.25	$2316.08

The estimates for 1908 include a special grant of $40,000.00 to rural schools for continuation classes and further increased grants generally to rural schools, so that if we had the returns for 1908 the comparison would be even more favorable to the present administration than that which we have given you.

TAMWORTH.

Quarterly service was held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, and was well attended.—Schuyler Hudgins is in town on Saturday.—The Tamworth Opera Company intend giving their grand concert in Newburgh, Centreville, and other centres. They played before a $110.00 house at Tamworth and at Marlbank they played before an $85 house. The Marlbank Hall was smaller than the Tamworth hall.—The Hearts of Oak Lodge No. 51, of Tamworth, will hold their grand picnic on May 25th. It is expected that the members of the Hearts of Oak Lodge of Cloyne, No 49, will be invited.—C. C. Quinn, Nathan Bumbower and Edward Pannah were in town last week in the interest of the Lodge. At the last meeting of the Lodge on Friday, 1st May, lectures were given by Messrs. Rose, Walters, Craig, Parks, Caspin, Bell, Hudgins and W. S. Parks. The lecture by W. S. Wagar was on the "Tamworth Stock Co."—Mr. Wagar brought out all the details. He showed the benefit to the village of this Company. He also showed the good derived by each stock-holder. He showed the fact of it being a fraud.—The millinery shop is running full blast, just opposite Richardson's barber shop, on main street. For an up to date hat, call at the Tamworth millinery shop.—The first ball game on the Tamworth Grounds will play will be on Saturday, when they will play Dalhaire.—Call and Floyd's for your boots and shoes, the one price store.

To the Electors of the County of Lennox.

Fellow Electors.—The time is drawing near when the electors of this County in common with its other constituencies will be called upon to elect a representative for the Provincial Assembly.

It may not be possible for me to see you all personally, and I adopt this method of placing myself before you and reaching as many of you as possible.

I was elected by the electors in November last in convention assembled as the representative of the Conservative party of this County in the Provincial Parliament. I am therefore before you in the capacity of candidate, soliciting your votes and influence at the approaching election.

I need not say that this honour was placed upon my unsought or unsolicited by

My opponent and myself are personal friends, although I differ in politics. We are both citizens of the County, and I believe there is no reason why our social relations should be strained. I say that we should continue and close the contest as good friends as we commenced it. Further, I am self that I do not need any personal introduction to you. I have been before you in each of the last twenty-five years, and have taken a more or less active part in your public and local affairs. You are therefore fully aware of my ability or qualifications for the office, or important questions pertaining thereto as a member of the Provincial and Administrative Legislature of Lennox. Whilst my politics have been known, I have always endeavored to maintain my party principles, and I believe them to be right and acting in the interests of the Province, and can give you a reason for the faith that is in me. I am not a believer in the cry that has been sounded throughout the Province that it is time for a change, and that the only way to take up your honoured representative, Mr. Ross, and place him in the position he understood my politics, and I trust it will meet with your approval and support. I must guarantee support, irrespective of party and politics, to any man who I consider would honor me with confidence and support, and I believe that Mr. Ross would have every member myself at your disposal and will be pleased to meet you at any time and place you may appoint, and especially that of his own locality, and respectfully that of the Village of Napanee, the County Town of Lennox, irrespective of local personal or political considerations, and will address you patiently and promptly on a political question or a service I shall be as pleased to meet you personally as I will be to those attended to by public meeting. I shall appreciate the proper position for a representative of the County to occupy.

To those of you who I shall not be able to see personally I hope that this will satisfy you that I am not unmindful of your support, and thanking you in advance, I am,

Your obedient servant,

W. S. HARDLE.

NEWBURGH.

Rev. R. Duke surprised the Quarterly Board of the Methodist church on Monday evening last, by announcing to them that he felt it necessary to ask the Conference for relief from work for one year, more sitating his severance of connection with the church here after only one year's service. The Board expressed their great regret and that feeling is very generally echoed throughout the circuit. Mr. Duke has had very hands during this year in connection with the presidency of the Conference, and feels that a temporary rest from work for one year, here has been very acceptable and deeply appreciated, and the hope will be universal that a year's relaxation may completely fit him again for further service in the ministry of the church.

Mr. J. W. Yeomans left on Tuesday morning last to assume the duties of lay missionary on a field in St. Joseph's Island, under the Presbyterian church. Mr. Yeomans has been a very worthy citizen for the last four years, and his departure is regretted. He has been an active member of the Public Library Board acting as secretary last year, and has always identified himself with every public cause worthy of support. His many friends in the village wish him every success in his new field of labor.

Mr. W. D. M. Shorey returned on Monday from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and will resume his place in the office of Mr. H. M. Deroche, K.C., in Napanee for the summer months.

The meeting of Court Newburgh I.O.F., on Tuesday night next, will be of special interest, the chief business being the receiving of the report of the delegation to the Kingston last week to hear the address of the Supreme Chief Ranger on the contemplated readjustment of rates paid by members of the Order coming previous to 1909. As there appears to be some misapprehension in regard to this matter, it is very important that all members should be present on Tuesday night.

Mr. P. D. Shorey sent loads to Moosejaw, Sask., last November. In March six of these fowls were shown at Regina Poultry Exhibition, and won three firsts, one second and one third prize. To do has this spring sent Black Spanish eggs to Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, besides to other points in our own province.

On Friday night last by special appointment Andre Deroche, of Belleville, met the Trustee Board of the Methodist church here, and made them a very generous offer to install a complete system of watering in the Newburgh cemetery. The Board was to erect a windmill at the river with pipes leading to the cemetery, and to pipe the whole cemetery entirely at his own expense, a large reservoir to be placed in the cemetery for that purpose. The Board expressed their appreciation of the generous proposal and took steps to accept Patterson's offer. Messrs. J. H. Patterson and A. E. Embury were appointed to canvass holders of plots as to their willingness to assent thereto, after, after a long illness, is improving, we are glad to state.—Our oldest resident, Miss Clapp, Ecclesall, has been as well as his friends would wish, but is steadily improving under the skilful treatment of Dr. Ireland.—Mrs. David Roblin has returned from Napanee, having been called there by the illness of her mother, Mrs. J. F. Roblin.—Mrs. A. Bell, of Deseronto, is visiting her brother in this place.—The I. E. L. choose factory salesman, Mr. J. B. Allison, attended the cheese board in Picton, on Saturday, 2d inst.—Mrs. F. E. Mallory has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Leavult, of Picton, for the last few weeks.

ODESSA.

On Tuesday and Wednesday we saw in passing the Dominion, that Mr. Robinson, merchant of Napanee, was displaying his wares in a very attractive manner. The hall and sample room were artistically draped with beautiful shipment of fine goods with carpets and rugs, of which there was nothing to catch the eye and purse of the beholder.—Court was held on Tuesday, with Judge Price in the chair.—The school was visited on Tuesday by the I. P. S., Mr. D. A. Neale. We have not the least doubt but what he found everything satisfactory, as we think we have one of the best staff of teachers, who are doing all that can be done for the benefit of the pupils.—On Wednesday Dr. Nash took advantage of the fine days and is again in our midst, to attend to any little ailments of the grinders. He purposes being here every Wednesday until further notice.—A newly wedded couple passed through the village on Wednesday morning and were showered with rice, and old shoes tied on the carriage.—The parties were Miss Grace Babcock, daughter of our esteemed townsman, Mr. "Cap." Babcock, and Mr. Bethel Westbrook. Success we say to them.—Our annual lace and fancy goods venders were encamped for a few days. For a few days this week.—We were grieved to hear of the death of Dr. Sidney Walker, of Aurora, Ohio, formerly of this place. Also on Tuesday of last week, Mr. Warren Meacham, youngest son of the late Dr. Meacham, of this place, one who died at Newburgh, at the residence of Mr. Malcolm Denyes. On Thursday the body was taken to Wilton for burial.—On Wednesday evening the Odellites met, and had a pleasant, a bountiful lunch was given by S. J. Sproule.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Editor.—The Provincial elections are now at hand, and the candidates are chosen by the Conservative and Reform Associations. While there are many of us bound to support the nominee of their party, no matter what his policy or qualifications may be, there is a great independent class of electors in this County who are not chloroformed to support either nominee, but are guided by their conscience to vote for the candidate whose policy and platform most nearly conforms to their ideas.

Now there are great and important questions likely to engage the attention of the next Parliament, such as the mineral and timber policy of which ever party may be returned to power, the disposition of the Crown lands, and the class of immigrants we desire to locate on these lands. The license question, whether it shall be along the lines of temperance or the wide open, the candidate whose policy and platform most nearly conforms to their ideas.

Now there are a few of the questions I am sure the independent electors would be pleased to have the candidates express their opinion through the press, so that they might intelligently cast their ballots at the forthcoming election.—J. M. C. B.

CHERRY VALLEY.

The farmers are glad to see the fine weather again. They are very busy ploughing and sowing.—Mr. Reuben Johnston got his hand badly hurt while fixing a barbed wire fence.—We are glad to hear that Mr. John Healy is recovering from a bad attack of la grippe.—Mr. and Mrs. Wood and Mr. Reuben Johnston at Mr. Ransler McConnell's, at Salmon Point, on Sunday.—Mr. D. W. Perry is visiting friends at Deseronto.—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mattonell at Mr. Ransler McConnell's, at Salmon Point, on Sunday.—Mrs. (Dr.) Knight's sale of household furniture, held on May 4th, was a complete success.—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McConnell spent Sunday afternoon at Point Petre.—Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Kelly on Sunday.

DORLAND.

The annual business meeting of the Woman's Institute will be held in the residence of Mrs. (Dr.) Dorland, on Friday, 8th May, at 3 p.m.—Mrs. J. H. Parks, of Bay City, Mich., has been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. P. Dorland, for the last few days.—Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Trumpour spent Sunday with her parents at Sandhurst.—Mr. and Mrs. Bellamy has come to reside with her son, and is welcomed to this locality.—Mrs. Herbert Hallgher, after a long illness, is improving, we are glad to state.—Our oldest resident, Miss Clapp, Ecclesall, has been as well as his friends would wish, but is steadily improving under the skilful treatment of Dr. Ireland.—Mrs. David Roblin has returned from Napanee, having been called there by the illness of her mother, Mrs. J. The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing bran and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported those hundreds of miles at great expense, and usually even in reaches you in a far inferior quality.

The grower complains if the farmer or the manufacturer sells in Toronto or the outside points for an article that he can get at the home store just as well, but the farmer prefers to buy flour from a mill hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour that more frequently you are purchasing your home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Choice Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade. The full stock of the best Anthracite Coal also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

Undisputed Facts About

Zutoo

Zutoo tablets are now recognized as being without doubt or question, the best and only safe remedy on the market for headaches and colds.

They have practically displaced all other cures, and are now the most used to any extent.

There is reason to doubtless found in this further fact.

Zutoo tablets not only cure headache and colds but, unlike many other remedies, do not affect the heart, nerves or stomach.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,
Napanee, May 4th, 1908.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng presiding.

Members present—Reeve Symington, and Councillors Alexander, Simpson, Denison, Steacy, Osborne.

The minutes of the last regular session were read and on motion were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS

From the Merchants Bank, asking that the usual by-law be passed to cover the overdraft at the bank. On motion the by-law was taken up later in the evening and passed.

From Ernest R. Beckwith, Kingston, saying he had resigned his position as City Engineer of Kingston, and intended working privately. He was going to make a specialty of municipal matters and would be pleased to undertake any work which the town may require the services of an engineer or architect. On motion the above communication was filed for future reference.

From A. D. Cartwright, Secretary of Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, saying that on the 15th April, the Board's Assistant Engineer, Mr. T. S. Simmons, made an inspection of the highway crossings on the main line of the G. T. R. in Napanee, and under the direction of the Board I send you herewith a copy of his report. I also beg to inform you that a copy of this report has been duly forwarded to the Grand Trunk Railway, with the request that they file an answer with the Board to the matters contained therein.

The copy of the order re crossings is as follows:

Under the 1st April, I inspected the highway crossings on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway in the Town of Napanee.

Bridge street, shown on the plan on the file, crosses underneath the bridge near the Napanee River.

Thomas street—Approaching this crossing from the north and looking to the east, one can see a train 1500 feet away, when one is a safe distance from the track. This is true only when the leaves are off the trees. There is a large tree near bridge street, which would cut the view down to 500 feet in the summer time. I understand this tree is on Town property.

Looking to the west one has a clear view of trains for a distance of 1200 feet, when one is about 80 feet from the crossing.

Approaching the crossing from the south one sees the trains to the east for a distance of 1500 feet, when one is 100 feet from the crossing.

Looking to the west one can see trains 1200 feet distant, when one is 30 feet from the crossing. This view however, would be cut down more than half in summer time by a line of trees just outside the right of way.

If the Company could procure the removal of the trees mentioned above, the crossing would be comparatively safe; if not, it appears to me that an automatic electric bell should be installed.

If the Company raises its tracks, as was proposed a few years ago, a subway should be constructed at this crossing.

Centre Street or Selby Road.—There are seven tracks crossing this street, three belonging to the Grand Trunk Railway and three to the Bay of Quinte Railway, and extending over 400 feet of highway. All the passenger trains on the Grand Trunk Railway, except one which goes through at 7 o'clock A.m., stop at the station, which is about 500 feet east of the crossing. I understand that the freight trains on the Grand Trunk Railway stop about 1100 feet west of the crossing at the top of the grade, then the engine puts off and runs down over the crossing, and past the station for water. It was while backing up that one of these engines hit and killed a young girl last July. The engine, after looking onto its train, runs the crossing at full speed, so as to make the grade to the east. The view of approaching trains is good when there are no cars on the sidings, but it is difficult to get trainmen to leave cars a proper distance from crossings, and sometimes they are cramped for room. On the occasion of my inspection cars were standing on a Grand Trunk siding, close to the crossing.

On account of the number of tracks and the large number of trains on the two lines, and the shunting, it appears to me that a watchman should be placed at the crossing between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

T. S. SIMMONS,
Engineer.

Mr. John Chatterson was present and said he was of the opinion that when his house was rebuilt for a sprinkling they should be given first privilege for other work.

Reeve Symington assured the Council and Mr. Chatterson that it was his intention to follow out the lines of former years, which would give Mr. Chatterson first choice.

Com. Simpson, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the following monthly report, as follows, which was received and adopted:

Reeve Symington, Chairman of the Street Committee, reported as follows:

That the tender of Patrick Burgin for ballast at 65c. per load of 14 yards, be accepted, as he was the lowest tender of those sent in.

On motion of Reeve Symington, seconded by Com. Denison, the above tender for ballast was accepted.

Com. Denison, Chairman of Town Property Committee, reported as follows: 1.—The Committee had received the plants for the Town Hall from the Horticultural Society and had them set out. 2.—He had let Mr. H. Baker have the use of the lock-up on the 1st of the month for storage purposes at $2.00 per month and $5.00 bail, he would bring the matter up at this meeting of the Council. 3.—The seats in the Town Hall had been repaired. 4.—The proper way to take care of the water at Anderson's Livery would be to run a drain to the sewer, which would cost about $12.00. 5.—The repairs necessary to be made to the Isolation Hospital are estimated at $100.00, providing they would be first-class shingles. 6.—Re schedule of rates for the Town Hall for entertainments, the Committee had not as yet been together to talk the matter over, and he thought perhaps the Council would go into Committee of the Whole and fix the price.

On motion of Coun. Denison and Osborne, the above report was received and adopted.

Coun. Osborne, Chairman of the Market Committee, said there were several hales to be filled in on the market.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Steacy, that the Street Committee be instructed to have the necessary survey of the extension of the Canning Factory sewer made, and have plans and specifications prepared. Carried.

Reeve Symington thought it would be a good plan to get a contractor to tender for the excavating by the yard, both sand and for rock.

Mayor Meng was of the opinion that a man could be secured in Napanee for the above work.

Coun. Simpson thought a competent engineer should be engaged.

On motion the Napanee Baseball Club were granted the use of the Town Hall for a concert to be held on Thursday evening next, 14th May.

Moved by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Denison, that the Town Property Committee be instructed to clean up the fire hall, take out the stall and put it in the rear of the hall, and make the necessary repairs. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the matter of renting the old police station be referred to the Streets Committee to report as to whether the building will be required as a tool house. Carried.

Moved in amendment by Coun. Alexander, seconded by Reeve Symington, that the old police station be given to the Streets Committee for use of the street employees, and that the Streets Committee be authorized to make the necessary repairs to the building. Carried.

On motion $500.00 additional was added to the appropriation for the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and $75.00 to the Poor and Sanitary committee.

THE PRAISE OF SUGAR

(From the 'Lancet.')

It seems incomprehensible that the boundless wish which the human body is supplied with sugar should result anything else than what it is designed for, human food. Sugar is one of the most powerful foods which we possess, as it is the cheapest, or at any rate one of the cheap ones. The muscular fibre is supposed to be able to give the same powers of locomotive energy as the most expensive practical experiments have shown with the best fuel that the best hard physical worker, the athlete or the soldier on the march is much more equal to the physical strain placed upon him when he has had included in his diet a liberal allowance of sugar than when he was denied to him. Trophies, prizes and champions undoubtedly been won on a diet in which sugar was intentionally sparingly included. It has even been said that sugar may decide a battle and that jam, after all, is something more than a mere sweetmeat to the soldier.

The fact that sugar is a powerful 'muscle food' accounts probably for the disfavor into which it falls, for a person taking small quantities seems to get nervous, and nervous is always inimical to easy working of the digestive processes. A strong solution of sugar is irritating to the tissues, will set up superficial inflammation and may produce a form of eczema. It is well known that an excessive diet of sugar irritates the mucous membrane of the stomach and encourages the production of worms and of a highly acid gastric juice.

The question of much sugar spoils the appetite. Children who have been tempted to overindulge in sweets between regular eating times do not want their proper meals. The schoolboy spoils his dinner by eating too many tarts and sweets. As the sugar in cereals gorce in sweet liquors, in sweet pies and in 'crystallized' fruits after dinner retards the digestion of the albuminous and starchy parts of the meal.

Sugar satiates; it is concentrated food. Where sugar does not agree, therefore, it is invariably due to excess. Taken in small quantities and distributed over the daily food intakes sugar contributes most usefully to health to the amount of energy required by the body. In certain diseases, such as diabetes, more sugar in the diet is plainly unsuitable. Generally speaking, however, there is a prejudice against sugar which is not justified by physiological reasoning—at all events, when it is taken in moderation, and it is a curious fact that the man who practically takes most sugar in proportion to his diet to one almost free from carbohydrates is fond of protein foods such as meat, often shows feeble muscular energy and an indifferent capacity for physical endurance.

ONE OF THREE THINGS.

Fred Jones, a man of no small dimensions, was recently boarding on the Boston and Maine railroad, making daily trips between Boston and Plymouth. One day about two years ago while collecting fares he encountered a little man who had a full fluence of liquor who would not show a ticket. After reasoning in vain with this passenger Mr. Jones said, "Now, see here, you'll have to do one of three things, either give me a ticket pay your fare or get off and walk."

"You're (hic) got to do one of three things, you're (hic) right—one (hic), hoop yersell (hic) or bend."

The Puma seems to be working pretty smoothly with the Grand Trunk. It seems to be getting back to her normal condition, and when those ideal days is better at all events, both for Russia herself and her neighbors, than a welcome reign of anarchy and dynamite. The powers that be had to deal with anarchists and dynamiters got the upper hand there would have caused a sigh of relief and butchery such might have left behind the horrors of the French Reign of Terror. Not would the consequence have by any means been confined to Russia, as events in those comparatively unelectric days was to France. The difficulty of government in a country so vast as Russia, and with so many imperfectly civilized, should not be forgotten.

Now it is said that the Czar Alexander II entered on peaceful reforms, and was murdered by anarchism for his pains. The watch and the present state of things is the worthlessness of the nihilist.—Copied from A Bystander, in Weekly Sun.

THE SUMMER FASHIONS.

Grace Margaret Gould, the dress expert, says in Woman's Home Companion for May:

"There are two distinct types of dress this summer, both emphasizing the straight up-and-down effect. One is the tailored coat and skirt suit worn at instances a tweed coat, which gives the effect of length, and is then relatively narrow at the bottom—that is, it measures little wider around the edge of the tailored skirt used to have.

"The other type of dress is the cutthrough gown and corset waist. It is used throughout the summer. In the form of the new gowns the cut-in-one dress is a most practical gown to own. It can fashion in the front quite as easily as the back, and it is a model equally good for silk or linen.

"This style dress is always cut out at the neck, and is generally sleeveless, but show the gimpse, or trimmed just sufficiently over the shoulders to give a modified type suitable for day wear. It may be made, as a number of the imported models are, of linen as much the effect of a polonaise cut out at the neck, but having a sleeve which is cut on one with the bodice.

"In the former, there are many variations of these two basic ideas in dress, but whichever the fashionable model this summer, it is sure to be simple in detail, lacking entirely any exaggeration in form.

"Perhaps this idea is better shown in the fashionable linen which has been greatly diminished in a pronounced way in size within the past few months, and in the most cases follows very closely the outline of the body.

MAY "BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE."

The merry month of May brings joy and gladness, sunshine and flower. The issue of the Busy Man's Magazine for the current month also brings pleasure and profit for its ever widening circle of enthusiastic readers. Articles: "What Are Doing Things, and How" forms an important feature of the editorial matter in the May number which is generously illustrated and presents a pretty attractive appearance. "The book with the red cover," as Busy Man's is frequently and familiarly called, also has numerous other admirable adjuncts which will prove particularly attractive. It not only gives several of the best selections from the magazines of the world, but contains such instructive timely and popular articles as "The Principle of Profit Sharing in Business." Some Reflections on the Average Man." "How Those Who Fail Are Given Another Chance." "Canadian Should Industry is More Boating." "A Greater Sense of Our Responsibilities." "The World's Greatest Plug Manufacturer." Youth Should be Taught the Habit of Saving." The Adoption of Automobiles in Business." "Canadian Banking System the Best in the World." and "A Police Force that is a Credit to Canada." Other attractions of the magazine might be dwelt upon, but in the words of an old saw, "enough is as good as a feast."

It is officially announced that the Dominion and White Star Lines will combine their service to Canada next spring.

THE OPAL SERPENT

By FERGUS HUME

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "Madame Midas," "Lady Jim's Past," etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

Miss Junk appeared in answer to the tinkle of the bell and removed the food. Afterward she brought in coffee, hot and strong and black, and Jessop drank two cups, with the result that he became quieter. Then the two men settled down for a pleasant conversation. At least, Jessop thought so, for he frequently expressed the friendliest sentiments toward his host. Then Matilda appeared with a bottle of rum, a kettle and two glasses. When she departed, Hurd intimated that he would not require her services again that night. This he whispered to her at the door, while Jessop was placing the kettle on the fire, and before returning to his seat he quietly turned the key. So he had the mariner entirely to himself and got to business at once while the kettle boiled.

"You have known this place for years, I believe," said Hurd, taking a chair opposite to that of Jessop. "Did you ever drop across a man who used to live here called Lemuel Krill?"

The other man started. "Whatever make you ask that?" he inquired in a husky voice.

"Well, you see, as a commercial I trade in books, and had to do with a secondhand bookseller in Lyrone street, Drury lane. It seems that he was murdered," and he eyed Jessop attentively.

The sailor nodded and composed himself with a violent effort. "Yes," said he in his husky voice, "so I heard. But what's he got to do with Lemuel Krill?"

"Oh," said Hurd carelessly, "it is said Aaron Norman was Krill."

"Might ha' bin. I don't know myself," was the gruff reply.

"Ah! Then you did not know Lemuel Krill?"

"Well," admitted the captain reluctantly, "I did. He was the landlord of this here pub when I come to drink Lor', 'ow he could drink and did too. But he run away from his wife as used to keep 'im sharp, and she never heard no more of him."

"Until she found he was rich and could leave her five thousand a year," said Hurd absently; "so like a woman—"

"You seem to know all about it, mister?" said the sailor uneasily.

"Yes, I read the papers. A queer case that of Norman's death. I expect it was only right he should be strangled, seeing he killed Lady Rachel Sandal in the same way."

Jessop, resting his hands on the arms of his chair, pushed it back and stared with a white face. "You know of that?" he gasped.

"Why not? It was public talk in this place over twenty years ago, I understand you have been hereabout for thirty years," went on Hurd carelessly, possibly you may recollect the case."

Jessop wiped his forehead. "I heard something about it. That there lady committed—suicide they say."

"I won't say what they say, but I want to know what you say."

"I won't be asked questions," shouted the captain angrily.

"Don't raise your voice," said the detective smoothly; "we may as well conduct this conversation pleasantly."

"I don't converse no more," said Jessop in a shaky voice and staggered to his feet, rapidly becoming sober under the influence of a deadly fear. Hurd did not move as the man crossed the room, but felt if the key was safe in his pocket. The sailor tried to open the door and then realized that it was locked. He turned on his host with a volley of bad language and found himself facing a leveled revolver.

"Sit down," said Hurd quietly; "go back to your chair."

Jessop, with staring eyes and outspread hands, backed to the wall. "Who are you, anyhow?" he demanded, hardly able to speak.

"Strange that will tell you," said Hurd, and threw the warrant on the table. Jessop staggered forward and looked at it. One glance was sufficient to inform him what it was, and he sank back into his chair with a groan, leaving the warrant on the table. Hurd picked it up and slipped it into his pocket. He thought Jessop might shoot him, but there was no fight in the mariner.

"And now that we understand one another," said Hurd, putting away his weapon, "I want to talk."

"I—I don't," said Jessop savagely.

"Oh, yes, I think so; otherwise I can make things unpleasant for you."

"You can't arrest me. I've done nothing."

"That may be so, but arrest you I can, and I have power to do so. Some time to-morrow morning you will go to London in charge of a plain clothes policeman, while I go to Scotland Yard."

"To my crib! No, I'm blest if you do."

"I shall—if you don't. I only came at times, and then I went away. Old Tinker hadn't seen me more ner once or twice, and I guessed I could live a long time on that. Then I got a letter from Krill, as he was then, some twenty-five years back by chance, as you may say." He cast a strange look at the detective, which the latter noted—"yes, by chance, Mr. Hurd. I found he kept the pub here, and this here 'ole at a distance from Southampton. I took to running down 'ere when the barney was at another. Me an' Krill became great mates, and I'd what you might call free quarters here—yes, sir—it's a fine 'ere fact."

"Very generous of Mr. Krill," remarked Hurd dryly and remembered what the man was hoping back.

"Oh, he was right enough as a mate when not drunk, but the liquor made him a howling dorg of him. I've seen many drunk in many places," said Jessop, "but any one who held his liquor like Krill never did. He'd knife you as soon as look at you when drunk."

"But he evidently preferred strangling."

"Hold on, mate," said Jessop, with another deep pull at the rum. "I'm comin' to that night. We was both on the beat, a p'may say, and Mrs. Krill she didn't like it, so got to bed with the child."

"How old was the child?"

"Mad? Oh, you might say she was thirteen or fifteen. I can't be sure of her age. What's up?"

For Hurd, seeing in this admission a confirmation that Maud was not Krill's child and could not inherit the money, had showed his feelings. However, he replied quickly that it was merely curiosity to be too confidential, and begged Jessop to proceed.

"Well, mate," said the captain, filling another glass of rum, "y'see the lady had come earlier and had been put to bed by the mistress. I never saw her myself, being drinking in this very room along o' Krill. But he saw her," added Jessop emphatically, "and said as she'd a fine opal brooch, which he wish he'd had, as he wanted money and the missis kept him tight."

"Krill was a judge of jewels?"

"Traveled in jewels once," said the captain. "Blest you, he could size up a diamond a paper, undeniably written and signed by the old man, saying that the property was to be given up to bearer. Now, before taking the jewelry to Pash, Krill could not have written the paper, so you must have seen him between his visit to Pash and his death."

"Quite so, and perhaps it is also a fact that a man resembling yourself tried to get certain jewelry from a lawyer named Pash."

Jessop lost his self control, which he was trying desperately to preserve, and rose to his feet white faced and haggard. "Who are you?" he shouted, "who are you?"

"Doesn't the warrant tell you?" replied his companion, not at all upset. "My name is Billy Hurd. I am the detective in charge of the Norman murder case. I've been looking for you for a long time, Mr. Jessop."

"I know nothing about it."

"Yes, you do; sit down and talk away."

"I'll break your head!" cried the captain, swinging his huge fists.

"Try"—Hurd whipped out his revolver, but did not point it at the risk of getting a bullet through you. Fshaw, man, don't be a fool! I'm mailing things as easy for you as possible. Create a disturbance, and I'll hand you over to the police. A night in the village lockup may cool your blood. Sit down, I tell you."

The sailor showed his teeth like those of a snarling dog and made as to strike the seated detective; but suddenly changing his mind, for he saw well enough in what danger he stood, he dropped into his chair and, covering his face with his hands, groaned aloud. Hurd put away his revolver. "That's better," said he pleasantly; "take a tot of rum and tell me all you know."

"I'm innocent," groaned Jessop.

"Every man is innocent until convicted by a jury," said Hurd calmly. "Consider me a jury, and I'll size up your case when I hear all. Are you innocent of both murders?"

"Lady Rachel committed suicide," said Jessop, raising a haggard face. "Yes—I stick to that, sir. As to Krill's death in London, I didn't touch him; I swear I didn't."

"But you saw him on that night?"

"How can you prove that?"

"Very simply. Norman—or Krill if you prefer the old name—took certain jewelry to Pash for safe keeping shortly before his death. You presented to Pash a paper, undeniably written and signed by the old man, saying that the property was to be given up to bearer. Now, before taking the jewelry to Pash, Krill could not have written the paper, so you must have seen him between his visit to Pash and his death."

"He was clearly argued, and Jessop could not contradict. "I left him quite well and hearty."

"In the cellar in Gwynne street?"

"Yes, in the cellar," admitted Jessop. "At what time?"

"About half past 8—say between 8 and 9."

"Well, what happened?" asked Hurd, smoothly quietly.

The sailor twisted his big hands and groaned. Then he laid his head on the table and began to sob, talking brokenly and huskily. "I'm done for," he gasped. "I'll know it is—I know it—no—I ain't sorry. I've had a nightmare of a time. Oh—since I pawned that brooch—"

"Ah. Then you did pawn the brooch at Stowley?"

Jessop sat up and wiped his eyes. "Yes, I did. But I pulls my cap down over my eyes and buttoned up my pea jacket. I wasn't known—no—I ain't sorry. I've had a nightmare of a time. Oh—since I pawned that brooch—"

"Ah. Then you did pawn the brooch at Stowley?"

Jessop sat up and wiped his eyes. "Yes, I did. But I pulls my cap down over my eyes and buttoned up my pea jacket. I wasn't known—no—I ain't sorry. I've had a nightmare of a time. Oh—since I pawned that brooch—"

"Aren't it rather rash of you to pawn the brooch in a place where you were well known?"

"I wasn't well known. I only came at times, and then I went away. Old Tinker hadn't seen me more ner once or twice, and I guessed I could live a long time on that. Then I got a letter from Krill, as he was then, some twenty-five years back by chance, as you may say." He cast a strange look at the detective, which the latter noted—"yes, by chance, Mr. Hurd. I found he kept the pub here, and this here 'ole at a distance from Southampton. I took to running down 'ere when the barney was at another. Me an' Krill became great mates, and I'd what you might call free quarters here—yes, sir—it's a fine 'ere fact."

"Very generous of Mr. Krill," remarked Hurd dryly and remembered what the man was hoping back.

"Oh, he was right enough as a mate when not drunk, but the liquor made him a howling dorg of him. I've seen many drunk in many places," said Jessop, "but any one who held his liquor like Krill I never did see. He'd knife you as soon as look at you when drunk."

"But he evidently preferred strangling."

"Hold on, mate," said Jessop, with another deep pull at the rum. "I'm comin' to that night. We was both on the beat, a p'may say, and Mrs. Krill she didn't like it, so got to bed with the child."

"How old was the child?"

"Mad? Oh, you might say she was thirteen or fifteen. I can't be sure of her age. What's up?"

For Hurd, seeing in this admission a confirmation that Maud was not Krill's child and could not inherit the money, had showed his feelings. However, he replied quickly that it was merely curiosity to be too confidential, and begged Jessop to proceed.

"Well, mate," said the captain, filling another glass of rum, "y'see the lady had come earlier and had been put to bed by the mistress. I never saw her myself, being drinking in this very room along o' Krill. But he saw her," added Jessop emphatically, "and said as she'd a fine opal brooch, which he wish he'd had, as he wanted money and the missis kept him tight."

"Krill was a judge of jewels?"

"Traveled in jewels once," said the captain. "Blest you, he could size up a diamond a paper, undeniably written and signed by the old man, saying that the property was to be given up to bearer. Now, before taking the jewelry to Pash, Krill could not have written the paper, so you must have seen him between his visit to Pash and his death."

Speaking of Clothes

Now Harry, while speaking of clothes, I just want to say this——

I have bought clothes in Napanee for a long time. I've worn clothes, hats and toggery from every store—I've tried them all.

But, when all is said, I will sum up my experience by saying that the clothing and outfitting I get at J. L. Boyes' is far and away ahead of anything I have been able to find anywhere else.

They carry the largest and best selected stock of imported suitings shown in this vicinity Their assortment of new Browns are beautiful. They're always ahead in style—their clothing is finely made and correctly cut. There is a newness and swellness about their clothes that other clothes don't have. Then again they charge you only a fair price—no fancy figures. By all odds, Harry, go to J. L. Boyes for your clothes. I'm telling only what I know.

Have You Ever Worn a Coat Shirt?

We are the only store in Napanee who sell W. G. & R. Shirts. If you have worn them you know what comfort is. We carry sizes from 14½ to 18, with separate and attached cuffs. Prices run from $1.00 up.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Owing to the very bad weather on Wednesday evening, Prof. Hutt was met by but a small contingent from the Horticultural Society, but those who braved the pouring rain were well repaid by the entertaining and instructive talk given them by the Professor, whose remarks were illustrated by lantern pictures of various scenes of lawns, shrubbery and flowers. The Professor advocated as nearly as possible an imitation of nature in the beautifying of landscape, and deplored the unsightly plackards and advertisements which so frequently mar the outskirts of our towns and villages, and thought a commission might be formed to look after our river approaches and make and keep them beautiful. In the absence of the President of the Society, Mr. C. W. Warner ably filled the chair and voiced the sentiments of the audience by expressing the hope that it might not be long before we might have the pleasure of hearing the Professor again, and that on the next occasion the elements might be more propitious and the audience larger. A vote of thanks to the Professor was moved in some well chosen and appreciative remarks by Mr. Croskery, and seconded by the Rev. Mr. Conn.

CENTRAL METHODIST CHURCH

At a meeting of the Quarterly Board of the Central Methodist Church, the following resolution was proposed by Mr. Bell and Mr. Read:

Moved by W. T. Gilbard, seconded by H. Vanalstine, that we wish to place on record our appreciation of the relationship that has existed between the congregation of the Central Methodist church and Mr. Neal and wife during the four years of his pastorate.

The church has prospered in an exceptionally satisfactory manner spiritually, financially and numerically. No part of the work has been deficient. The Sabbath School, the Junior and Senior League, Woman's Missionary Society, Mission Band and Mission Circle, all show marked success, and no better evidence of this could have been shown than the very interesting and successful quarterly services held last Sunday, as manifested by the large number present, and the very great spiritual interest manifested. We hope for him, as a board and church, great success in the future.

Chronicles of Napanee.

We publish herewith the seventh of a series of old letters. These were written by an "old resident," and published in The Beaver in 1873 and 1874. There are seven letters in the series, and the source from which we secure them is one of the scrap books belonging to the Historical Society.

LETTER VII.

We are acquainted with an old gent's man who was barkeeper for some time in the "Old Red Tavern," and received $2 per day in scrip for his services, being acknowledged an excellent barkeeper. He was converted, and has for forty years been a Methodist class-leader.

Dr. Beer was the first M. D. who settled in Napanee, and was followed by Dr. Hagerman, who was succeeded by Mr. Fish—in Kitley and had the reputation of being a "knowing doctor." Dr. Brewster, and then old Dr. David Allen, who for many years kept a dispensary, did an office practice for a time, removed to South Fredericksburgh, where he kept the Sandhurst Postoffice.

Old Chamberlain for many years practised his profession near Napanee, and was succeeded by his son Thomas, who for a long time had a large and lucrative practice, and who died a short time since ceased to practise.

Old Squire Embury, an Irishman, about eighty years ago, worked at cabinet-making business on the front, and was a secretary that he made, of cherry and black walnut, which is as sound as when first made, and not a crack, break or shrink is to be found in it; it is somewhat ancient in appearance. He and old Mr. Samuel McCrum were the founders of Methodism in the Midland District, if not, as we think, in Upper Canada.

The fourth township was Ernestown. Here and Samuel Jones, the latter of whom but recently died. He was well known in Napanee.

The first professional baker was Richard Gatell, who opened his bakery in Mrs. Gregory's old store in Clarkeville. His bread had the reputation of, although always being heavy, yet was nutured and wholesome.

Adrians Fell was the first to put up a barber's pole. After several years' practice in the tonsorial art, he got married to Prescott, where he has carried on the same profession, and where he has accumulated considerable property. He was a good shaver somewhat cruel, but is no larger than when here. Many others have succeeded him in Napanee in the trade.

Of coopers, Joseph Card, one of Camden, Willie Alexander, and Willie Gordon were the chief.

Of the first carpenters to work in Napanee, Mr. Blanchard, whose sliding sash-mill, built by his father-in-law, Henry Soperman, I believe, is the first mill of the kind which was put up in Canada. Stevenson's old store house stood where Mr. Wright's new store now stands. The old saw mill. He was killed by his team running away. Mark Anderson also preceded him in Napanee in the trade.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

During the past two weeks two or three of our correspondents have been sending us manuscript that is utterly false, which will cause them a great deal of trouble if the slandered persons prosecute. For instance, in last week's issue a letter came to this office with a slip enclosed asking us to "please publish and oblige, William Moir, Bell Rock." In the correspondence was an item re the marriage of a young lady, and the lady writes us that it is utterly false. Other false items have appeared, and as it is neither smart nor cute on the part of any person to send us manuscript of that nature, we would esteem it a favor if any person writing for The Beaver who feels like indulging in that sort of by-play would refrain from doing so and save themselves trouble, as, in cases of that kind, we will publish the name of the writer.

THE DUNSMURE OPERA CO.

The Dunsmure Opera Company will make its first appearance in Kingston, at the Grand, on Tuesday, May 12th, in Rossini's famous comic opera, "The Barber of Seville." The Company is one of the best organizations on the road to-day, and in its ranks are such well known artists as Mme. Monti Baldini, prima donna of the Manhattan Opera House, New York, Mr. John Dunsmure, celebrated basso from Covent Garden, London, Miss Lucia Nole, of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, Mr. Henry Phillips, tenor of "Madame Butterfly" Company, Roman Gorsko, from the Royal Opera Company, Milan, Italy, and others. "The Barber of Seville" is regarded as Rossini's best opera, having most of his best music and the comedy is entirely high class and gentlemanly. On account of the difficulty in securing artists who can do full justice to the opera, it has rarely been heard outside of the two big opera houses in New York.

The next meeting of the Union will be held at St. John's Church, Belleville.

SYMPHONY CONCERT A REAL SUCCESS.

Members of London Orchestra and Other Capable Artists on the Bill.

London Free Press.

An evening of melodious pleasure was enjoyed by a large audience at a local theatre last night, when the London Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. O. Stevens, contributed the second of their concerts. This splendid organization was assisted by a number of capable artists, notable among them being Mr. H. Ruthven McDonald, the baritone, ever welcome to the concert lovers of London.

That the clever Mr. Stevens has the qualities of organization as well as an undeniable ability as a conductor, is attested by the orchestra itself. It is certainty that there has been no symphony orchestra of its capabilities heard before in London, probably never in Canada. Mr. Stevens has most of the best musicians in London with him. They can excel in ragtime with reckless abandon and always back up the difficult overture, and do it the fullest measure of justice.

Last night's programme had a wide range, and each number was specially arranged by Mr. Stevens. Several of the medlies were masterpieces.

The trombone solo of Mr. Fred Weeks, in "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," was one of the most pleasing numbers. Mr. Week's tone is a perfect one.

Mr. Michael O'Rourke, the clarionet soloist, was given unstinted praise by the musicians in the audience.

The flute playing of Mr. Frank Vira stamped him as one of the most accomplished artists in his line of work. That he will be heard from is predicted by those who can appreciate his superb technique and tone.

Mr. McDonald was heard in four numbers and a duet with Mr. Chris. Pink. His reception was warm, as he deserved. The audience bespoke their interest in him with repeated recalls.

Miss Jean Robb recited "The Pied Piper of Hamlin," and won many friends. She is a reciter of many ability, and has established herself favorably.

Miss Bessie Oliver rendered two songs sweetly. Her "Captain Willie Brown" being especially captivating.

FLOWER, GARDEN AND LAWN SEED.

Earlscourt Prize Mixed Sweet Pea, 10 varieties, choice variety of flower and garden seeds. Also boat mixture in lawn grass seed. All new this year at The Medical Hall—Fred. L. Hooper.

LEGISLATION RESPECTING CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

Has been a prominent feature before the Dominion House this session. The idea is to enable the public to open co-operative stores without Government charters, the stockholders getting as dividend at the end of each year all profits minus expenses of the store.

It is similar to the Grangers or Patrons of Industry, which did not last long.

Napanee seems to have ever a better system in the new Cash Grocery, where everybody gets a dividend and special rebate at once, varying from 5 to 20 per cent. off the regular price, without furnishing part of the capital to start store or waiting until end of year for rebate.

The only question is can this or any company continue to sell such high class groceries so much cheaper than regular prices?

CENTREVILLE EAST.

Owing to wet weather seeding is later than usual. — Mr. Jas. Closs was the guest of Mr. W. Kelly.—The remains of the late Mrs. Jas. Lodge-head were interred in Centreville cemetery on Saturday last.—Mr. T. E. McGill is going to open his ice cream parlors on Saturday evening. —The Centreville baseball team has been organized for the summer, with E. Dean as Captain.—Mr. Charlie Loch head spent Monday in Kingston.—We are sorry to say that Mrs. Wm. Jas. Hinchey is not improving.—Mr. C. Wesse was in town yesterday.—The County crusher is running full blast.—Mr. Herbert Milligan is at home.—Mr. Wm. Dillon at Jas. O'Kay's, on Sunday.

GLENVALE.

We are all glad to see the good old summer time once more, and hope for better roads than there have been of late. One good thing it takes on week days instead of to Sundays.—Sunday School re-opened the first Sunday in May, and is progressing favorably under the management of Byron Gordon.—Miss E. Gibson, B.A., has resigned to her duties at Buffalo, N.Y.—Mr. W. Irvin, of Elephsburg, spent Sunday evening at Mr. P. Boyce's.—Miss Ruth Lancaster met with a serious accident, but we are hope for a speedy recovery.—Dr. Milton Gibson, of Toronto, is spending a few days at home.—Mrs. H. Watts, of Kingston, is spending a few days with her son, Mr. Sidney Watts.

BELL ROCK.

There is a good prospect for an abundant crop of hay if the old adage proves true, "A rainy May makes good hay." Several farmers of this district are shipping hay to Enterprise this week.—The President of the Mining Co. was in the village last week, and made arrangements to start the work in the spar mine next Monday.—Mr. James Yorke is visiting friends in Belleville. —Mrs. John Timmons is convalescent, after a severe attack of bronchitis and heart trouble.—D. Pomeroy is erecting a barn for the Allen property, which he purchased recently.—John Green is moving in the village.—J. Pomeroy is busy with his father at Wesley on Sunday last. —Mrs. W. Brooks is seriously ill.—Visitors—P. Timmons at John Timmons'; Rev. G. Churchill and sister Miss M. Churchill, at D. L. Arey's.

MARLBANK.

Mr. D. N. Armstrong, Supt. of The Canadian Portland Cement Company's plant here for the past seven or eight years, has been promoted to the same position at the company's new plant at Port Colborne. Prior to departure Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong were each presented with a fine travelling bag and an address by the employees, one of the most pleasing numbers. Mr. Week's tone is a perfect one.

Mr. Michael O'Rourke, the clarionet soloist, was given unstinted praise by the musicians in the audience.

The flute playing of Mr. Frank Vira stamped him as one of the most accomplished artists in his line of work. That he will be heard from is predicted by those who can appreciate his superb technique and tone.

Mr. McDonald was heard in four numbers and a duet with Mr. Chris. Pink. His reception was warm, as he deserved. The audience bespoke their interest in him with repeated recalls.

Miss Jean Robb recited "The Pied Piper of Hamlin," and won many friends. She is a reciter of many ability, and has established herself favorably.

Miss Bessie Oliver rendered two songs sweetly. Her "Captain Willie Brown" being especially captivating.

WESLEY.

The weather has proved very unsettled lately, and succeeded in keeping the farmers from their spring's work.—Mr. Alvin Wartman spent last Sunday under the parental roof.—Mr. Joe Tait is on the sick list. We are pleased to state Miss Jennie Breault is improving.—Mr. G. E. Wartman has commenced the annual repearance of his buildings by shingling.—On account of the unfavorable weather there was no league on Wednesday evening.—Mr. C. S. Wartman is the owner of a very fine horse.—Mr. Denyes preached a very interesting sermon on Sunday last.—Mrs. Shorey, of Toronto, is visiting with friends in this neighborhood.—Mr. John E. Wartman, jr., is able to be out again, after a slight attack of appendicitis.—Dr. Irvine Clancy has been visiting his cousin, Miss Bessie Clancy, recently.—We are all very sorry to hear of the intended departure of Rev. Mr. Duke. He will be greatly missed in our midst.

LARKINS.

The death of Thomas Taylor, the second son of Mr. Richard Taylor, of Big Island, occurred on Sunday, May 3rd. The announcement came as a shock, for though it had been known for several days that deceased was ill from appendicitis, nothing serious was then considered. Dr. Sprague, Dr. Burrows, assisted by two other doctors, performed an operation only to learn that their case was hopeless, and the fatal termination of his illness followed on Sunday evening, 3rd inst. Though his death was a shock to his family they have the consolation of knowing that he died fortified by the rites of Holy Church, and in the confident hope that his soul is now reaping the reward of a well spent life. The funeral took place on Tuesday, May 5th, to remains being conveyed to St. Patrick's church, Enterprise, where high mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Carey, thence to the R. C. cemetery where interment was made in the family plot.—It was indeed somber, though to the observing eye an imposing picture to see on a bright May morning the funeral cortege entering the church, and as the pews were the many sorrowing friends who witnessed so sympathetic a scene, and at the solemn music of the Requiem many tears were shed. There were there, even more than side the church, who did not feel the great consolation of so happy an end to the life of their young and highly esteemed friend.

NEWBURGH.

The heavy rain of last week will delay the seeding in this vicinity.

Engineer Craig and B. G. Haimm, of Odessa, were in the village this week in reference to the new bridge. We understand a temporary bridge is to be built a few rods west of the present structure, for the convenience of the public until the new bridge is completed. The water in the river at present is very high, and this will delay building operations for a short time.

Empire Day will be fittingly observed in the High School on Friday afternoon next, May 22d. Mr. W. A. Ketcheson has kindly consented to speak on "How the Empire was built" and there will also be a few patriotic recitations with excellent music befitting the occasion. This programme will start promptly at 2 p.m. This will be the closing Literary of the academy year, and Principal Denyes is anxious that the public should avail themselves of this opportunity of visiting this worthy institution. A cordial invitation is therefore extended to all to attend and a programme of exceptional interest is promised.

The many friends in the village of Bruce Martin were greatly shocked to hear of his death on Thursday of last week.—Miss Jennie Brandon and Miss Mona Denyes, of Tamworth, were in the village on Thursday of last week to attend the funeral of the late Warren Measham.

Rev. R. Duke conducted quarterly service in Arden on Sunday last, and Mr. J. M. Denyes preached a very forcible sermon on stewardship in the Methodist church here on Sunday evening last.

Mr. Thomas Winters has taken over the business of Mr. J. W. Yeomans, and will conduct it in future. Mr. Winters is one of our popular citizens, and we bespeak for him a large measure of success in his new venture.

Miss Beaman, of the H. S. staff, spent Sunday at Yarker.

Rev. Spencer, the new rector of Camden parish, preached in St. John's church on Sunday afternoon. The new rector comes highly recommended and will no doubt prove very popular in his new field of labor.

Miss Annie Beeman, of Fort William, arrived home on Saturday for a short visit to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Beeman.

Wesley Shorts left on Tuesday to resume his position in Connecticut U.S.

Mrs. John Shorts returned home from Kingston General Hospital on Saturday.—Mr. Hughes visited in Desoronto.—John Patterson visited in Napanee.—The Special Committee, appointed by the Trustee Board of the Methodist church, are now canvassing the holders of plots in the Newburgh cemetery in reference to the advisability of appointing a permanent caretaker.

CLOYNE.

Cleaning house and making gardens are the order of the day.—Remains of Cyrus Cole were brought from Tweed for burial on Thursday, and the funeral services were well attended on Sunday in the Methodist church.—Mr. Hut makes seven of that family laying in that plot.—News have just been received that Mrs. Albert Spencer, of Sault Ste. Marie died very suddenly. They moved from Cloyne not long ago. Much sympathy is felt for Mr. Spencer, as she was loved by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons and a loving husband.—Mr. Arthur Crabtree, who has been employed at Mr. S. Dafoe's, putting up their new barn, finished on Thursday, and returned to his home in Bosley spent Sunday the guest of her daughter, Mrs. M. Wickwire.—The ice is out of the lakes, and Mr. Bosley spent Sunday the guest of her daughter, Mrs. M. Kenwelly's on Saturday.—Mr. and Mrs. George Head spent Sunday at his father's home, Mr. H. Head.—Mr. A. Crabtree at Mr. S. Caddy's.—Mr. and Mrs. Thos. ELECTRIC POWER.

At a meeting of the ratepayers held in the Council Chamber on Saturday night, to consider matters of lighting the town and supplying electricity to run enterprises, W. C. Scott addressed the gathering, advising that the town secure energy for lighting and manufacturing purposes from the Trent Valley Dr. Ward, from the Hydro-Electric Power Company, for supplying the town with 200 horse power, at $25 per horse power, and a lesser rate offered for a large horse power. The proposition is for Trenton, Belleville, Desoronto, Napanee and Kingston to enter into a compact to secure power from Trenton, where unlimited energy is obtainable, and could be procured. It was decided at the meeting to further investigate the proposition on Saturday for with individuals and manufacturers as to the probable horse power required, and also to hold out inducements to outside manufacturers to come to Napanee. It was also said that the day of Quinte contemplated the electrification of its system between Napanee and Desoronto. W. C. Scott said that in his travels he had not met with a town that could offer such inducements to manufacturer as Napanee, and all that was required was a little boosting to make this one of the best manufacturing and residential towns in Ontario. Napanee has a water privilege which with a little enterprise could be made second to none in Canada.

A sad drowning accident occurred not far from Black River on Monday night, May 4th, between eleven and twelve o'clock, William Manly Mack, a man about fifty-two years of age, and his son Archie, aged fourteen years, were the victims. The two Macks and Fred Phalen had been fishing. Having not met with good success they proceeded to run some net, belonging to Mack. In running the net he lost his ballance and fell backward. The boat turned over and threw the three occupants into the water. It is said by Phalen, the survivor, who swam ashore, that the father and son climbed onto the bottom of the upturned boat, but in shifting their position they rolled off into the water again. They hung on the side of the boat until exhausted and were forced to let go, which they both sank to their death.

And the hopes in fondness cherished
Brighten, but to pass away.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flour in the market.

When baking bread, pastry, etc., use patronize your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts and Chop feed cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported hundreds of miles at great expense, and usually when it reaches you it is of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the merchant goes to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds or miles away, when he can get flour from his own home mill that is just as good and in many cases better proof of the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Chicks Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

TORONTO

...NAPANEE CUT RATE DRUGGISTS...

LAWRASON & CO.—R. H. J. PASMORE, Manager

The first four months of 1908 have ended with the heaviest selling record this DRUG STORE has ever made in any similar period.

This splendid achievement has been obtained through our great strength of BUYING and SELLING, and a WILLINGNESS to do BUSINESS ON A COMMERCIAL BASIS OF PROFIT, not on the OLD DRUG STORE BASIS OF PROFIT. We are WILLING to sell GOODS on the SAME BASIS OF PROFIT AS GROCERIES, DRY GOODS AND OTHER ARTICLES OF COMMERCE ARE SOLD.

This new way of SELLING DRUG STORE GOODS has been appreciated by the PURCHASING PUBLIC, and hence our phenomenal increase in business.

Of course, we don't have to tell THOSE PEOPLE WHO TRADE here that OURS is the BEST DRUG STORE to buy DRUGS AND DRUG STORE GOODS IN NAPANEE—YES, IN ONTARIO; but we want others to know it.

We wouldn't have GROWN as we have had we not given a LITTLE MORE for a LITTLE LESS, a LITTLE BETTER for THE SAME MONEY, AND ALWAYS THE BEST OF SERVICE.

We can't be the nearest DRUG STORE TO EVERYBODY. You may have to walk a little FARTHER SOMETIMES, but our PRICES make the WALKING MIGHTY PROFITABLE. If you don't want to walk, you can have anything we sell sent to your door by sending a letter or 'phone message of instruction. We look after your interest just as if you were here. I guess OURS IS THE PLACE YOU HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR. PUT US TO THE TEST.

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

An Old Directory.

We have had presented to the Society a copy of the old Canadian Directory, which was published in 1851-52. In looking over the pages, with a special reference to the villages in this County, it occurred to me that the names of the residents of that period would be interesting to the readers of The Beaver. How few of those good people are now living! ... perhaps the publication of these names will stimulate the interest in the Historical Society and will call to memory some event of the early days, which has been overlooked or forgotten. The Society is always looking for new material, and it is hoped the older residents will do all in their power to get a record of the early years written and deposited in our archives.

How to Cook Rice.

PRESSED RICE.

Boil and mix, while hot, with a tablespoonful of drawn butter for each cupful of the cooked rice.

Season with pepper, salt and a few drops of onion juice. Turn into a shallow dish and set a plate upon it, covering it entirely.

Press the plate down firmly and lay a weight on the plate. When the rice is cold and stiff, cut into squares, or into strips, and fry to a light brown in a little butter.

Drain and serve hot and dry with chicken or game. Or you may cut the strips lightly butter them and lay about a roast fowl as garnish and accompaniment.

FRIED RICE.

Boil and press as in the preceding recipes, letting the rice get perfectly cold. It is best to do this the day before it is to be eaten. Cut into rounds or triangles, roll each piece in egg and cracker crumbs and fry quickly in deep fat.

Drain well and serve hot. This is a pleasant adjunct to poultry or meat, and likewise a good plain dessert when eaten with hard sauce.

RICE AND MEAT PUDDING.

Boil a cupful of rice in two quarts of salted water until it is tender—not broken. Drain, and dry out in the open oven.

Now, mix into it a cupful of hot milk in which has been stirred a teaspoonful of cornstarch.

Beat a raw egg light, add to the rice, with a tablespoonful of butter, and let all get cold. Make ready a cupful of minced meat—poultry or lamb, or veal will not do.

Blanch two tablespoonfuls of almonds, and chop fine. Mix with the meat, season highly and wet with strong gravy, just enough to moisten it thoroughly. When the rice is cold, toss and stir all the ingredients together, mingling without mashing meat and rice.

Butter a cake mould well, coat the buttered sides with fine crumbs and put in the pudding. Fit the top on the mould and set in a deep pan of boiling water.

Place the pan in the oven and cook for an hour or so, a half, replenishing the water in the pan as it boils down. Dip the mould for an instant in cold water to make the pudding shrink from the sides, and turn out upon a hot dish. Pour a thick well-strained tomato sauce into which you have stirred two large tablespoonfuls of Parmesan cheese.

This excellent pudding will serve as the chief dish of a family dinner. It is cheap, easily made and savory.

RICE CROQUETTES.

Into a cupful of cold boiled rice stir the beaten yolk of an egg, a teaspoonful each of melted butter and of white sugar, half an inch salt an sugar, and about a cupful of milk into which you have stirred a teaspoonful of cornstarch.

The mixture should be just stiff enough to handle. Mould into balls or ovates, or into the shape of pears, flouring your hands as you work.

Dip in beaten egg, then in cracker dust and set in a cold place for some hours to stiffen. Then fry in deep fat to a light brown.

Take up with a split spoon, and serve upon a heated dish. It is well to line the dish with several folds of tissue paper, also heated, to absorb the grease.

These are pretty when made in pear shapes, with a bit of green parsley in the small end.

...NAPANEE CUT RATE DRUGGISTS...

LAWRASON & CO.—R. H. J. PASMORE, Manager

The first four months of 1908 have ended with the heaviest selling record this DRUG STORE has ever made in any similar period.

This splendid achievement has been obtained through our great strength of BUYING and SELLING, and a WILLINGNESS to do BUSINESS ON A COMMERCIAL BASIS OF PROFIT, not on the OLD DRUG STORE BASIS OF PROFIT. We are WILLING to sell GOODS on the SAME BASIS OF PROFIT AS GROCERIES, DRY GOODS AND OTHER ARTICLES OF COMMERCE ARE SOLD.

This new way of SELLING DRUG STORE GOODS has been appreciated by the PURCHASING PUBLIC, and hence our phenomenal increase in business.

Of course, we don't have to tell THOSE PEOPLE WHO TRADE here that OURS is the BEST DRUG STORE to buy DRUGS AND DRUG STORE GOODS IN NAPANEE—YES, IN ONTARIO; but we want others to know it.

We wouldn't have GROWN as we have had we not given a LITTLE MORE for a LITTLE LESS, a LITTLE BETTER for THE SAME MONEY, AND ALWAYS THE BEST OF SERVICE.

We can't be the nearest DRUG STORE TO EVERYBODY. You may have to walk a little FARTHER SOMETIMES, but our PRICES make the WALKING MIGHTY PROFITABLE. If you don't want to walk, you can have anything we sell sent to your door by sending a letter or 'phone message of instruction. We look after your interest just as if you were here. I guess OURS IS THE PLACE YOU HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR. PUT US TO THE TEST.

How to Cook Rice.

PRESSED RICE.

Boil and mix, while hot, with a tablespoonful of drawn butter for each cupful of the cooked rice.

Season with pepper, salt and a few drops of onion juice. Turn into a shallow dish and set a plate upon it, covering it entirely.

Press the plate down firmly and lay a weight on the plate. When the rice is cold and stiff, cut into squares, dip into eggs, and fry to a light brown in a little butter.

Drain and serve hot and dry with chicken or game. Or you may cut the strips lightly, butter them and arrange in a roast fowl as garnish and accompaniment.

FRIED RICE.

Boil and press as in the preceding recipes, letting the rice get perfectly cold. It is best to do this the day before it is to be eaten. Cut into rounds or triangles, roll each piece in egg and cracker crumbs and fry quickly in deep fat.

Drain well and serve hot. This is a pleasant adjunct to poultry or meat, and, with a good plain dessert, often eaten with hard sauce.

RICE AND MEAT PUDDING.

Boil a cupful of rice in two quarts of salted water until it is tender—not longer. Drain, and dry out in the open oven.

Now, mix into it a cupful of hot milk in which has been stirred a teaspoonful of cornstarch.

Beat a raw egg light, add to the rice, with a tablespoonful of butter, and set all aside. Make ready a cupful of minced meat—poultry or lamb, or veal, and well set.

Blanch two tablespoonfuls of almonds, and chop fine. Mix with the meat, season highly and wet with strong gravy, just enough to moisten it thoroughly. When the rice is cold, toss and stir all the ingredients together, mingling without mashing meat and rice.

Butter a pudding mould well; coat the buttered sides with fine crumbs and put in the pudding. Fit the top on the mould and set in a deep pan of boiling water.

Place the pan in the oven and cook for an hour and a half, replenishing the water in the pan as it boils down. Dip the mould for an instant in cold water to make the pudding come from the sides, and turn out upon a hot dish. Serve with strained tomato sauce into which you have stirred two large tablespoonfuls of Parmesan cheese.

This excellent pudding will serve as the chief dish of a family dinner. It is cheap, easily made and savory.

RICE CROQUETTES.

Into a cupful of cold boiled rice stir the beaten yolk of an egg, a teaspoonful each of melted butter and white sugar, half as much salt as sugar, and about a cupful of milk into which you have stirred a teaspoonful of cornstarch.

The mixture should be just stiff enough to mould into balls or ovates, or into the shape of pears, flouring your hands as you work.

Dip in beaten egg, then in cracker dust and set in a cold place for some hours to stiffen. Then fry in deep fat to a light brown.

Take up with a split spoon and serve upon a heated dish. It is well to line the dish with several folds of tissue paper, also heated, to absorb the grease. These are pretty when made in pear shapes, with a bit of green parsley in the small end.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do You Fear Consumption?

When we take into consideration the fact that one out of every seven in this climate die of consumption, is it any wonder that it is feared by the people of Napanee who have weak lungs and chronic colds and coughs.

A famous London physician has for years urged his patients, when the slightest tendency to consumption appeared, to try all the cod liver oil possible into their systems, and physicians everywhere have recognized its value for coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption and all wasting diseases, but, unfortunately, few could take it and receive the full benefit from its use, on account of the indigestible portion which it contained.

We want every person in Napanee to know the value of our new cod liver preparation, Vinol. It actually contains in a concentrated form all of the medicinal body-building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, without a drop of oil or grease to upset the stomach and retard its work.

Therefore, if your weak, old-fashioned cod liver oil or emulsions will do good, Vinol will do far more good. We guarantee Vinol will improve the appetite, strength on digestion, make rich, red blood, create strength, cure chronic coughs and colds and strengthen weak lungs.

If Vinol fails to give satisfaction to your complete satisfaction, we positively question. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

CROYDON.

The first baseball match of the season took place on Saturday afternoon on Oliver Park ground, when the married men met their bachelor brothers in an exciting match. Jake Doupe and Marsh Williams were on the firing line for the married chaps, while Sherman Delion and Rose Quinn were the bachelor's battery. Doupe twirled a clever game up to the sixth innings, not allowing the opposing team to score, but in the seventh the youngsters solved his delivery and pounded him for ten runs, including two homers and two three bases hits. Doupe was taken out of the box and H. Piper finished the game in a blaze of glory, striking out five of the eight men who opposed him. But Jimmy Hughes smashed out another home run, while Josie Nolan doubled to left and romped home, when A. Campbell made a mess of Quinn's grounder to Centre. The married men put up a scrappy game, but were never dangerous at any stage, failing to connect with Delion's curves when hits meant runs. A. Hughes' batting and M. Williams' base running were features. Williams also worked clever behind the bat, and only once did the ball get past him. The game was marked by constant wrangling, chiefly by the married men, who threatened to leave the field on a close decision by umpire Deline, when Doupe was nipped at the plate by a perfect throw from deep centre by Jimmy Hughes. The score at finish read 12-5 in favor of the younger men who deserved their victory. The teams were

Pte. Moir Captured.

THE LONDON MURDERER PUT UP A HARD FIGHT.

Taken at Farm House Near Arthur, After Desperate Resistance—A long Chase Ended.

Arthur, Ont., May 11th.—Moir, the London murderer, was caught on Saturday, by P. J. Farrell, chief of police of Arthur, about ten miles from the country from Arthur, in Nichol township.

He was at a farmer's by the name of James Robb. Moir was standing in the horse stable when Mr. Farrell captured him. He put up a desperate fight, but with the assistance of Stephen Coughlin, of Arthur, was finally overpowered. Chief Farrell finally handcuffed him, searched and found him armed with a thirty-two calibre revolver, fully loaded, which he concealed under his belt.

After the arrest he asked Chief Farrell who he was. When he was informed by whom he was arrested, he fully confessed that he shot the sergeant, but pleaded drunkenness, and did not know that he had killed the sergeant till he saw it in Strathroy papers.

Moir is held here in Arthur jail, guarded, and communication has been sent to Chief Williams, of London. Chief Farrell will receive the reward of $500, which was offered for Moir's capture.

GREAT YEAR FOR TRAMPS.

"Knights of Road" Are Very Much in Evidence.

Kingston Whig.

That the "knights of the road" are very much in evidence this season, is shown by the records of the police. The statistics go to show that so far this year, 362 tramps have been afforded a night's shelter at the police station. The rush commenced with the opening of spring, and has continued right along. During the month of April, 136 tramps were guests at police headquarters. There has been as many as twelve given shelter in one night. Only last night, nine made application for shelter.

The police have nothing to offer, but a hard bench, but this is gladly welcomed. Some given shelter are of the true "hobo" class, who refuse to work, while others are men who are in hard luck, and have tramped many a mile for work. The average person wishes to keep clear from the police station, but to these poor unfortunates it is indeed a welcome place.

The Ceiling Collapsed.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE OF FIFTY SCHOOL CHILDREN AT LONDON.

Crashing Sound Warned the Little Ones, and They Hid Under the Seats, While the Whole Ceiling Fell—No One Seriously Hurt.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

London, May 7th.—The escape from serious injury, if not death, of the 50 children in room No. 2 of St. George's School when the ceiling fell to-day, was little short of miraculous. The accident occurred just before noon. The children were listening to a drawing lesson given by Miss Powell, the superintendent of arts. She was being assisted by the teacher, Miss Upsall, when suddenly there was a crashing sound, and it was seen that the whole wooden ceiling was about to fall. The children "ducked" under the seats, those nearest the doors darting out, while the whole ceiling came down with a crash on the desks and seats. When the noise had ceased the children, covered with dust and dirt, and some of them scratched and bruised, emerged from under the debris and were taken in charge by Principal Wyatt. Strange to say, there was no panic. Principal Wyatt, the teacher, who, with Miss Upsall, had a narrow escape, and the children acted like veterans. No excitement, no hurry, just quietly, like little soldiers, they marched out. It was simply splendid."

A general alarm was sent to the fire department, and Chief Clash and his men were on the scene in a few minutes.

The police ambulance was also rushed to the scene, but was not used, as none of the children required the services of the medical men.

The accident happened in lower form No. 3 room. This room is in the old part of the school, which is now some forty years old. The school has been built a lath and plaster roof, which six or seven years ago was replaced by a matched wooden ceiling. It was this added ceiling that fell to-day. Had it broken instead of falling en masse the consequences might have been terrible.

"What," inquired the Sunday School teacher of her youthful pupils— "what are divers diseases?"

Bashful or ignorant, the scholars clung tenaciously to the doctrine that little boys should be seen and not heard.

"Come," pursued the teacher, "can't any of you tell me?"

Then Johnnie's arm shot up.

"Well?" asked the teacher.

"Please, miss," answered Johnnie, "water on the brain."

PROTECTION AGAINST BALLOT-BOX-STUFFING.

A very valuable change in the law is that which gives the candidate the right to have a recount of the votes, no matter what the majority against him may happen to be. Under the Hons law a recount could not be asked for unless the majority was under 200.

This gave the honest stuffer an opportunity. It was explained at one of the trials by one of these experts that if by the stuffing process the majority could be swollen to a figure exceeding 200, it was impossible to detect the fraud, because no candidate records could not be asked for, and the ballots could not be examined by the candidate who had been beaten. The law which forbade a recount unless the majority exceeded 200 thus helped the ballot-box stuffing operations.

By the new law which says that a candidate can have a recount, no matter what the majority against him may be, the protection hitherto enjoyed by the ballot-box stuffer is swept away, for the examination of the ballots by a judge will expose him.

FOR 5 YEARS EACH SPRING

FACE AND SCALP ERUPTIONS

TROUBLED THIS LADY TILL ZAM-BUK CURED.

Miss Mary Levesque, 313 Stadacona St., Hochelaga, Montreal writes:—"I have found Zam-Buk an excellent remedy for skin eruptions. Up to this Spring I was bothered for about five years with a red rash, small pimples and sores on my face and on the scalp thro' the hair. Nothing I used would clear this rash from the skin until I began using Zam-Buk. This salve has effectually and I believe permanently taken all these unsightly pimples and sores from both scalp and face. I shall recommend Zam-Buk to all my friends."

For healing eczema and all skin diseases Zam-Buk is without equal. It is purely herbal, and does not contain a trace of mineral poison. Price also good for Cuts and Burns, Sores, Ulcers, Blood Poisons and Ringworm, 50c. per box, from all druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

GAS HOUSE BURNED.

On Saturday night last, as our citizens were about to retire to rest, the fire alarm sounded, when it soon became known by the townspeople that the gas works were on fire. A small sized panic was soon created by the supposition that an explosion was likely to follow, which might do a great deal of damage to buildings near, as well as endangering the lives of the inmates. However nothing more serious occurred than the burning of the plant, which was badly damaged in spite of the heroic work done by the fire brigade. Dr. Cartwright has assured us that the works will be put in operation again as soon as possible. The loss is partly covered by insurance, and we understand the plant will probably be in operation again in four or five weeks.

OBITUARY.

This locality lost one of its oldest citizens on April 22d, in the death of Mrs. Melinda Jackson, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. S. Wilson, in South Napanee. The deceased was the daughter of the late Wm. Scott, and was born in 1823, on the farm now occupied by Mr. Sidney Scott, near Mink's bridge. Like those of a former generation she has seen a wonderful change in this locality. When she was a girl Napanee was a small village, and much of it was forest. Mrs. Jackson was converted at a camp meeting held on her father's farm in 1842, and ever since her conversion she has been a true believer in Christ and His power to keep her till the last.

In 1844 she was married to the late Dorland Jackson, who predeceased her thirty years. For the last eighteen years she has made her home with Mr. F. S. Wilson, her son-in-law. She leaves to mourn her loss, one daughter, Mrs. F. S. Wilson, and four sons, Walter S. Jackson, of Winnipeg; Milton C., of Pittsburg, Pa.; Alonzo M., of Marlbank, and Irvine R., of Selby, also two sisters, Mrs. Ibri Sills and Mrs. Irvine Parks.

The funeral service, conducted by Revds. J. R. Real and C. W. DeMille, was held at the home of her daughter, and was largely attended. Her remains were laid to rest in the Western cemetery. Of her it may truly be said, "Her end was peace."

Muffins or Stale Bread.---In every family bread is apt to accumulate, and the good economist always manages to dispose of it in some useful way before it molds. The following recipe makes the easiest way of making such a disposition, and will be found reliable: Take a quart loaf of bread, slice it, and put it in a bowl, and pour on sufficient water to cover, and let it stand until well soaked; then press the water from it, and mash the bread until no lumps remain. Add two thoroughly beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one of melted butter or lard, a little salt, a very small portion of soda (unless the bread or milk is sour when more will be required), and milk enough to make it into a stiff batter. Bake in muffin rings or drop from a spoon upon a griddle.

COMMUNICATION.

Napanee, May 21st, 1907.

Newman, Livingston & Co.

Gentlemen,—I have been pleased to see that you have very thoughtfully considered the great need of our citizens, and come to our rescue by opening up a charitable institution for the distribution of Groceries, etc., and assisting the public generally.

You will not only have the applause of the public generally, but that you are sure of a large share at patronage as long as you will continue to cut the prices. This is what the public like to see, quite ignoring the investment of capital and expenses.

We opened business here May 1st, 1907, and received the above with a lot more similar, June 1st, certainly sent by one of our competitors, but signed a citizen.

Though our prices were so far below our competitors as to cause them to feel and write as above, we did not sell one thing in our first month less than our regular price in our Picton store, which prices we have had for several years and can keep up perpetually.

We challenge any competitor to show that we have not continued selling as close to manufacturer's cost as we did the first month. That some competitors charged their prices and profits to meet ours is the only reason our prices have not continued to be as far below the others as when we first opened.

TAMWORTH.

The league service on Friday evening was well attended.

D. B. Floyd, of Floyd & Co., was in Arden a few days last week on business.

The Hearts of Oak Lodge No. 57 held a meeting on Saturday evening last. There were a few of the members present from Croydon. The purpose of the meeting was to decide whether the members should support the Whitney Government, and to nominate a man to run for the Legislative Assembly. It was put to a vote and the members decided not to support such an extravagant Government. Those who attended from Croydon were W. Carl Quinn, Edward Hannah and Marsh Williams. W. Carl Quinn addressed the meeting and was in favor of supporting the Government as they had used him fine in raising the salaries of teachers. Edward Hannah also addressed the meeting, but he did not approve of supporting the Government as he said he had not had a real good crop from his farm since Whitney came in power. Pat. Rose addressed the meeting and was in favor of the present Government. Dick Rudolph, Tommy Walters, Timothy Craig, Wm. Pomeroy, Jake Smith, Rhodea Dick, Sipper Weighill and W. S. Wagar and G. H. Richardson were opposed to the present government; so it was decided not to support them. The meeting closed by singing God Save the King.

The Tamworth Opera Company will give their grand concert in Merrill's hall, Enterprise, in aid of the R. C. church, on Monday night, 25th May.

The Tamworth boys are playing baseball on the show ground until their diamond gets fit to play on. A very interesting baseball game was played here on Friday evening last, between the married men and single men. The score was 6-11 in favor of the married men.

The game was played well for a practice game, but Carney was too much for the singles, and the way he twirled the ball over the plate was fine. Armstrong came to the bat and hit the wind three times. Then came McAfee and he fouled it once then hit the wind twice and walked away. Then came Rose, who also hit the wind three times, and walked away more surprised than satisfied. Then the married men took the bat, and the singles the field. But Armstrong was Walters walked to his base. Then came Carney, who hit the wind once, then struck the ball out over the right fielder's head and over the grand stand. He thus made a home run amid cheers of the crowd. Parks tired Armstrong out, and then Stan Wagar went in the box. Dick Rudolph made a bunt hit and reached first. Then came Bell to the bat, who hit the ball out to the centre fielder who muffed it and he reached first. Then came Jake Smith, and with three men on bases, struck the ball over the grand stand, thus bringing in four runs. I. Paul struck the ball out to the short stop, and McAfee made a pretty triple play, putting Bell out who was running from second to third, and Parks at home and Paul on first. Then the singles came to bat, but Carney's twirling was too much for them, and they never saw first until the eighth innings, and then Armstrong, Wagar, Rose, Simmons, Fuller and McAfee were successful in scoring in the last two innings. W. E. Carscallen umpired the game and everything went off satisfactorily, with a score of 6-11 in favor of the married men. They will play again on Saturday next with the same teams all round.

W. C. Quinn was in town on Sunday evening.

The baseball game between Ballance and Tamworth was called off on Saturday last, the grounds being too wet.

TRAVERS—SHIRLEY.

Our townspeople received a shock of pleasant surprise on Saturday morning, May 16th, when the bell of St. Mary Magdalene's church announced the nuptials of Mr. R. G. H. Travers, the popular manager of the Crown Bank here, with Mrs. Deborah Duning Shirley, widow of the late John A. Shibley, one of the most charming and deservedly popular ladies of the town. This is the first time the new bell has been rung for a wedding, and also the first wedding solemnized in the Parish by Rural Dean Dibb since his appointment as Vicar. Only the immediate friends were present at the ceremony, and after a light luncheon at the residence of the bride, the happy couple went off on the noon flyer for their honeymoon. The bride looked very charming in a brown travelling suit and a merry widow hat adorned with a large bunch of violets. Both are Beaver readers. The Beaver respectfully tenders congratulations and best wishes.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

Ask your baker for Dafoe's, and refuse your home mill, thereby producing bread and pastry that you can positively assure has been made from the Western mills, which has to be transported hundreds of miles at great expense, and spoiled when it reaches you is of inferior quality. The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour for more money than you can make it yourself. Some prophet for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Choice Cornmeal and Buckwheat flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade. A full stock of the best Anthracite Coal; also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

To the Electors of the County of Lennox.

Fellow Electors.—The time is drawing near when the electors of this County be called upon to elect a representative for the Provincial Parliament.

It may not be possible for me to see you all personally, but I take this method of placing myself before you and reaching as many as possible.

I have had a splendid time and the reception accorded my friends and me on the occasion of entering on the campaign for the Provincial Parliament. I am therefore now before you to ask for your solicitation, your votes and influence at the approaching election.

I need not say that this honour was placed upon me unsought or unsolicited.

My opponent and myself are personal friends, and although we differ in politics there is no need to be otherwise. I have always been with our social or business relations, and I am pleased in saying that we always continue and close the contest as good friends as we commenced it. Latter on I will that I do not need any personal introduction to you. I have been with you and among you in fact for the last twenty-five years, and have taken a prominent and active part in politics and local affairs. Your gentlemanly conduct has placed me under my ability to perform the important duties pertaining thereto in a manner creditable to myself and advantageous to the old County of Lennox. Whilst my politics have been partisan, I shall never consider myself pledged to support my party through when I believe them to be right and acting in the interests of the Province, and feel free to vote for the man I think best fit to do the work, and can justify, either to my party or opponents, the action I shall see fit to take as your honored representative.

From what I have already said you will understand my position, and I trust it will meet with your approval. Should it not, your generous support, irrespective of party or matters pertaining to our good County, should you honor me with confidence and support, will be highly appreciated by me, and I promise you a straightforward course, and you will ever find me ready and willing to do my best at all times to further the interests of our own locality, and especially that part as settled and identified with the County of Lennox, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations, and if I can consistently and properly do a political opposition as settled I shall be cheerfully at his disposal as well as to those attached to him. Thanking you in advance for your support in politics for a representative of the people to take.

I hope to have during the campaign an opportunity of discussing with you on the platform the different questions that may be the many public questions which are at the present time interesting to the people.

To those of you who I shall not be able to see personally I hope that this will make no difference as to the activity you will put forth on my behalf, and I trust that you will consider yourself at home and invite them to the polls to cast their ballot in the cause of good Government.

Again soliciting your votes, influence and support at the approaching election, and thanking you in advance, I am,

Your obedient servant,
M. S. MADOLE.

BRUCE MARTIN.

One of the many sad occurrences of last week was the death of Mr. Bruce Martin, which took place at Tank, Persia, of this town. Bruce was a fine young man of splendid character, possessed of excellent character. Born on the farm in Ernestown, he together with his mother and brother, managed the farm since his father's death, and by care and skill did so very successfully. In 1905 he was united in marriage to Miss Carrie Masten, daughter of Mr. M. Masten, of Ernestown, and soon after removed to Toronto, where he entered into business with Mr. Powell, boot and shoe merchant. With all the defects and drawbacks of an arterial of him, Bruce threw himself into his new line of work and speed it won his employer's good-will and "high esteem. After a much too short only four months' acquaintance, it was his intention during the present year to re-enter Mr. Martin with the entire management of his branch house at Weston. This purpose so creditable to both was frustrated by the attack of typhoid fever which seized hold of the young man on the 1st inst., and terminated fatally despite the utmost that could be done for him. Too much praise can not be given to Dr. Fraser, the nurse, Miss Burbridge, for their unwearied attentions during the last illness of Mr. Powell, Ilev. and Mrs. Potter and Mr. Martin remains were forwarded to Napanee for interment. The funeral service was conducted at the home of his mother, by the Rev. W. H. Emsley, assisted by the Rev. S. F. Mears. The prayerful sympathies of a large circle of sorrowing friends go out to the sorely afflicted young widow, the mother, the four brothers, and the many others who stood in near relation to the departed.

WHAT IS LIFE TO YOU?

To the preacher life's a sermon,
To the joker it's a jest;
To the miser life is money,
To the leader life is rest.

To the lawyer life's a trial,
To the poet life's a song;
To the doctor life's a patient
That needs treatment right along.

To the soldier life's a battle,
To the teacher life's a school;
Life's a good deal to the grafter,
It's a failure to the fool.

To the man upon the engine
Life's a land beauty grade;
It's a gamble to the gambler,
To the merchant life's a trade.

Life's a picture to the artist,
To the sailor life's a chart;
Life perhaps is but a burden
To the man beneath the load.

Life is lovely to the lover,
To the plater life's a play;
To the author life's a novel,
To the man upon the dray.

Life is but a long vacation
To the man who loves his work;
Life's an everlasting effort
To shun duty to the shirk.

To the heaven's blest romancer
Life's a story ever new;
Life is what we try to make it—
Brother, what is life to you?

GRAND TRUNK AT THE FRANCO-BRITISH EXHIBITION, LONDON, ENG.

It is a well known fact that at all the World's Fairs and International Exhibitions, held in the past decade, the Grand Trunk has been right prominently represented with attractive displays, and in each case gold medals and diplomas have been their award. At the Franco-British Exhibition which is to be held at Shepherd's Bush, London, May to October, this year, the Grand Trunk are not behind in their progressiveness, having secured a beautiful pavilion covering 20,000 square feet, which will be a picturesque spot known as the French Court.

This structure follows in design the Renaissance style of architecture with its artistic pillared entrance.

Over the entrance will be a group representing the Grand Trunk Railway System as "queen" of all, an electric globe surmounting the head of the central figure emblematic of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and on each side of this figure is represented in smaller figures the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, the Great Lakes and their hands, representing the spanning of the Continental Railway. This allegorical group is a very imposing one and the idea is appropriate.

The interior of the building is arranged in a combination of color harmony of a delicate shade of green and white, and the walls are beautifully portrayed by a series of bromide enlargements finished in sepia tint and framed in a dull quarter-cut oak. The photographic work has been executed by Mr. J. W. Swan, the well known landscape photographer, who has excelled himself, if possible, in this collection. These pictures will be shown for a distance of two feet from the ceiling, and the entire interior has been set off by a beautiful frieze made up of grains and grasses from Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. In this frieze are embedded specimens of Canadian fruits and grains, which in an attractive way, the whole forming a most interesting display.

In the centre of the room a pyramid has been erected, which is shown with samples of the cereals of the Province of Ontario, as well as natural samples of fruit from the "Garden of Canada."

Animated pictures, panoramic, projecting fishing, hunting and railroad scenes, and other features on the floor space, interesting and attractive literature has been specially prepared for distribution, and it is estimated that from fifteen to twenty-million people will visit this exhibition during its lifetime. Canada and the Grand Trunk Railway System will receive a tremendous amount of publicity through this medium.

Among the special features on display in this building will be two exceptionally fine moose heads, one the trophy head taken from the Province of Ontario, and the other a head that will attract a great deal of attention.

Mr. S. W. Cummings, who until recently was General Passenger Agent of the Central Vermont Railway, has been appointed to the position of Director of this exhibit.

FIRST WEDDING AT ST. THOMAS' CHURCH, MORVEN.

Pringle—Brandon.

The scribe at Morven omitted through an oversight to chronicle an event which undoubtedly is of interest to the day in connection with the history of the Anglican Church of St. Thomas, on April 22d, 1908, Miss Florence Hazel Pringle, a prosperous young farmer of Richmond Township, and Stephen Mac Brandon, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brandon, both of Morven, were the contracting parties, and you might roam the township over and perhaps the country too, before finding a handsomer couple.

The little church was filled to its utmost capacity, and the ceremonies were made a very hower of beauty and fragrance by the loving hands of the bride's friends. Her sister, Elizabeth, made a very charming bridesmaid, and Mr. Garfield Brandon supported the latter as groomsman. The officiating Priest was the Rev. T. Dibb, Vicar of Napanee, and Rural Dean, who followed the time-honored custom and performed the nuptial rite in the new church with a handsome bible. The lovely sunpleasant breakfast was spread at the bride's home, after which the happy couple departed for Napanee, with a very fine selection of odd boots wired by their friends, and took the flyer to Toronto, for the honeymoon, amid showers of rice and good wishes.

One of the largest painters in Boston was assisted and he wrote to paint a house at the seashore he would use "The Marsurveying friends go out to the sorely afflicted young widow, the mother, the four brothers, and the many others who stood in near relation to the departed.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MESSRS. CARSCALLEN, MADOLE, WILSON AND WARTMAN.

Napanee, May 18th, 1908.

Editor Beaver,—As spokesman for the public to the Ontario Legislature and the Ontario Government, I desire, through you, an announcement through the press of my views regarding public questions now before the country, and especially as regards the "Act Respecting Local Legislature during the session of 1908 and the changes in the rural public schools of the Province, would be appreciated by the electors of this riding.

I am aware that Messrs. Wilson and Wartman as candidates are not directly responsible for the legislation of the Province, but as they are representative men, and it has been announced that Mr. Wilson was strongly opposed to the Act, I think the public are entitled to the effect that he was friendly to it but has been in a minority, and that he has learned from him would make his position more satisfactory.

For similar reasons it is desirable that Mr. Wartman should be heard from. The electors will have to consider the new provisions of the inquisitous School Law and they are anxiously awaiting announcements from Mr. Carscallen and Mr. Madole as to how they stand on these points in order to have that subject measure wiped from the statute book at the next session.

In supporting it was Mr. Carscallen unacquainted with the provisions of the Act? Is he now opposed to it? Would he use his influence to secure its repeal, even going to the length if necessary, of voting vast of confidence in the Ferguson government, which he is supporting? Then, before the next election, the electors will be boasted his independence, does he propose that position now? I have done Mr. Radole stand on the question? His position, too, should be clearly defined. In spite of the statement that large appropriations have been voted to the rural schools, the fact remains that in a very large number of instances the municipal taxes have been increased one-third since the passing of this Act respecting rural schools. That is a matter directly affecting the ratepayers pocket, and as a right they demand a plain statement from candidates seeking their support.

Yours, etc.,
W. R. LOTT.

BASEBALL CONCERT.

The concert organized by Mr. F. [illegible] on behalf of the Baseball Club, in Town Hall, on Thursday of last week, will not readily be forgotten by those who were fortunate enough to be present on that occasion. The programme, which was somewhat ambitious for local talent to undertake, but it was handled with taste and skill throughout.

Mrs. VanLaven and Mr. Fisher each rendered songs of a very high order, which the audience were not slow to recognize, but still more effective was possible, was the manner in which they gave the very beautiful duets, "The Language of Love" (Abt), and "Over the Hawthorn Hedge" (Glover). These were splendid numbers, widely divergent in character, and were handled in true musicianly style. A very pleasing feature of the rendering of "Love's Coronation" by Mrs. VanLaven, Mrs. Bleecker and Mr. Fisher was the introduction of the solo songs, "Whisper and I Shall Hear" and "My Ain Folk", by the first named, which revealing the possession of a voice of real quality. A very important part of the programme was supplied by a double quartette of ladies' voices. Mendelssohn's to The Hesperide Co., Limited, Toronto.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that will deaden the pain for a few hours, but one that will drive every particle of poisonous matter out of the system, and thus remove the cause of the disease. In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable preparation. I found that last ingredient after I had tested, tested, tested. Then I gave it to the world. And it has firmly cured all curable cases of this horrible pain-wracked disease. These medicine ingredients were found in Rheumatic Blood and Nerve Tablets and I pass away under the action of this remedy as you or I does sugar when added to pure water. Rheumatism is destroyed, root and branch, when these tablets are used. Rheumatism is a blood disease. Any other claim or explanation is gone forever. There's never been—no actual excuse to suffer longer from Rheumatism. We sell, and in confidence recommend

"Well," said Hurd, "she can't say I'll see Pash about the matter. After all, the will left the money to 'my daughter,' and that Sylvia is beyond doubt, whatever Maud may be. And, I say, Aurora, just you go down to Berwyer, in Buckinghamshire, and haven't time to look into matters there myself."

"What do you want me to do there?"

"Find out all about the life of Mrs. Krill before she married Krill and came to Chelchurch. Find out the daughter of a farmer. You'll find the name in the bible." Hurd passed along a copy of the marriage certificate which Mrs. Krill had given to Pash. "Anne Tyler is her maiden name. Find out what you can. She was married to Krill at Beechill, Bucks."

Miss Gien took the copy of the certificate and departed, grumbling at the amount of work she had to do to earn her share of the reward. Hurd, on his part, took the underground train to Liverpool street station and then traveled to Jubbletown. He arrived there at 13 o'clock and was greeted by Paul.

"I've been watching for you all the morning," said Beecot, who looked flushed and eager. "Sylvia and I have made such a discovery!"

Hurd nodded good humoredly as he entered the house and shook hands with the girl.

"Miss Norman has been doing some detective business on her own account," he said, smiling. "Hello, who is this?"

He made this remark because Mrs. Purr, sitting in a corner of the room, with red eyes, rose and dropped a courtesy.

"I was called to tell you what I had on my Bible oath," said Mrs. Purr, with fervor.

"Mrs. Purr can give some valuable evidence," said Paul quickly.

"Oh, can she? Then I'll hear what she has to say later. First, I must make clear the ground by telling you and Miss Norman what I have discovered at Christchurch."

So Mrs. Purr, rather unwillingly, for she felt the importance of her position, was bundled out of the room, and Hurd sat down to relate his late adventures. This he did clearly and slowly and was interrupted frequently by exclamations of astonishment from his two hearers.

"So then," said the detective when finishing, "you have the beginning of the end."

"Then you think that Mrs. Krill killed her husband?" asked Paul dubiously.

"I can't say for certain," was the cautious reply, "but I think so on the face of the evidence which you have heard. What do you say?"

"Don't say anything," said Sylvia before Paul could reply. "Mr. Hurd had better read this paper. It was found by Deborah in an old box belonging to my father, which was brought from Gwynne street."

She gave the detective several sheets of blue foolscap planned together and closely written in the shaky handwriting of Aaron Norman. Hurd looked at it rather dubiously. "What is it?" he asked.

"The paper referred to in that unfinished scrap of writing which was discovered behind the safe," explained Sylvia, "and after reading it over and placed it in his pocket, where he forgot it. Deborah found it in an old coat she discovered in a box of clothes brought from Gwynne street. These were Norman's clothes and his hat, and should have been left behind."

"Debby won't hear of that," said Sylvia, laughing. "She says Mrs. Krill has got quite enough, and she can add she could."

"What's all this writing about?" asked Hurd, turning over the closely written sheets. "To save time you had better give me a precis of the matter. Is it important?"

"Very, I should say," responded Paul emphatically. "It contains an account of Norman's life from the time he left Christchurch."

"Hum!" Hurd's eyes brightened. "I'll read it at my leisure, but at the present moment you might say what you can."

"Well, you know a good deal of it," said Paul, who did the talking at a sign from Sylvia. "It seems that Norman—we'd better stick to the old name left Christchurch because he was afraid of being accused of murdering Lady Rachel."

"Was she really murdered?"

"Norman says so. He swears he knows nothing about the matter. The first intimation he had was when Jessop came down with the news that Mrs. Krill had been murdered."

"Can he prove that?"

"No; he can't give any proof, or, at all events, doesn't. He declares that when his wife and daughter—

"Oh, does he call Maud his daughter?"

"Yes. We can talk of that later," said Paul impatiently. "Well, then, Norman says he went fairly mad. Jessop had bolted, but Norman knew he would not give the alarm, since he might be accused himself of killing Lady Rachel. Maud, who had seen the body, ran out and called the neighbors."

"How old does Norman say she was?"

"About fifteen—quite old enough to make things unpleasant."

"Then she can't inherit the money," said Hurd decisively.

"No," cried Beecot quickly; "both Sylvia and I think so. But, to go on with Norman's confession, he would not let Maud go. She began to scream, and he feared lest she should alarm the neighbors. He tied a handkerchief across her lips, but she got free and again began to scream. Then he nearly fastened her lips together with the opal brooch."

"Where did he get that, if innocent?"

"He declared that he spied it on the floor, of the sitting room near his wife's feet and then hints that she strangled Lady Rachel to get it and turn it into money, as she was desperately in need of cash for Maud. Mrs. Krill idolised the child."

"I know that," snapped Hurd. "Go on."

"When Norman fastened the child's lips together Mrs. Krill threw herself on him in a rage. He knocked her insensible and then ran away. He walked through the night until at dawn he came to a distant railway station. There he took a ticket and went to London. He concealed himself until there was no chance of his being discovered and, besides, saw the verdict of the jury in the newspapers. But he was determined he would not go back until his wife because she threatened him."

"In what way?"

"Mrs. Krill said while Sylvia shadowed, 'in a strange way. When he fastened the child's lips together Mrs. Krill said that she would do the same to him one day and with the same brooch."

Hurd uttered an exclamation. "So that was why she wanted the brooch so much!" he exclaimed eagerly.

"Yes, that was why," said Sylvia, "she wanted it. Enough she did not reveal her reason. She said if she got the brooch Mrs. Krill would leave Chelchurch, and with whom Hay was deeply in love. Hay stumbled across me by accident, and I happened to have the brooch. The rest you know."

"No," said Hurd, "I don't know how the brooch came into the possession of Mrs. Krill again to use in the cruel way she threatened."

"Well," said Sylvia quickly, "we aren't sure if Mrs. Krill did get the brooch."

"The evidence is against her," said Hurd. "Remember the threat!"

"Yes, but we're still in the dark," said Paul. "But just a moment, Hurd. You must learn how Norman laid the foundations of his fortune."

"Ah, I forget. Well?" And the detective settled himself to listen further.

"He got the opal and almost starving for a long time after he came to London," explained Paul. "Then he met a poet in a Bloomsbury boarding-house kept by a man called Garner, in the Minories. He had a daughter, Lillian—"

"My mother," put in Sylvia softly.

"Yes," went on Beecot quickly, "and this girl, being lonely, fell in love with Norman, as he now called himself. He wasn't a bad-looking man, with his one eye, so it is hard to say how Miss Garner came to love him. But she married him in the end. He'll find everything explained at length in the paper we gave you. Then old Garner died, and Lillian inherited a considerable sum of money, together with the stock. Her husband removed the books to Gray street and started business. But with the money he began to trade in jewels, and you know how he got on."

"Thatis all plain enough," said Hurd, putting the confession of Norman into his pocket, "and although I am glad of that his first wife should turn up—"

"Yes. And that's why he fainted when he saw the brooch," said Sylvia; "that Jessop had removed it from Maud's mouth and pawned it."

"I'm not so sure of that," said Hurd quickly. "Bert overheard him talking of Stowley and the pawnbroker there."

"Well," said Paul, with a shrug, "he says nothing about it in the confession. Perhaps he did trace the brooch to the Stowley shop, but if so I wonder he did not get it, seeing he wanted it. But when he left Mrs. Krill alive he thought I might know of Mrs. Krill and might put her on the track; hence his letter. Well, I left her with the impression that I had found out all I could and refused to buy it. Then came the accident, and I really forgot for a time that Hay had stolen it."

"Aurora says he swore he did not."

"And he didn't," said Paul, going to the door. "Mrs. Purr!"

"You don't mean to say that old woman has got it?" asked Hurd.

"No. But she warned me against that boy Tray on the day Deborah was married. Lillian left her with my consent, and she then told me that she had learned from Tray's grandmother, Mrs. Grimmy, that old Krill had brought home the opal brooch, and—"

Here Mrs. Purr, who had opened and was dropping courtesies to the majesty of the law as represented by Hurd, entered the room. Evidence was being taken, of her position. So she began to talk loudly and interrupted Paul in a shrill voice.

"Grimmy Chump she is," said Mrs. Purr, shaking her head; "and a bad 'un she was, and a bad 'un she is, as I'll prove to Tray Chump, if I never set a little eye. Looked old woman as is little eye. Looked old woman as is little eye. Looked old woman as is Tired nerves, with that "no ambition" feeling that is usually felt in spring or early summer, can be easily and quickly restored by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. One pill absolutely sets a clogged liver at work in 6 hours after beginning to take the Restorative. The bowels get sluggish in the winter-time, the circulation often slows up, the Kidneys are inactive, and even the Heart in many cases grows decidedly unsteady. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is recognized by the medical profession as the best remedy to overcome this condition. It builds up the entire nerve-vital weakened nerves; it shortens the falling appetite, and universally aids digestion. It always quickly brings renewed strength, life, vigor, and ambition. Try it and be convinced. Sold by T. B. Hawkins.

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

Annual Meeting.

The first annual meeting of the Society was held in Historical Hall, on Friday evening, May 15th, 1908.

The meeting was called to order by the President. The Secretary-Treasurer read his annual report, which, upon motion, was received and filed.

The President then read the following as his annual report:

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

On Thursday evening, May 9th, 1907, just about one year ago—thirty-seven of our citizens met in the Library room down stairs, and organized the Lennox and Addington Historical Society. Officers were elected, and I received the honor of being elected to the office of President. I assure you it has been a great pleasure to fill that office, and what work we have been able to accomplish, I hope will be lasting in its benefits.

On June 11th, we held a meeting and adopted a Constitution and set of By-laws. At this meeting we listened to a very interesting address by Mr. Frederick Burgess, which he gave some of his early experiences in Napanee and Schools for the County of Lennox and Addington.

During the summer no meetings were held, but the work of completing our hall and receiving and arranging donations was continued, and quite successfully.

On October 25th, we held our first open meeting under most favorable circumstances, having as our guest of honor Mr. Arthur Weatherhead, President of the Ontario Historical Society. We were entertained that evening by Mrs. Alexander Macdonald, who read a paper of great interest, covering a trip to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Cumberland then addressed the audience (which more than filled our seating capacity) upon the subject of Canadian History and the work of Historical Societies. He certainly did win the hearts of those present, and so he has continued to do, as ever since his fall we have a treat to look forward to. About this time the Society received a donation of that excellent addition to our papers and records, which we have named "The T. W. Casey Collection". A list of these papers was published in the local papers.

On December 6th, we had the pleasure of listening to an exceptionally able address on "The First Visits of Europeans to the Western Waters and Basin of Lake Ontario", by Prof. Adam Shortt, of Queen's University, Kingston.

On January 31st, we had three papers, all of them particularly interesting, one by Miss Chauncey Tossue, of Toronto, a grand-daughter of Prince Edward Island.

Mr. H. H. Cherkey's paper was on "Yankee and Yankees."

Mr. W. S. Herrington told us of the "Battle of Lundy's Lane".

On February 28th, Miss Jessie Harper gave a short paper on "Chrysler's Farm".

Miss J. Cooper Allen told us some of her "Memories of Spain".

Rev. Canon Jarvis took as a subject "Some Notes on Early Ecclesiastical History."

At our last meeting held on March 20th, Mr. F. C. Jamieson gave a very interesting lecture on "The Making of the Province", and I had a paper on "Some Early Amusements of the County".

All of our open meetings have been well attended, and I presume that we will continue to think of making our regular meetings open to the public and aim to make them so interesting that we will require additional seating capacity. There are many citizens who have not yet visited our rooms, and have 100 chairs here now.

All of our out-of-town guests have complimented upon the work which we have done and particularly upon the valuable collection we have made and on the beautiful hall we have for it.

From the Treasurer's report, you will see that we have a balance of $100.00 on hand, with a bill of $20.48 still unpaid.

I consider that we have been particularly fortunate in being able to finish this Hall, pay all of our debts and pay the general expenses of management for the year and make the financial statement that we have, with no more members, and I hope every one of our members this year will aid in this work and each try to secure at least one new member for the coming year.

The collection of material for our Archives have been of the richest order, and we owe those citizens who have sent in books, papers, pamphlets, maps and records our hearty thanks. We are indebted particularly to the "old boys" of the County for the beautiful collection of flags hanging on render wall, the same having been purchased by subscription, and as soon as possible I hope to have a card, giving the names of the subscribers, suitably mounted and hung by the flag. We owe to Mr. Metrie Baltimore, Maryland, for a silk flag of the United States. These two flags we will have hung in appropriate form as soon as possible.

The "T. W. Casey Collection" I have mentioned before, and to Mr. Walter B. Clark, of Vinlet, we are indebted for the loan of our excellent collection of Indian relics. The case in which they are placed we owe as a present from Mr. John W. Robinson.

Time will not permit my going into details and mentioning all of those donations that should be referred to, but I do want to say that every person who has given or loaned anything, even though it be of apparently little value, deserves credit, and we owe them one and all sincere thanks.

We have been particularly fortunate in being able to get our Papers and Records before the public by the medium of the local press.

It is unfortunate that we cannot afford to issue a volume at this time, but perhaps another year we shall be able to do so. Should we secure the grant of $100.00, which we have asked from the Ontario Government, we would secure during at least a portion of it for publication. In this subject I will quote a sentence from a letter written by Mr. Cumberland on April 13th, "What a privilege to have so helpful a local paper. What other town could similarly enthuse their Editors."

Just a word about the future. This will be our last meeting this spring. During the summer we will be able to do very little work, but for next fall and Winter, I would like to see a meeting for every month. I feel that the prominent good addresses from prominent Canadian Historians and others for the coming year have been secured, which we hope to have tried to do. At times I have felt that it was rather presumptuous on my part, not to call the Committee together more often and get a record of their opinion on what was being done. But in conversation with the members as individuals they have always seemed to be satisfied, and I have felt that they would at any time tell me if they did not approve of the work. It has been a work of great pleasure, and I hope that the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will always be an organization which the citizens of this County will be proud, and which they will want to support.

After the reading of this report the election of officers for the coming year was held. It resulted as follows:—Hon. President—His Honor Judge Deroche. Vice-Presidents—Rev. Canon Jarvis and James Richardson and Bradley. President—Clarence M. Warner. Vice President—Mrs. Alexander W. Grange.

Committee—Mrs. H. T. Forward, G. D. B. Hawley, Esq., H. T. Wilson, M.P., Col. Frederic Earls, Rev. Alexander Macdonald.

After the business of the evening had been completed those present were entertained by two excellent papers. The first one written by W. S. Herrington, Esq., on "Champlain", was ably read by Miss Helen Herrington.

The second paper was written and read by Miss Janet Carnochan, of Napanee, Ontario, who took as a subject, "Early Days in Canada, Extracts Selected by Visitors at Niagara."

Miss Carnochan is the President of the Niagara Historical Society, which organization under able management has built one of the finest museums of archaeology and history in America. Her paper was very interesting, and we hope to be able to publish it at an early date.

In closing the meeting I desire to thank Miss Carnochan for coming such a long distance to address the members.

At 10 p.m. the meeting adjourned, bringing to a close the first year's work of the organization.

OPERATION PREVENTED

BAD CASE OF PILES CURED BY ZAM-BUK.

Sufferers from Piles will be interested in the following testimony of Mr. Archibald Logan, 349 Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont. He says: "For years I was a great sufferer from protruding bleeding Piles. They got so bad that I was impossible for me to walk or sit down without a great deal of suffering. The pain I endured was dreadful. I tried everything and the doctors told me I would have to be operated upon before I should be cured. I do not think that there was one remedy that I did not buy, but failed to cure me. One day I received a sample of Zam-Buk, and after that I got some relief and decided to give it a fair trial. First I bought three boxes and before I had finished the third I felt that I was going to be cured. Each salve has saved me hundreds of dollars and enabled me to do so. I would never stop at least a portion of it for publishing. In this subject I will quote a sentence from a letter written by Cumberland on April 13th, "What a privilege to have so helpful a local paper. What other town could similarly enthuse their Editors."

Just a word about the future. This will be our last meeting this spring. During the summer we will be able to do very little work, but for next fall and Winter, I would like to see a meeting for every month. I feel that the prominent good addresses from prominent Canadian Historians and others for the coming year have been secured, which we hope to have tried to do. At times I have felt that it was rather presumptuous on my part, not to call the Committee together more often and get a record of their opinion on what was being done. But in conversation with the members as individuals they have always seemed to be satisfied, and I have felt that they would at any time tell me if they did not approve of the work. It has been a work of great pleasure, and I hope that the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will always be an organization which the citizens of this County will be proud, and which they will want to support.

Zam-Buk succeeds because it goes right to the root of the trouble. Healing, soothing and antiseptic, it is Nature's remedy for all skin diseases. All stores and druggists sell at 50c. a box, or from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A TONIC FOR THE STOMACH

Wonderful Success of the Modern Method of Treating Even Obstinate Cases of Indigestion.

The old fashioned methods of treating stomach disorders are being discarded. The trouble with the old fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form.

The modern method of treating indigestion, catarrh of the stomach or chronic gastritis, is to tone up the stomach and glands to do their natural work. Every step toward recovery is a step toward health. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are such a success. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that show that the root of the tonic treatment remember is electricity.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs and strengthening the nerves. They are a specific for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of this treatment is shown by hundreds of cures like the following:—

Mrs. Wm. E. Jones, Prince Dale, N.S., says:—"For upwards of seven years I was an almost constant sufferer from stomach trouble, which was aggravated by obstinate constipation. Food was not only distasteful, but every mouthful I ate was painful. The trouble so affected my health that at times I thought I could not live. I was constantly doctoring, but did not get the least relief. Indeed I was growing worse, and in the summer of 1907 had so reduced that I went to the City of Boston, where I spent some time under the care of a specialist. I returned home, however, no better than when I left, and was in such pain I endured were almost intolerable, and sometimes even cause me to drop. I kept getting weaker and weaker and had practically given up hope of ever being well again when I was induced by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. How thankful I now am that I took her advice. My case was a severe one and did not yield readily, but as soon as improvement was noticed the cure progressed steadily and satisfactorily, and after the use of ten boxes of the Pills I was again a well woman. Every symptom of the trouble disappeared, and it years since I enjoyed as good health as I am doing now. All who know me are upon my cure as almost a miracle, and I strongly urge all suffering from stomach trouble to give this medicine a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or you can have them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AN OLD SETTLER GONE.

Robert McGinnis, Aged 72 Years, Passes Away—Death of a Recent Arrival.

North Dakota Independent, May 1st. The community was greatly shocked yesterday morning to learn of the death of Robert McGinnis, for 27 years a resident of Hamilton, and a man highly respected for his integrity and uprightness in life. The announcement of his demise came as a surprise to many, for that only yesterday afternoon he was attending to matters of importance, and the trip he had planned for himself and family to Pueblo, Colorado, was to be made in a few days. His death occurred at his home yesterday morning between 12 and 1 o'clock from heart trouble, he had suffered from it at times and without the least warning. He leaves to mourn, a wife and seven children—Mesdames John Rowe and L. Keena of Hamilton, John Gitts of Mohler, Idaho, and Jos. Pickwell, of Vancouver, B.C., John and Breckenridge, Minn.; T. A., of Richland, Cal., and Miss Mary, of Spokane, Wash.

Funeral arrangements are held in abeyance pending the arrival either to-day or to-morrow of John McGinnis, of Breckenridge. The services will, however, be held either this afternoon or to-morrow afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. S. Nowlove officiating.

The deceased was 72 years of age and came to Hamilton from Napanee, Ont., twenty-seven years ago. His sudden demise extends its condolence to the grief-stricken widow and other members of the family in this, the hour of their sudden and unexpected affliction.

WHAT WOMEN ASK IN MEN.

"La Semaine Litteraire," of Geneva, recently made its readers to express their opinions as to what is needed for the betterment of the human family. The men were asked to say what they wished for women, and the women what they wished for men. The answers from the men showed that seventy-five out of a hundred asked women to remain "just as they are." A small percentage added a request for them; many wished for them "good husbands and happy children" and one humorist wished for "his sisters" "more brains and less hair." In this case, not one wished the men to remain as they are. They asked for a relief from nearly all the virtues enumerated in the lords of creation—common sense, honesty, generosity, appreciation of the good qualities of women, care for aware, and a good deal of ethics similar to the one laid down for women.

ANNUAL DISTRICT MEETING.

On Tuesday, the 19th inst., the annual meeting of the Napanee District of the Methodist Church was held in Trinity church in this town. Rev. Dr. Shaw, Chairman of Newburgh, the President of the Conference, presided. The attendance was very extensive, comprising the old boys from the various districts.

W. S. P. Boyce, B.A., B.D., of Adolphustown, was elected Secretary. Ministerial session was held in the morning, and other candidates for the ministry were recommended to Conference. An edifying conversation on the state of the work took place prior to adjournment.

At 2 o'clock the old veterans marched off at 2 p.m., when ministers and laymen assembled. The schedules were added and in course presented.

A gratifying increase in missionary giving was reported.

A resolution expressive of the esteem of the district for Rev. Dr. Dobbs, who is retiring from active service for a year, was carried by a rising vote with unanimity.

The burden of the Presidency has been very heavy during the year, and the meeting will be held in the near future.

The next meeting will be held in Enterprise. It was decided to hold a Missionary Sunday Convention in connection with the next Financial District meeting. Rev. Richard Duke and W. H. Ensley will represent the District at the Missionary Committee. The Conference then closed. Rev. Dr. Shaw, Rev. Mr. Lindsay, beginning on the 4th of June.

In religion he was a Methodist. The funeral service was held at the home of his brother, Alva Snider, on Monday afternoon, May 18th, Rev. Mr. McManus officiating. A large number of friends and neighbors attended the funeral. Interment was made in Wilton cemetery.

HOW MUCH IS A MOTHER WORTH?

In a week in New Jersey a few months ago, a father and mother were both killed. They left two little children to be the tender charge of others, and the court was called upon to decide the amount of damages the railway company should pay the orphans. Counsel for the road fixed the amount at $20,000—$18,000 for the loss of the father and $2,000 for the loss of the mother.—Extract from The Sun.

Only $2,000 for the loss of a mother? Who can measure the love that belongs to a child's mother? From the very day it first nestles in the tender clasp of her arms of her love. Every hour it is her care and her study. She is the mother for the dawn of intelligence in the little mind, bound to give the child its first words, to frame its thoughts in prayer, to lead its footsteps as they start along the first faltering, uncertain steps of the long path of life. From her it receives the goodness, the gentleness, the grace, and on its earliest years is pointed the Star of the Light of the World, who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such are the kingdom of heaven." She may be the mother of many human hearts and fault, but the mother love is always the same. Her child from the cradle to the grave is her child.

In childhood it is his life and joy; in youth his instructor and companion; in manhood his confidence. The mother in her office holds the key of character, and makes the being who would be a savage a man.

But for her gentle care a Christian man, How much is a mother worth?

JAPANESE NEW YEAR CAKES.

An annual event in Japan is the making of the New Year's cake, which every family must have if good luck is to be theirs during the ensuing year. This cake is made of rice, pounded very fine, boiled and pounded in a great wooden mortar until it is of the consistency of dough. Although the pure white dough is colored yellow or pink, the shape of the cake always remains the same—that of the sacred mirror, one of the three treasures of Japan, the gift of faith. A piece of this cake is offered to the household deities placed in the form and shape of the sacred mirror which would be found in every shrine. It is then cut and served to each member of the household, where she had hidden herself in wrath and has saved the land from total darkness. Each member of the family takes a piece of the consecrated cake on New Year's cake. Even the baby is carried to the altar by its mother and held in lifting the heavy wooden mallet for a "good luck" blow. Enough is made to last the season, for it is believed that to use it occupies an important place in the family menu—Leslie's Weekly.

A triple tragedy is reported from Matawan, N.J., where Mr. Wm. D. Schanck, a farmer, his wife and daughter have all been murdered and the house burned. Rumor says that Frank Feretta, a Polish farm hand, has confessed to the deed.

THE COME AND SEE SIGN

This sign is permanently attached to the front of the main building of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

What Does This Sign Mean?

It means that public inspection of the Laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the business which is not "open and above board."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify any and all statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is a purely vegetable compound made from roots and herbs—without drugs!

Come and See.

Do the women of America continually use as much of it as we are told?

Come and See.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any Mrs. Pinkham living to whom sick woman are asked to write?

Come and See.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential?

Come and See.

Have they really got letters from over one million women—a hundred thousand women correspondents?

Come and See.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women?

Come and See.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who have been cured from every known experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy for all forms of female complaints, will still go on using and being benefited by it; but the poor doubting, suffering women, for her own sake, he taught confidence, for she also might just as well regain her health.

LEAP YEAR PROPOSALS.

According to an old Scottish tradition, a maiden has the privilege in Leap Year of "bespeaking a man for her own," but there are other versions of the story, one of them gives St. Patrick the credit of originating the custom of women proposing marriage in Leap Year and St. Patrick tradition has it that a man who refused a maid in unwilling to marry her was fined a kiss or a silk dress. The question is often asked if there is any authority for these traditions seriously. Few women, one imagines, would care to put it to a practical test. It is only to be regarded in the same light as the custom that prevails at the Leap Year balls, at which the girls, in spite of the men, choose their partners. It may be summed up that when a girl has acquired the courage to ask a man for a dance with her, it needs only a little more audacity to make a proposal of marriage. But it is only during Leap Year proposals are even taken seriously.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

We are told that woman has a natural right to the suffrage. What is a natural right? How can it be determined otherwise than by the natural aptitude? The experience and instinct of the whole race through all ages has determined that the function of two sexes, like their mental and bodily structure, are distinct; that male and female they were created, and that they have separate parts to play in the combination of which, without confusion, the welfare of the race depends. How can women have that natural right to enforce the law take part in the defence of the country, and do all the rough work of the world? They have not the physical strength or the moral hardihood necessary for the purpose. There are, no doubt, some women of masculine character, as there are some morally feminine men. The Suffragettes are masculine women, and have shown to very opportunely what the character and tendencies of the masculine woman are. It is to be hoped, however, that the female politician would come. The political representation of the sex will still be less fit than that of the sex for the work of government. The upshot would probably be the sacrifice of the general interests of women and their children to the ambition of a few of the more masculine of the sex.

AN AGED PHYSICIAN

After Years of Experience Gives the Following Advice.

"If you have anything to do with medicines at all be pretty sure you know what you are taking."

Our local druggist, T. B. Wallace, says this is a strong point in favor of the valuable cod liver preparation, Vinol. Everything it contains is plainly printed on the label. There is not a part of it not medicine.

Vinol contains in a highly concentrated form all the medicinal, body building elements of cod liver, but entirely taken from fresh cods' livers, the fish oil extracted by our process and eliminated and tonic iron, which is peculiarly combined with the blood added.

This is the reason that Vinol accomplishes such wonderful results in chronic coughs, colds, bronchial and lung troubles, and there is nothing known to medicine that will so quickly build up the run down, over worked, tired and debilitated, or give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, as Vinol.

We can only ask every person in Napanee who needs such a medicine to try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

OVERTON.

Work on the land in this vicinity has been much delayed owing to the rain.—The appearance of our gardens generally is being improved by new buildings. S. French is erecting a new barn, Chas. MADAME NAZIMOVA COMING.

After a long season in New York, where she remained on the stage of one theatre for more than two years Madame Nazimova, has left the metropolis, and as New York had learned how to pronounce her name, as one critic remarked. For the benefit of local theatre goers who look forward to her advent in Kingston, at the Grand, on Wednesday, May 27th, presenting "Comtesse Coquette," with more than ordinary interest, it may be stated the concert pronunciation of the patronymic of the Russian actress is as follows: "Nahsee-ma-vah" with the accent on the second syllable. Madame Nazimova will carry her production with her exactly as seen in New York, and her cast of supporting players will be precisely the same as during the metropolitan run.

CANADIAN INDEPENDENCE.

Mr. Justice Longley has brought down upon himself the censure of the London press by avowing that he looks forward to Canadian independence. Let the London press ask itself what it really means. Does it mean that the six millions of Canadian people, rapidly multiplying, are to remain forever in a state of dependence, never aspiring to nationality, subject to the legislation of a distant power, receiving a Governor from abroad, and represented in diplomacy by a Foreign Office, over which they have no control? There was a scheme on foot for bringing the colonies into perpetual union on a footing of political equality. Imperial Federation, as it was called, was preached here for thirty years without making converts, or even assuming a definite form. We were only adjured to "cultivate the sentiment." Dependence or independence it must be. What we see is the prospect of ultimate independence tacitly present which insures acquiescence in the present arrangement. It is difficult to see what the Mother Country would lose by separation. She would be rid of diplomatic and military responsibility, both of a grave kind. Nor would she lose any love. As often as the English Foreign Office acts for Canada there follow angry growls of discontent and imputations of sacrificing Canadian interests to British policy. On the other hand there lies before the writer an invitation from the British Empire Association of Chicago, to Englishmen living in Canada, which shows that the change of political citizenship has not broken the filial tie. There are similar associations in other cities of the United States.—From the Weekly Sun.

HUSBAND GOT WISH.

Old Love Letters Proved to Contain Words Instead of Sentiment.

Prof. Edgar L. Larkin, the noted astronomer, was discussing marriage at a dinner in San Francisco. Prof. Larkin believes that it is criminal to continue for life marriages that are unhappy.

"Why condemn," he said, with a grim laugh, "men and women to such misery as afflicts our mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. Blank? We have all mutual friends in the Blank's position.

"At the height of their nightly quarrel recently Mrs. Blank choked back a sob and said, reproachfully:

"I was reading one of your old letters to-day, James, and you said in it that you would rather live in eternal torment with me than in bliss by yourself."

"Well, I got my wish," Blank growled.

Another Modern Miracle Paralysis Permanently Cured.

The Sufferer Paralyzed From Waist to Feet—Encased in Plaster of Paris for Nine Months—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure After Four Doctors Had Failed—The Cure Vouched for by a Well Known Clergyman.

Paralysis, no matter how slight, is a terrible affliction, but to be paralyzed from waist to the feet, to be a helpless cripple, totally dependent upon what others do for you, is a condition as wretched as man could possibly bear. Such was the state of Mr. Allan J. McDonald, of New Perth, P.E.I. For over a year he was a helpless invalid. He was paralyzed from his waist to his feet and for nine months lay in bed encased in a plaster paris cast. Four of the best doctors in Prince Edward Island were unable to help him and he seemed doomed to a life of misery and despair. But hope came to him when he read of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for other sufferers from paralysis. He procured a supply of the Pink Pills and began taking them. Gradually they broke the chains of disease that bound him, and lifted his whole body with new blood, life and vigor. Mr. McDonald says:—"I am a farmer and in consequence have a great deal of hard work to do, and a day while about my work I injured my back, but at the time I paid little attention to the injury and continued my work. As time went on, though, the pain became more severe and I soon found myself unable to lift anything no matter how light it was and not long before I had to stop work altogether and consult a doctor. He treated me but his treatment did not help me and I rapidly grew worse. I had to take to my bed, and in the hope that my spine might receive strength I was encased in a plaster of paris cast. This did not help me and I could feel the paralysis slowly creeping over me till I was totally paralyzed from my waist to my feet. I lost all control over my bowels and bladder and for two years had no more feeling than if they were made of wood. Three other doctors strived to help me but their treatment also was a failure, and for over eleven months I lay in bed unable to move. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were then advised and after I had shown testimonials of others who had been cured of paralysis through them I bought a supply and in less than three months they made a remarkable change in me. I was able to get out of bed and crawl along the floor on my hands and knees. Gradually my limbs became stronger and I was able to walk with the aid of a cane and inside of nine months after I had begun the use of the Pills I was totally cured, and once more able to do light work. Now I am as strong as ever I was and can do my work about the farm without the least trouble. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are without an equal for, besides my own case, I know of four other cases of paralysis cured by them. Two young girls who had been cripples and whom I advised to try the Pills."

In corroboration of what Mr. McDonald says, the Rev. D. MacLean of Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes:—"I visited Mr. McDonald many times during his illness. He was attended by three or more doctors and put in plaster paris, and everything imaginable which might be of benefit was done for him without success. He had lost all power of his body from his waist down and I think he was nearly a year under treatment before he began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was with him the day he first received a letter from me and from that time on he gradually improved and for the last few years he has been perfectly well. I can testify for the cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effected in his case."

Such cases as this call for treatment you are now taking does not help you, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. They have proved a wonder to doctors and other medical treatment had hopelessly failed. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, feed the starved nerves and bring health and strength to every part of the body. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as McDonald's, and it is why they have cured thousands and thousands of other discouraged people in every part of the world. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Died, at St. Catharines, on Sunday, May 10th, Nisbott Dean, aged 72 years and 4 months. Deceased was well remembered by many of our readers, as he lived in Napanee for over twenty-two years. He had been living in St. Catharines for over six years with his daughter, Mrs. Miles S. Plumley. He had been totally blind for a long time and was also ill and had to rest by Master's Honors in Victoria Lawn cemetery. He is survived by one son, one daughter, Mrs. M. S. Plumley; one sister, Mrs. W. G. Gavin, of Napanee, and one brother, Mr. Geo. F. Dean, of Waterbury, Conn. He had a residence on Mac St. from which he never rallied, but gradually passed away.

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE

Of Charles Pollard, who died May 12th, 1899.

One less at home!
The chair is filled, but not the place
A dear face missed day by day from its accustomed space.
But cleansed, saved, perfected by grace,
One more in heaven.

One less on earth!
Its pain, its sorrow and its toil to share
One less the pilgrim's daily cross to bear
One less the crown of the blessed to wear.

At home in heaven.

LETTER FROM W. S. WILLIAMS.

Mexico City, May 13th, 1908.

Dear Beaver,—We are leaving this city in about two hours. We have been at Oaxoco at the camps where are mines are situated, where large orders have been made. In going through some of the country we found some very fine farm lands and sugar plantations. On our return from the south we had an enjoyable trip through the mountain valleys, which are wonderful, and beautiful.

We must thank our Napanee boys who are now residents of this old city for many pleasant reminders. Old Lennox and Addington should be proud of these boys and these lovely ladies who are so thankful for good mothers, who taught them how to behave whether at home or abroad.

We, in returning, will remain at Long Beach a few days, and then to home and fireside in Oakland.

Yours faithfully,
W. S. WILLIAMS.

Timber Policy

Dear Editor,—I have noticed in the newspapers some of the Hon. Mr. Gibson's speeches on the Ontario Government policy, especially as regards their treatment of settlers, and I was surprised to know that he would attempt to discuss that question. I should consider he was treading on dangerous ground when he attempted to show that the settlers are not well posted, and have been treated better, in fact they have not forgotten the treatment they received during the dirty years they were in bondage under Liberal rule. Yes, every intelligent settler remembers only too well the tyranny that was exercised over them through the License system, the unfortunate law placed the poor helpless settler practically at the mercy of the lumbermen. Before the coming of the lumbermen were reasonable men, who treated the settlers pretty well. Others gave them scant courtesy. The Timber Agents treated to-the lumbermen by the Grit Government of Ontario gave the lumberman all the timber of every description which grew on the areas covered by their licenses. So that all timber of value was stripped from off the settlers' lots, and they were left nothing but rocks and stumps for an inheritance for themselves and their children. After a long term of this sort of thing, the settlers began to clubb under Grit rule and demand relief from the tyranny of such a suicidal policy. The Government of Charlestown, P.E.I., writes me:—I visited Mr. McDonald many times during his illness. He was attended by three or more doctors and put in plaster paris, and everything imaginable which might be of benefit was done for him without success. He had lost all power of his body from his waist down and I think he was nearly a year under treatment before he began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was with him the day he first received a letter from me and from that time on he gradually improved and for the last few years he has been perfectly well. I can testify for the cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effected in his case."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Exhaustion, or Nerve Weakness, means Heart Exhaustion, for each heart is a bundle of nerves. It is almost always a deficient little nerve that really is at fault. This electric nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—needs tonic, and must have, more power, more quality, more controlling, more governing power, or else the heart must suffer. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the tonic to build and strengthen the heart nerves, controlling nerves.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first removed the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating Heart Misfortune. Dr. Shoop's Restorative does not stimulate the heart—is not directed to those weak muscles—is not a cardiac. It is a nerve tonic, whereby it reaches real, genuine heart help. It would have strong Hearts, strong Organs, strong Nerves—in each that is treated, with

By FERGUS HUME.

"Well," replied the detective, "you might have told me. But no great harm is done. What does Pash say?"

"I don't know. Ford has not let me know yet. Here we are."

This remark was caused by the stopping of the train at Liverpool street station. A number of people were returning from their employment in the city to the country, and the platforms were crowded. Hurd grasped Master Clump by the arm and marched him along. But in the confusion of finding his ticket at the barrier he was happened to let go, almost without thinking. In a moment Tray had darted through the barrier and was lost in the crowd. Hurd sprang after him and left Paul to explain. He hurriedly did so and then went out to see if the detective had caught the boy.

Hurd was nowhere to be seen; neither was Tray. The crowd was increasing, and Beecot was at a loss what to do. After waiting for an hour without finding the pair he thought he would go to Pash's office. It might be that Hurd, having caught Tray, would take him there at once, leaving Beecot to follow. So Paul got on to the Metropolitan railway and alighted at the Temple station. Thence he walked up to the office in Chancery lane.

"Where's Tray?" asked Paul of the one clerk in the outer room, who was writing for dear life.

"I don't know, sir," said the clerk. "He went out this morning and hasn't been back all day. Mr. Pash is very angry with him."

Apparently Hurd had not caught the boy yet or if he had did not intend to bring him to the office. "Can I see Mr. Pash?" asked Paul, thinking he might as well make some use of his time.

The clerk inquired if the solicitor would see Beecot and presently ushered him into the inner room, where Pash sat looking more like a monkey than ever. He did not appear at all pleased to see the young man and sucked in his cheek with a crabbed air.

"Well, Mr. Beecot, what can I do for you?" he snarled.

"You ought to do civil, in the first place," said Paul quietly, taking a chair. "You haven't behaved over well to Miss Norman and me."

"Oh," said Pash coolly, "have you come to reapeach me with that?"

"I never went time," rejoined Paul, equally coolly. "I'll leave you to your conscience."

Pash shrugged his shoulders and put his feet on the rungs of his chair. "I think my conscience can stand that," he said. "It's healthier, Mr. Beecot, business. By the way, I have received a request from Mr. Ford of Chesapeake to furnish the certificate of birth of Miss Krill. What is the meaning of that?"

"I think you know very well, Mr. Pash."

"I profess my ignorance," said Pash ironically, although he looked uneasy and was apparently lying.

"In that case you had better wait till you hear from Mr. Ford."

"Are you employing Mr. Ford, may I ask?"

Paul nodded. "On behalf of Miss Norman," said he coldly.

"Ah," sneered the monkey, "you think you'll get the money."

"Wait till you hear from Mr. Ford," returned Paul again and enjoyed the baffled expression on Mr. Pash's wrinkled face. "By the way, sir, why did you not tell Lord Hurd that Tray gave you the opal brooch?"

Pash turned all the colors of the rainbow. "Does Lord Hurd I took into my office out of charity dare to say that he did?"

"He does, and, what is more, Mr. Hurd is bringing him here to make the statement face to face with you. I am determined to get to the bottom of this case, sir, for Miss Norman's sake, and the possession of the brooch forms an important link."

"How so?"

"The person who had that brooch on the evening of the 6th of June murdered Norman," said Paul calmly.

Pash jumped up and chattered like a baboon in a rage. "Do you mean to accuse me?" he demanded. "Take care! Take care!"

"I don't accuse you. Tray does."

"It's a lie—a lie"—

"Don't excite yourself, Mr. Pash. You'll need all your wits to convince Hurd. Tray accuses you, and Hurd suspects you. I have nothing to do with the matter."

"You put Hurd up to this!" foamed Pash, hardly able to speak.

"Pardon me, Hurd is working for the reward offered by your client. Don't you think it was rather foolish of her to offer such a large reward, Mr. Pash, even though she did so to avert suspicion?"

The solicitor changed color again. "I don't understand you."

Paul shrugged his shoulders and rose to go. "Mr. Hurd will explain," he said and made for the door.

Pash, with his monkey face much perplexed, sat hunched in his chair, tilting his fingers. As Paul laid his hand on the knob he called him back. "I can explain," he said nervously.

"Not to me," said Paul coldly.

"I prefer to do so to you," said the lawyer hurriedly.

"Why to me particularly?"

"Because I don't think I have acted very well toward Miss Norman, and, as you are to marry her, you may be able to arrange—"

"To make peace, I suppose you mean?" burst out Beecot. "No, Mr. Pash, you have acted like a scoundrel. You left that poor girl in the lurch as soon as you found that Miss Krill was—as you thought—legally entitled to the money."

"What do you mean by hinting she isn't?"

"Because you know very well what her age is," returned Paul. "This matter will be sifted to the bottom, Mr. Pash, by my friend Ford, and if things are as I think they are Miss Krill won't keep that money. You know very well—"

"Miss Norman won't get the money either," snarled Pash. "I know that very well. Lesatwise," he added, "without my assistance."

"More of your crooked ways," said Paul indignantly. "Tell what you like to Hurd. I refuse to listen."

As he spoke he opened the door and found himself facing Hurd, who was red and hot. The detective stepped into the office and as he passed Paul whispered, "Hold your tongue about the boy." Then he turned to Mr. Pash.

"Well, sir," he puffed, "I have had a job catching my Mr. Beecot. No doubt you know why I have come?"

"No," said Pash dryly; "I don't see Tray."

"Tray will keep. I've got him safe under lock and key. Before bringing you face to face with him I thought it best to give you an opportunity of clearing yourself."

"Of what?" asked Pash in a brazen manner.

Hurd looked at Beecot, who spoke. "Mr. Pash knows very well that Tray accuses him of the crime," he said. "I told him so, and he professed his readiness to explain to you."

"Ah," said Hurd, "shut the door, Mr. Beecot. No need to let all London know the truth."

"I don't know it," said Pash as Paul closed the door and returned to his seat.

"Very good," rejoined the detective calmly. "We'll assume for the sake of argument that you did not strangle Norman."

"That I certainly did not."

"Then you know who did. Come, sir"—Hurd became stern—"this boy Tray says he gave the opal brooch to you. And I believe he did. You would not have taken him into your office—a boy off the streets and with a bad character at that—unless you wanted to bribe him to hold his tongue."

"I had no need to bribe," said Pash, gnawing his finger nails and rather cowed by his direct attack. "The boy did come on the opal brooch, and I took it from him to return to Norman."

"When did you receive it?" asked Hurd, pulling out his book. "Be careful, Mr. Pash. I'll take down what you say."

"I have nothing to conceal," said Pash in quite an unnecessarily injured manner. "I had employed the boy on several errands, and he knew I was Norman's lawyer. On the evening of the 6th of July"—

"And the evening of the murder," said Hurd. "Are you sure?"

"I'll take my oath on it. The boy told me that Mr. Beecot had met with an accident and that a blue velvet case containing a brooch had fallen out of his pocket."

"It was stolen," said Beecot hastily.

"Tray was not such a fool as to tell me that," replied the lawyer dryly. "He said that he picked the case up out of the mud and took it home to his wife. His grandmother, who is a notorious thief, wanted to get it and pawn it for drink, but Tray ran away with it and came to me about 5 o'clock. He gave me the brooch and asked me to take charge of it, as he expected to get money for it from Aaron Norman, who wanted it."

"Pray overheard my conversation with Norman," said Paul angrily, "and knew the brooch was mine. So did you, Mr. Pash."

"Well," said the solicitor coolly, "what of that? Norman was my client and wanted the brooch. I intended to keep it and then see you, so that a sale might be arranged. Norman spoke to me about the brooch several times and wanted it for reasons you may not know."

"Oh, yes, we know," said Hurd sardonically. "We know much more than you give us credit for, Mr. Pash. Well, sir, you received the brooch, I judge, on that evening. I suppose you intend to tell us you gave the brooch then to Tray to tell you nothing of the sort," retorted Pash after a few moments' thought, "as that things are coming to a crisis, and I would like to see Miss Norman reinstated in her rights."

"Oh," said Paul indignantly, "and you did your best to give the money to Maud Krill."

"Because I believed she was legally entitled to it," explained Pash hastily. "But since you tell me she is not, it is nothing just now. I alone can put the matter right, and I refuse to do so unless Miss Norman promises that I shall keep the business."

Paul would have refused then and there, but Hurd, knowing him, interrupted his angry speech. "We'll see about that later, Mr. Pash," he said coolly. "Have you anything else to say?"

"I told it on the table," said Pash. "The case was open, so I had been looking at it. I only Tray out of the room and attended to my usual business. Several clients came and went, and I forgot all about the opal brooch. I intended to see my client outside about a deed. I was with him for some minutes, and when I returned to the office before I went home—for I intended to take it with me"—

"Tray!" interrupted Hurd. "You were here till Aaron Norman came along with the brooch, so you can see we have the proof we require. Now you can see he would have taken it, seeing it was exposed on the table."

"I presumed client did not come till 7," said Pash, annoyed at being detected in trickery. "He waited about with his bag of jewels for some time, not being able to make up his mind to give them to me, which he did for safe keeping."

"Then he expected a visit from his wife?"

"I can't say," said the solicitor, with an air of fatigue. "He certainly hinted that he wanted the jewels placed away safely in case anything was connected with the opal brooch should come."

"Perhaps Captain Jessop, who did come," said Paul suddenly.

"His didn't mention the visit of Jessop," snapped Pash. "Had he hinted at a sailor I would have known who my musical visitor was."

"We know all about that," said Hurd, waving his hand, "but if Norman came to you at 7 how did you manage to prevent him meeting his wife in this office?"

"Oh, she was—What do you mean?" asked Pash, breaking off and conscious that he was letting slip something he had rather had not been known.

Hurd saw the slip and Pash's confusion and at once made every use of the opportunity. In fact, he played a game of bluff. Shaking his finger, he approached the little lawyer. "Do you think I came here unprepared?" he asked solemnly. "Do you think I have not been to the Red Pig at Christchurch and learned that Mrs. Krill knew of her husband's whereabouts, through Hay, long before the day she came to you with the lying story about the handbills? Hay has confessed his share in the business of a false introduction to throw Mr. Beecot off the scent, seeing that he was defending Miss Norman's interests. Do you think I don't know that this woman Krill came to see you, through Hay, whose lawyer you are? Else why should that fatal evening," said Hurd, making a bold shot, "How did you prevent her seeing Norman?"

Pash was completely thrown off his balance by this volley of language and this presumption of knowledge. "Mrs. Krill left at 6," he gasped, backing to the wall.

"And carried off the brooch?"

"I'm not sure—I can't say—I did miss the brooch"—

"After Mrs. Krill left?"

"No, when Norman came. I intended to show him the brooch and found it gone."

"Mrs. Krill left at 6. Between 6 and 7 did any other client come into the office?"

"Yes—no—I can't say. Well," Pash broke down in despair, seeing that his lies were not believed, "I think Mrs. Krill did steal the brooch."

"Quite so, and murdered her husband!" Hurd went to the door and took Beecot's arm. "I only hope you won't be brought up as an accessory before the fact, Mr. Pash," he added, disregarding the lawyer's exclamations, he dragged Paul outside. In Chancery lane he spoke, "I've blinded him fine," he said. "That boy is lost. Can't see him anywhere, but we're getting at the truth at last."

CHAPTER XXIV.

NEXT day Hurd did not go to see Mrs. Krill as he had intended, but spent his time in hunting for the missing boy. Tray, however, was not to be found. Being a gutternsipe and accustomed to dealing with the police, he was thoroughly well able to look after himself and doubtless had concealed himself in some low den where the officers of the law would not think of searching for him. However, the fact remained that, in spite of the detective's search, he could not be caught, and the authorities were much vexed. To unravel the case completely Tray was a necessary witness, especially as, even when examined at Jubilestown, Hurd shrewdly suspected he had not confessed all the truth. However, what could be done was done, and seven plain clothes detectives were set to search for the missing boy.

Pash remained quiet for, at all events, the next four and twenty hours. Whether he saw Mrs. Krill or not during that time Hurd did not know and, truth to say, he cared very little. The lawyer had undoubtedly acted dishonestly, and, if the matter were made public, then would be every chance that he would be struck off the rolls. To prevent this Pash was quite ready to sell Mrs. Krill and any one else connected with the mystery. Also, he wanted to keep the business of Miss Norman, supposing the money—as he hinted might be the case through his assistance—came to her by her, and so Pash had made out as a means to make him speak out. Hurd was now pretty sure that Mrs. Krill was the guilty person.

"She knew Pash through Hay," argued the detective, "and, finding over the case, and undoubtedly came to see him before Norman's death, and that Pash might cheat her out by means of getting the better of the old man by means of the bigamy business. Mrs. Krill was in the Chancery lane office when the brooch left by Tray was on the table, and Mrs. Krill, anxious to get it, no doubt slipped it into her pocket when Pash was talking to his clerk in the outer room. Then I expect she decided to punish her husband by fastening his lips together as he had done those of her daughter by means of a brown egg. I can't exactly see why she strangled him," mused Hurd, "as she could have got away without committing that act in an extreme measure. But the man's dead, and she killed him sure enough. Now, I'll get a warrant out and arrest her directly I can."

Hurd was not quite so sure of this as he spoke, for he had been looking at it. I can't Tray out of the room and attended to my usual business. Several clients came and went, and I forgot all about the opal brooch. I intended to see my client outside about a deed. I was with him for some minutes, and when I returned to the office before I went home—for I intended to take it with me"—

"Tray!" interrupted Hurd. "You were here till Aaron Norman came along with the brooch, so you can see we have the proof we require. Now you can see he would have taken it, seeing it was exposed on the table."

"Then he expected a visit from his wife?"

"I can't say," said the solicitor, with an air of fatigue. "He certainly hinted that he wanted the jewels placed away safely in case anything was connected with the opal brooch should come."

"Perhaps Captain Jessop, who did come," said Paul suddenly.

"His didn't mention the visit of Jessop," snapped Pash. "Had he hinted at a sailor I would have known who my musical visitor was."

"We know all about that," said Hurd, waving his hand, "but if Norman came to you at 7 how did you manage to prevent him meeting his wife in this office?"

"Oh, she was—

OBITUARY.

In the death of Samuel Morrison, which occurred on May 22d, the County loses one of its oldest residents. Born in 1812, he lived under five sovereigns, namely, George III., George IV., William IV., Victoria and Edward VII. He and the late Wm. Armstrong came together from County Fermanagh, Ireland, in the year 1846, and landed at Quebec. After enduring all the hardships and privations which would naturally accompany a three months' passage on a small sailing vessel, they set out on foot for Kingston, and then journeyed on to Clarke's Mills, now Camden East, where the former hired and the latter came on to Tamworth, where his friend afterwards joined him and both were employed at Wheeler's mills for the following two years, when they were married. They remained friends and neighbors until 1891, when Mr. Armstrong went to Gladstone, Man., where he died in 1894. They both were loyal Orangemen, and brought their certificates with them from the old country, dated at Loughgilly-green, County Fermanagh, April 7th, 1846. After they were a short time they gathered their friends about them and with the help of the late Benjamin Dixon, organized the present lodge at Tamworth. On July 11th, 1848, Mr. Armstrong brought the first Orange flag on horseback from Belleville, and the following day they marched around the block by Stewart's Corners to Tamworth, and every succeeding 12th of July since that date, until a year ago, Mr. Morrison has been a familiar figure in the parade. In religion he was a staunch member of the Church of England and in politics a Conservative. His funeral, which was held on Sunday last, was largely attended. The Orangemen walked in a body to the church, where the Rev. Mr. Jones preached an impressive sermon. The deceased was married in 1848 to Jane Hagan, who predeceased him four years ago. He resided with his son John on the old homestead, where he has spent the past sixty years. He reared a family of seven sons and two daughters. The surviving members are William and Samuel, of Tamworth; James, of Harlowe; Mrs. Boyd, of Selby, and Mrs. Carroll, of Tamworth.

Charles Hemmessey was killed by a falling tree falling upon him while fighting a forest fire near Cobalt.

HOW ADVERTISING PROVED ITSELF

Mr. Peter Parker, the assistant manager of The People's Store of Tacoma, has a interesting story to tell of what advertising has done for his store which is typical of Mr. Hogan, the manager, and himself.

When Hogan went to the Peoples Store Mr. Parker said just before leaving the city recently for New York on a purchasing trip "the house has a large business increasing, and Mr. Hogan assumed the management of it. In 1906 we did a business of $——— and in 1907 we went $——— in for advertising in the Ledger. We took three or four times more space than the store had been using and continued to increase our space. We took pages, sometimes as much as four and never less than two or three, as a rule. We had the goods, and we told the people that we had them so that they might know as much about our stock as we did ourselves. The result was that in checking up our business for the last year we found that we had done a million dollars worth.

Mr. Hogan believes that advertising is what brings the business, and I heartily agree with him. We are going to enter on a former years of business this year, and you just watch us grow."

There is a Pink Pain Tablet made by Dr. Shoop, that will positively stop any pain anywhere in 20 minutes. Druggists everywhere sell them as Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets, but they stop other pains as easily as headache. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets simply coax blood pressure away from pain centres—that is all. Pain comes from blood pressure—congestion. Stop that pressure with Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets and pain is instantly gone. 25 Tablets 25c. Sold by T. B. Wallace. 16

Summer Clothes

Every careful dresser gives special attention to his clothing during the summer season.

Summer fabrics, being light in weight, must be carefully made. Our Ready-to-wear 2-piece Suits come from reliable manufacturers and will give extra service. Come and see what we have provided for you.

We are showing some suits as low as $5.00, and at that price they are good value, but we would recommend buying suits at $8.50, $10.00 or $12.00, as these suits are carefully made and will please you.

We are showing an immense range of light weight fancy worsted and tweeds, and can make you one of the coolest and most up-to-date suits to your measure, upon short notice. Prices for these suits range from $15.00 up.

Summer Hats

Nothing is more uncomfortable in the hot weather than a heavy hat, and it is false economy to continue wearing them—as two months' wear in the summer will use a hat up more than five or six months' wear in cool weather. Straw Hats of all styles and makes from 50c to $2.50. Light-weight Fedoras at $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50.

Weak women should read my "Book No. 4 For Women." It was written expressly for women who are not well. —Napanee was quite deserted on Monday last. The ball game in Kingston and other sports drew a large crowd to the Limestone City. An attraction to Picton also was well patronized. The use of firecrackers was forbidden the small boys of Napanee, and the absence of this amusement made the day more like Sunday than a day of amusement. In former years, the use of this pastime was abused and the town was often in danger of fire, and any one driving with horses that were not used to the sudden explosion often had narrow escapes from serious runaways.

—On Saturday morning last, May 23d, Rev. Mr. C. Pretts, only daughter of Mr. Frank Fretts, of Richmond, was united in marriage to Mr. Clarence Jones, of Picton. The bride was attended by Miss Mabel Waltham, of Wappoo, and a like service was performed for the groom by Harry VanSellegart. The bride was attired in a becoming travelling suit of grey cloth. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple took the noon train for a honeymoon trip to Toronto. On their return they will reside in Picton, where the groom is a successful young business man.

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

Champlain.

The following paper, by W. S. Herrington, K.C., was read at the annual meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society on Friday evening, May 15th:

The year of Grace, 1908, is to be marked in Canadian history by a celebration surpassing in grandeur anything ever attempted in our Dominion. Commissioners composed of some of the foremost men of our country are now busy arranging the details. Funds are pouring in from all parts of the Empire—rich and poor alike cheerfully contributing towards this great undertaking. Soon the eyes of all Canada will be turned towards Quebec, where is to be the scene of this magnificent demonstration.

The guest of honor at this national function will be no less a personage than the heir to the British throne. A section of the world's greatest navy will escort His Royal Highness to the ancient capital. Other nations will send their battleships to sun in the festivities. Canadian troops, statesmen and distinguished visitors will for a brief period tax to the utmost the hospitality of the spacious old city. Where these extensive preparations? Why these long months of delay, when such are engrossed in the magnificent task before us? Why such extraordinary attraction to direct their attention from their usual pursuits? Why no stone thrown into the ocean of two lavish expenditure and wide-spread interest? We are told that this is a fitting celebration of the founding of Quebec. Somewhere with the celebration of this event is the worthy object of preserving the suitable number for all time of the historic battlefield of the Plains of Abraham. It is quite fitting that the Canadian Historical Society should set all on the scene to pass without recall any or some kind thereof the advent of the first white man who stretched out his hand in friendship to the untutored lord of the forest, which marked the beginning of an epoch in the history of this continent? Why not be told that this is a celebration of our people and we should be proud of our father House to mark in a fitting manner such an event in the annals of the Empire? Such a celebration would be worthy the occasion and be in keeping with the dignity of the Dominion. It would be a fitting tribute to the valor, fortitude and patriotism of the founder of Canada and to all others who with him laid the foundation of our country. So much do Champlain and his work overshadow all the other events of the early history of Canada that it would be impossible to attempt to exclude from such celebration all that would not be connected with him. Champlain is the central figure around which all the other events of the early history of Canada must revolve. He is the one man who stands out prominently as the founder of New France. He was the first white man to penetrate the wilderness of the Ottawa valley and to explore the great lakes of the west. He was the first to establish a permanent settlement in the province of Quebec. ANNUAL PICNIC.

A very pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. Jas. B. Miller, Morven, on Monday, May 25th, when between thirty-five and forty cousins of Mrs. Miller, from Portland, Oregon, Kingston, Consecon, Napanee, Bath, Hawley and Morven met for their annual picnic. The day was perfect throughout. The decorations were in perfect harmony with the day, and ample justice was done to relieve the heavy laden tables which were spread with all the delicacies of the season. Games and music provided the entertainment, intermingled with a few fire crackers by the boys to keep in touch with the day.

OBITUARY.

It is our sad duty this week to chronicle the death of one of Napanee's most respected and esteemed citizens in the person of Mrs. Irvine Parks, South Napanee. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Scott, the first settlers of Richmond township, and was born on the old homestead near Mink's bridge, Richmond township, on October 1st, 1840. She attended Newburgh Academy, at that time considered one of the best schools in Canada. After graduating she taught school for several years. In 1864 she became the wife of the late Wm. Edwin Frets, of Richmond, one daughter, Mrs. Ezra Huffman, Hay Bay, surviving. Mr. Fretz died in 1867, and on October 8th, 1873, the subject of this sketch married Mr Irvine Parks, Hay Bay. In 1892 Mr. Parks was appointed County Treasurer and they moved to Napanee, where they have resided ever since. Mrs. Parks was an active member of Western Methodist church, Napanee, where she will be greatly missed. Her life was an exemplary one in every detail, and the world is certainly the better for having lived in it. One sister, of a family of twelve children, alone survives, Mrs. Ibra Sills, Hay Bay. Her husband, Mr. Irvine Parks, our respected County Treasurer, has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in his sad bereavement. The funeral will take place from her late residence, South Napanee, this (Friday) afternoon at 1:15. Service at Western Methodist church at 1:30 p.m., thence to the Parks' cemetery, Hay Bay.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE LIBRARY.

Another consignment of books has been added to the already well stocked shelves of the Public Library.

For the young people there are nine volumes devoted to Captain Cook, Sir Frances Drake, Joan of Arc, Lord Roberts, Chalmers of New Guinea, Bishop Patteson, Abraham Lincoln, Lord Nelson and Robert Bruce. These books are in narrative form, illustrated in colors and are sure to please the children.

For those who cannot afford to travel abroad the next best thing is a good book dealing with points of interest. Six books beautifully illustrated, entitled respectively, Venice, Cairo, Greek Constantinople, Florence and Naples, supply this want. These six volumes are educative and interesting.

Of a similar character is the "Continent of Opportunity" by Frances E. Clark. This book contains the impressions of the author from an extended tour through the South American Republics.

The following works of fiction carefully selected from the latest publications will be in great demand, "The Measure of Rule" by Robert Barr, "Excess Manse" by Archibald Marshall, "The Barrier" by Rex. Beach, "King Bruce" by Holman Day, "Derelicts" by William J. Locke, "Santa Lucia" by Mary Austin, "The White Dove" by William J. Locke, "Love's Logic" by Anthony Hope, "The Morals of Marcus" by William J. Locke, "The Prima Donna" by F. Marion Crawford, "Seraphica" by Justin Huntly McArthy, "Marcia Schuyler" by Grace Livingston, "Hill Luts" "Beau Brocade" and "Prisoners of Chance."

For the boys, the following have been provided, "The Isle of Black Fire", "The Days of Chivalry" and "The Boy Duck-hunters."

"Peeps into Nature's Ways" by John J. Ward, illustrated by photographs and photomicrographs by the author, and "The World's Great Astronomers" are a series of popular lectures which may be read with profit by old and young.

BASEBALL.

Kingston 14, Napanee 6.

The local baseball team played an exhibition game of ball with the Victorias at Kingston on Monday last, and were defeated by a score of 14-6. The game was exceedingly interesting and snappy ball was played by the locals outside of the second and fifth innings, when the Victorias batted ten runs. The decisions of the umpire could have been bettered in several instances, and the local team will give a better account of themselves when the return game is played here. Following is the score:

W. J. PAUL, M.P.P., ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION.

Mr. Paul was returned at the last general election by a large majority to represent Addington in the Legislature, and has been elected by acclamation to represent Addington in the next Legislature as a supporter of Mr. Whitney.

The electors of Addington, both Liberal and Conservative, have approved of his course in the Legislature, and of the course of the Whitney Administration.

Since the school policy of the Administration has been explained and placed before the people of the constituency, by returning Mr Paul by acclamation they have shown their entire approval of this school policy.

Both parties, Liberal and Conservative, feel that the Whitney Administration has made a great advance in dealing with the question of education.

Why You Should Vote for Carscallen

During the three years' reeime of the Whitney Government the electors have been presented with the following cash saving on school books

	Was	Whitney
	Price.	Price.
First Reader, Part I.	15c.	9c.
First Reader, Part II.	20c.	9c.
Second Reader	25c.	15c.
Third Reader	35c.	15c.
Fourth Reader	45c.	25c.

In other words you can purchase $1.30 worth of school books now for 89c. One good reason why you should vote for Carscallen and A Square Deal.

In 1901, under the Ross Government, the rural schools of the County of Lennox and Addington received $2,130.00. In 1907, under the Whitney Government, the rural schools of this county were paid the sum of $6,760.00, or over three times the amount given us by the Liberals. Another splendid reason why every elector should vote for Carscallen and A Square Deal.

The numbered ballot has been abolished and you can go to the poll next Monday a free man, knowing positively that no person can tell what way you have cast your ballot. A third good reason why you should vote for Carscallen and A Square Deal.

The Whitney Government will be returned by a handsome majority, and deservedly so, as they have no ballot box stuffing scandals, "Minnie M." scandals, etc., to answer for, and have given the people of Ontario good, clean, honest, progressive government. Another good reason why you should vote for Carscallen and A Square Deal.

Mr. Madole, the Liberal candidate, has nothing against Mr. Carscallen, so he says in his address to the electors in the public press. He goes on to say that he is not a hide-bound partisan, and will not consider himself bound to support his party. For fear he might support the infants of the late Ross Government it is your interests to vote for Carscallen, as Mr. Madole admits himself that he and Mr. Carscallen are personal friends, and he has nothing against him.

You had about thirty years of Liberal rule, was (every one of you) disgusted with the ballot box scandals, and others too numerous to mention. Think seriously before you go to the polls on Monday next. Your own conscience will appeal to you to cast your ballot for Carscallen and Honest Government.

KALADAR.

Kaladar is very quiet, owing to so many leaving the little hamlet for Dryden.—Mr. Geo. Thompson is doing a flourishing business in his new hotel. He meets each train.—Mrs. Anderson and children left on Tuesday to reside in Norwood. Her sister, Miss Fleming, accompanied her as far as Peterborough.—Dan Clairmont Grant passed through here on his way to Denbigh.—Miss Deveiin, who has been visiting friends here, Mrs. Dunn, at the station, has returned to her home in Pembroke.—Mr. C. Kellar is renovating his carriages by giving them a coat of paint.—A few from here attended service in Flinton on Sunday evening.—Mr. F. Hughes paid a flying trip to the front on Tuesday evening. —Fishing is the order of the day.

FELLOWS.

The farmers are rushing their spring's work. Some are all through in this vicinity. Owing to the heavy rains they are late getting their crops in. Everything looks lovely and green here, even the apple trees and other trees, which are all in blossom, are very pretty.—Miss May Howie, of Napanee, spent the 30th May with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howie.—Mr. and Mrs. Mark Rowse, of Bath, were at Mr. Robert Howie's, one day last week. —Miss Jennie Boire, of Violet, called on Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson one day last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith spent Sunday last with his parents, at Westbrook.—Mrs. George Dawson and children, Harry and Grace, spent the 24th May at her daughter's, Mrs. Henry Wiskin, King ston.—Mr. and Mrs. Dawson returned from Watertown on Saturday night to spend a few days with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. George Dawson.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henderson, of Napanee, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James McFarland, on Sunday. —Mr. William Sherry and Mr. and Mrs. Babcock, of Wilton, were at Mr. Wesley Frink's on Sunday.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith were in Napanee on Wednesday last.—Miss Eunice Howie was in Napanee on Saturday. —Miss Valentine, of Linn Grove, spent Sunday last with Miss Eunice Howie.—Mr. Frank Smith has purchased a new top buggy.—Mr. Sheldon Parks is sexton of the church now.—Mr. Sherry had the misfortune of running a rusty nail in his leg. The doctor is attending him twice a day. He is a little better now.

HOW TO MARK YOUR BALLOT.

For the benefit of the electors we may state that Mr. Carscallen's name will be on the top of the ballot paper and Mr. Madole's name at the bottom. Here is a sample of the ballot, and those voting for Mr. Carscallen will mark their ballots thus:—

1	THOMAS G. CARSCALLEN Of the Town of Napanee, Undertaker.	X
2	MARSHALL S. ADOLE. Of the Town of Napanee, Merchant.

"IT'S GOOD" WHEN YOU GET IT AT WALLACE'S DRUG STORE.

NEWBURGH.

Rev. R. Duke and Mr. J. B. Aylesworth are attending Conference in Lindsay this week.

Miss Kathleen Duke, nurse-in-training, of New York City, is spending a few weeks with her parents at the parsonage.

Miss Horton, of Morven, sang two solos very acceptably in the Methodist church on Sunday evening, during her stay in Newburgh she was the guest of Miss Limbert.

Mrs. Winters and Miss Limbert entertained the choir of the Methodist church on Saturday evening.

The young bachelors gave a dance in Finkle's hall on Tuesday evening.

William Scott, of Kingston, spent Tuesday evening in the burgh.

Mrs. Swayne and son, of Oxford Mills, spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. A. A. Aylesworth.

Dr. Beeman is in Toronto this week. Dr. Clancy is taking the practice during his absence.

Mrs. Aylesworth, of Montreal, is spending a few weeks in the village.

Miss Baker, Napanee, spent last week with Mrs. J. W. Courtney.

M. Ryan is attending County Council in Napanee this week.

The little son of Albert Tompkins was injured last week by being thrown from the wagon when the horse ran away. Fortunately the injury was not serious, and the little fellow is rapidly recovering.

Mr. Rufus Lewis' horse ran away on Wednesday afternoon. The horse broke away from the buggy, and Mr. Lewis, who had jumped, caught a wheel, thus preventing the vehicle from upsetting, and Mrs. Lewis, who was in the buggy, thus escaped injury.

The Salvation Army held a meeting in the vacant house owned by M. W. Simkins, on Wednesday night. On Sunday next services will be held at 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. We understand the Army, with a little encouragement, will locate here permanently. The great and good work which this organization is doing should commend it to public support.

The members of the Bridge Committee of the County were in the village on Thursday morning in reference to the new bridge.

The High School baseball team, all crowded into a buggy owned by one Duke, who claims his official residence and place of abode as the Methodist parsonage, drove along the dusty road to Strathcona (commonly known as Yankee Mills) on Wednesday evening, there to meet on the latter ground—famed in history for famous battles, the stalwart youths who compose the baseball team of that city. It is not our intention, gentle reader, to go into the details of this meeting. Suffice it to say that Newburgh won 17-24, or some other score of like dimensions. We do not know who played for Strathcona. Since they did not win it matters little. We wouldn't have known that Bill Skinner, who usually displays his split ball specialties from the pitching box, was not feeling well until Bill sometimes gets sick, you know, and consequently only stayed on the firing line one inning. Judge Aylesworth and Dr. Dougan served 'em up for the blue and pink for the rest of the game, but we are not going to say many runs the sluggers from the neighboring city made off each pitcher. But the boys say there were dozens all the time, and an extra sheet of paper from the press gang could not be had to be procured on which to keep record of the errors, hits, runs, grand stand plays and ballon-ascensions which either team was likely to make at any time.

Besides the famous individuals of the blue and pink hereinbefore mentioned, there were Daisy Spafford, known at home as Jay, who did the heavy backstopping and one of his fingers got in the way of one of Piggy's inshoots; Jarkie Perry, who cavorts around the middle station, and who distinguished himself by a sensational slide to second; Pat Foley, who played short, and who claims he, with the assistance of Jarkie, made six double plays; Deare, called Deer in Yarker, who nailed several Strath cona runners at third; Dock Emberley, who in centre field took 10 minutes to pick a grounder and then was in time to throw Jack Kelley at second; and Kehoe, known in days gone by as a citizen of Strathcona as Clayton, who distinguished himself by catching innumerable horse flies from his lofty position in right field.

Mr. Percy Langford Nesbit called the balls and strikes in his official capacity as umpire, and succeeded in so discharging his duties as to get of the field without being mobbed. But Piggy declares the umpire favored Strathcona, while Joby and Bill say they were sorely tempted to punch that official right then and there for his decisions. No doubt that gentleman did not wish to give the fans the impression that he was partisan, but his desire to see Newburgh win and with the score so one-sided felt he was justified in soaking the locals on one or two occasions. Quite right, Mr. Umpire, quite right.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church will hold their annual ice cream and strawberry festival on the lawn of J. S. Yeomans on Thursday evening, June 25th. A first class band will be in attendance and an excellent programme will be rendered on the date. Admission, 25 cents which includes everything.

Vote for Carscallen and the Square Deal.

TAMWORTH.

Come and see the Spinsters' Convention in the Town Hall, Tamworth. Come and see the old maids transformed into youthful young maidens before your eyes, at the Town Hall, Tamworth, on Wednesday, June 10th.—W. J. Paul was nominated by acclamation.

McLEAN.

Robert Vanvolkenburgh was found dead on Monday morning, May 25th, on the public road between McLean and Marysville. He was on his way to the cheese factory. Deceased had been troubled with heart failure for some time, and it is supposed that he had a weak spell and fell between the wheels and the step, cutting his head badly, the wagon having about 1200 lbs. of milk on it, passed over his body. Deceased was born in Camden, Ont., about 65 years ago, was a man of kindly disposition and was well thought of in all who knew him. He leaves a widow and six children, five sons, Elias Vanvolkenburg, Enterprise; Fred. of McLean; Robert, of Alberta, N.W.T., and John and Silverpeed with three daughters, Mrs. Rufus Wagar, of Trafford, to mourn the loss of a loving husband and kind father. The funeral was held at the family residence. Rev. Mr. Sharpe preached a very impressive sermon from I. Cor., 15 : 44. "It is sown a natural body it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, there is a spiritual body." Glad what the voice from Heaven proclaims for all the pious dead.

Sweet is the Saviour of their names and soft their dieing bed.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN,

Is Rivaled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and fluffiness, and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair troubles is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its very roots. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the destructive germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a lustrous growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scratching only won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. MRS. LESLIE-CARTER IN DU BARRY

Mrs. Leslie-Carter's appearance at the Grand Opera House in Kingston, on Tuesday, June 9th, in David Belasco's play "Du Barry" should prove a red letter night in the theatrical history of that city. Mrs. Carter is generally recognized as the greatest actress of the time. Her wonderfully personality amazing talents and irridescent temperment find in Du Barry an ample field for their revealing. Du Barry is a wonderful play,—the greatest of our day. It calls for an array of supreme talents, personality and temperment, and these Mrs. Carter supplies in abundant measure. Her triumph in this play has been the most complete and sweeping known to the annals of the stage.

THE LION AND THE MOUSE.

"The Lion and the Mouse" which Henry H. Harris will present at the Grand Opera House in Kingston, on Wednesday, June 10th, is an American play essential. It is a story of capital and labor based upon a theme which has not been before exploited in dramatic form. It deals directly with a subject which at the present moment is very much in the public mind. The corruption of politics and legislation by the power of combined money making organizations and the dominance of unscrupulous kings of finance. To Charles Klein who wrote the play and Henry B. Harris who had foresight to appreciate the timeliness of it, is due credit for unobtrusively one of the best that has been seen in America in many years. The announcement of the production here is gratifying.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

On Monday evening, the 1st of June, a very pleasant event took place at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Switzer, Bridge street, when their eldest daughter, Marie Coral, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. Leslie Quinn, of Shoreborne. The ceremony which united in marriage to Mr. Chas. Leslie Quinn, of Shoreborne. The ceremony which united the two was performed by Rev. R. Arthur Whitlam and Rev. W. H. Hodgson, assisted by Rev. R. E. Allin, of Enterprise. The bride was attired in a charming dress of white silk muslin over white taffeta, with bridal roses, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Bessie Pearl Switzer, in white silk muslin over white. The groom was ably attended by his brother, Mr. William J. Quinn. The congratulations had been offered, the guests, about fifty in number, retired to the dining room, where all partook of a sumptuous repast. At the close toast was drank to the bridal couple, and a gold ruler was given by Mr. M. J. Quinn, uncle of the groom and Mr. J. N. Switzer, father of the bride, while speeches were made by other gentlemen present, each expressing his kind wishes for the future happiness and prosperity of the happy couple. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold crescent brooch set with pearls and the bridesmaid, a beautiful gold pin, and to the groomsman, a gold tie pin. The bride will be greatly missed here both in social and church circles, as she has effectively filled the position of organist in the Methodist church and Sunday School for some time, and has been an active worker in them. The many useful and beautiful gifts testify to the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their many friends. The bride's going away gown was light grey broadcloth with hat to match. The happy pair took the 1.38 train for Napanee to Peterboro', and other points west, to spend their honeymoon. A crowd of young friends accompanied them to the station. On their return they will reside in Lansdowne.

HON. MR. BLAKE TO PREMIER WHITNEY.

I am unable to see any act for which you or your government is responsible that has been devised or carried out from any sinister or improper motive.

I do not think that law reform has been sufficiently considered, and that the matter is ripe for legislation.

I am glad that the threats made upon you failed to cause a repeal of the three-fifths clause.

There must be an almost universal relief of the shareholders at the policy which that has taken place in the working of the department of lands, forest and mines.

If you had not done anything for us but what you have accomplished in respect of the Toronto University, we should all give you our deepest thanks. You have been unfairly and cruelly persecuted (on the power question) by a band of men whose one object seems to be to compel you to abandon what was in the interests of the province in order to fill their pockets.

You were perfectly justified in not preventing the Lieutenant-Governor voting at the C.N.R. a guarantee which turned a deficit into a handsome profit.

The opposition may well say to their friends—"Save us from our friends," who now try to present us with Hon. Mr. Blake's views, and to compel us to accept them.

No one doubts that your government will be returned to power.

WEDDING BELLS.

Baldur Gazette.

A marriage of especial interest to Baldur, and, indeed, to the large circle of acquaintances (enjoyed by both contracting parties throughout the province, took place on Wednesday, April 29th, when their eldest daughter, Lillian Ethel, was united in marriage to John Fletcher Bell, son of E. F. Tomkins, Esq., M.P.P.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. J. Hooper in the presence of only the immediate relatives. The bride entered the drawing room on the father's arm, the wedding march being played by Miss Hazel Card, of Glenboro. The ceremony was performed—the bride and groom standing before a handsome arch of evergreens intertwined with bows of white ribbon and roses. The bride looked very beautiful in attired in a handsome robe over silk with bridal veil held in place by a spray of orange blossoms and carrying a bouquet of flowers.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served after which the happy couple amid showers of rice and the good wishes of their host of friends, left on the morning train for Toronto.

The bride's going-away dress was of dark green cheviot tweed, made in an Eton suit, with a white silk open work vest. Her hat was of dark green white mohair trimmed with roses.

The Gazette joins in congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Bell, and we wish them unalloyed happiness in their new home on the shores of the Pacific.

IS THERE NO BETTER WAY?

(Christian Guardian.)

There are times when one popular press can be, and is, notoriously partisan and unfair in dealing with a time in some question in the fair Province of Ontario. As an illustration and remedy we take it coolly as an illustration, for there are many others that can quite match it, that we might mention the leading Liberal organ in this city and province. It is very fierce in its partisanship in the best among our daily papers, decently fair and honorable in its treatment of men of political issues, and aiming to make its leadership not only a party, but a national one as well. And yet its campaign all the present time in Provincial politics is marked by over-statement, misrepresentation, and unfairness that, to us at least, seems to have almost reached the limit of decency.

Mr. Whitney and his government should be made to face their responsibility resolutely, and the opposition press will fail in its duty if it does not make them so face it, in sight of the whole people they were elected to serve, but that is no excuse for a campaign of misrepresentation and false emphasis.

And yet that is the kind of campaign that too often we are treated to by the organs of both parties indiscriminately. And it is considered the best and most effective kind of campaigning too. But to consider it such is surely to put a poor estimate upon the fairness and discernment of the people. And the question comes: Is there not a better, a more honorable, and a more Christian way?

ASSISTANCE IN DRAINAGE.

Farm Drainage Demonstrations.

The Department of Physics at the Ontario Agricultural College has just announced the continuance of its previous offer of assistance to the farmers in matters relating to drainage. For the past three years we have been assisting the Minister of Agriculture to go out and assist any farmers in taking the levels and plans for drainage purposes, in planning the most advantageous systems of drains, and in calculating the grades and sizes of tile for the drains required. The farmer has only to ask the information is sent to the owner. This work is done entirely free of charge. After the information is obtained the plans that be preserved as a record of the state of drainage in the district, but for the sole reason it should be necessary in years to come to find drain it would be done accurately at a moment's notice.

The number of applications for assistance has increased very rapidly, so that last year we had many more than we could attend to. To enable us to meet this increased demand the Minister of Agriculture has this year given us a special appropriation whereby we will be able to assist a much greater number.

A new feature is being added. We have decided to make a few demonstrations in the neighbors in the vicinity of the farm being surveyed were interested and wished to observe the operations. This suggested the possibility of making these demonstrations public, and this will be done wherever possible. Anyone interested will be welcome on all occasions. By this means we shall be able to assist a much larger number in matters pertaining to drainage.

Anyone wishing drainage surveying done should apply Wm. H. Day, Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph. The only outlay connected with the work is the traveling expenses of one man, including meals, wastage of instruments and railway fare at one cent a mile each way.

The Department has just issued a new pamphlet on "Farm Drainage Operations", which may be had on application.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional; but together they cure to stay cured. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure for kidney, bladder, nerve and stomach troubles. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—the tropical nervine nemesis—soothes, quiets, does its work while you sleep. It soothes nerve and kidney centers, heals local weaknesses and does no more. While the Restorative, nerve nourishment, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, brings almost renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Night Cure for the symptom's sake. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative for the cause's sake. Both at once for positive local help, use as well

I tell you, Rose, people are so particular about the shoes they wear that they are each night to be sure and use "2 in 1."

THE LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY

Assets $64,000,000

Losses of the above first heard of by husband by seeing a chance handbill"—

"Not at all," answered Hurd, just as decidedly. "Hay has confessed."

"There was nothing to confess," cried Mrs. Krill loudly and with emphasis.

"Oh, I think so," said the detective, noting that she was losing her temper. "You didn't want it known that you were aware of Norman's identity before his death. Do you deny that?"

"I deny everything," gasped Mrs. Krill, her hands trembling.

"That's a pity, as I want you to corroborate certain facts connected with Anne Tyler. Do you know the name?"

"My maiden name," said the widow, and a look of fear crept into her hard, staring eyes. "How did you come to know of it?"

"From the marriage certificate supplied by Pash."

"He had no right to give it to you."

"He didn't. I possess only a copy. But that copy I sent down in charge of a certain person to Beechcroft. This person found that you were married in Anne Tyler's house. Mrs. Krill to the parish church, twenty miles from your birthplace. This person also made inquiries at Stowley about you. You are the daughter of a farmer."

"I mentioned that fact myself."

"Yes. But you didn't mention that your mother had been hanged for poisoning your father."

Mrs. Krill turned ghastly pale. "No," she said in a suffocating voice. "Such is the case, but can you wonder that I forebore to mention that fact? My daughter knows nothing of that—nor did my husband"—

"Which husband do you mean, Krill or Jessop?" asked Hurd.

Mrs. Krill gasped and rose, swaying. "What do you mean, man?"

"This," said the detective, on his feet at once; "this person hunted out the early life of Anne Tyler at Stowley. It was discovered that Anne was the daughter of a woman who had been hanged, and also that she had been murdered; also this person found that Anne Tyler married a sailor called Jarvey Jessop some years before she committed bigamy with Lemuel Krill and died—"

"It's a lie!" screamed Mrs. Krill, losing her self control. "How dare you come here with these falsehoods?"

"They are not falsehoods, Anne Tyler, alias Anne Jessop, alias Anne Krill, etc.," retorted Hurd, speaking rapidly and emphasizing his remarks with his finger in his usual fashion when in deadly earnest. "You were married to Jessop in Stowley church. You bore him a daughter, who was christened Maud Jessop in Stowley church. The person I mentioned sent me copies of the marriage and birth certificates. So your marriage with Lemuel Krill was false, and his second marriage with Lillian Garner is a good one in law. Which means, Mrs. Jessop"—Hurd hurled the word at her, and she shrank—"that Sylvia Norman, or Sylvia Jessop, as she rightfully owns that money which you wrongfully withheld from her. The will gives the fifty thousand a year to 'my daughter,' and Sylvia is the only daughter and only child—the legitimate child, mark you—of Lemuel Krill."

"Liar, liar, liar!" raged Mrs. Krill, as she rose and walked, tottering slightly Jessop. "I'll defend the case on my daughter's behalf."

"You will, certainly," said Hurd, "but not Krill's."

"I say yes."

"And I say no. She was fifteen when Lady Rachel was murdered, as Jessop, her father, admitted, and the girl was keeping something back, but I was far from suspecting that it was this early marriage. No wonder the man came to you and had free quarters at the Red Fig. He could have prosecuted you for bigamy, just as you would have prosecuted Krill had you not murdered him."

Mrs. Krill gave a yell, and her eyes blazed. "You bound," she shouted, "do you accuse me of that?"

"I do more than accuse you. I arrest you." Hurd produced the warrant. "A man is waiting in the cab. We'll get a four wheeler, and you'll come along with me to jail, Mrs. Jessop."

"You can't prove it—you can't prove it," she panted, "and I shan't go—I shan't—I shan't!" And her eyes sought the tapestry.

"Miss Jessop can come out," said Hurd coolly, "and, as to your not coming, a few policemen will soon put that right."

"How dare you insult me?"

"Come, come," said the detective sternly, "I've had quite enough of this. You offered me £1,000 to learn who Anne Tyler called husband, Krill. I have earned the reward"—

"Not on shifting shall you have."

"Oh, I think so. Miss Sylvia will pay it to me, and you"—

"I am innocent. I never touched the man."

"A jury will decide that, Mrs. Jessop."

"Krill—my name is Krill."

Hurd laughed and turned toward the tapestry.

"What do you say, Miss Jessop?" he asked.

Seeing that further concealment was at an end, Maud lifted the tapestry, which concealed a small door, through which she had silently stolen to listen. She advanced calmly. "I have heard all your conversation with my mother," she declared, with flashing eyes, "and not one word of it is true. I am the daughter of Lemuel Krill."

"You'll find that hard to prove in the face of your birth certificate and your mother's marriage to Captain Jessop, your father."

"It will all be put right."

"Quite so, and Miss Norman will get the money."

"That girl—never!" cried Maud fiercely. She looked very like her mother

Hurd produced the warrant.

at the moment, but the more angry she grew the calmer became Mrs. Krill, who kept darting anxious glances at her daughter. "And you shan't take my mother away," she cried threateningly.

"I don't want to make a scandal in the neighborhood," said Hurd, taking a small whistle from his pocket, "but if I blow this I will run out there and call the nearest policeman, and then"—

"There is no need," interrupted Mrs. Krill, who had regained her self control. "stand, come over beside me. On what grounds, Mr. Hurd, do you accuse me of the crime? I was not in town on"—

"Oh, yes, you were, Mrs. Jessop. Pash can prove that you were in his office and took the brooch left by Tray from the table. I don't know where you stopped on the night."

"At Judson's hotel, Strand," cried Maud, glancing beside her mother, "and any one there can prove that my mother and myself were within doors after we came from Terry's theater, where we spent the evening. As my father, Mr. Krill was my father —was killed after 12 and we were both in bed in one room before then, your accusation fails to the ground. My mother was with me, and she did not leave the whole evening. Next day we went to Chelsea and"—

Hurd was rather staggered by the positive way in which the young woman spoke. But the facts were plain for him to hesitate. "I must trouble you to come along," he said. "Matilda will bring your things."

Mrs. Krill touched the electric button of the bell, while Maud walked up and down, deathly white and fuming. "Mr. Hurd shall see to this," she said in a cold rage.

"Mr. Hay will have quite enough to do to look after Miss Norman," said the detective coolly; "you had better let your mother go quietly, and I won't say anything to Matilda."

Matilda entered the room and heard that Mrs. Krill had to go out on business with Mr. Hurd. On receiving her orders she departed and presently returned with the cloak and hat. Mrs. Krill, who was now quite cool, put these on. Hurd could not but admire the brave way in which she faced the terrible situation. Maud seemed to be far more vexed.

Miss Junk departed, and Mrs. Krill said that she was ready to depart. Hurd offered her his arm, which she rejected, and walked to the door with a firm step, although her face was rather white. At the door she caught her daughter round the neck and kissed her several times, after which she whispered earnestly in her ear and then went down the stairs with the detective in attendance. Maud, with white lips and cheeks, but with dry eyes, followed. When her mother was safely in the cab, the plain clothes policeman alighted so that Hurd might take his place. Maud came quietly down the steps and seized the detective by the arm.

"You have refused my mother," she said in a cold, hard tone; "you have robbed me of my money, and of the chance of marrying the man I love. I can't hurt you, but that girl, Sylvia—she shall never get one penny—so, remember!"

Hurd shook her off, and, stepping into the cab, drove away. Mrs. Krill looked apprehensively at him. "What did Maud say?" she asked. Hurd told her, and Mrs. Krill closed her lips firmly. "Maud is quite right," she said, with a strange smile.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Use say your meanin', my pretty queen," said Mrs. Tawsey as she stood at the sitting room door and watched Sylvia reading an ill written letter. "It's 12 now, and I kin be back by 5, arter a long and enjiable luck with Matthder."

"You certainly must go," replied Sylvia, handing back the letter. "I am sure your sister will be glad to see you, Debby."

Deborah sniffed and scratched her elbow. "Relations ain't friends in our family," she said, shaking her head. "We ain't seen each other for years, and the meetin' will be cold. She'll not have much forgiveness for me bein' a bribe when she's but a lone crompatch, drat her!"

"Don't quarrel with her, Debby. She has written you a very nice letter, asking you to go down to Mrs. Krill's house in Kensington, and she really wants to see you before she goes back to the Continent tonight."

"Well, I'll go," said Deborah suddenly, "but I don't like leavin' you all by your own very self, my sunflower."

"I'll be all right, Debby. Paul comes at 4 o'clock, and you'll be back at 5."

"Sooner if me and Matilder don't hit it orf or if we bit each other, which I knowin' 'er 'abits, I do expects. But Barb's out till 6, and there won't be any one to look arter them as washes —four of 'em," added Mrs. Tawsey, rubbing her nose, "and as idle as pork-pines."

"Mrs. Furr can look after them."

"Look arter gin more like," said Deborah. "Here she is idlin', as usual. And may I arsk, Mrs. Purr, ma'am," demanded Deborah, with great politeness, "wot I pays you fur in the way of ironin'?"

But Mrs. Furr was too excited to reply. She brushed past her indignant mistress and faced Sylvia, waving a dirty piece of paper. "Lor', miss," she almost screamed, "you do say as you want t' know where that limb Tray 'ave got to"—

"Yes, yes," said Sylvia, rising; "he escaped from Mr. Hurd, and we want to find him very much."

"It's a letter from 'im," said Mrs. Purr, thrusting the paper into Sylvia's hand. "Tho' 'ow he writes, not 'avin' bin to a board school, I dunno. He's in a ken at Lambith and ill at that. Wants me t' go and see 'im. But I can't leave the lronin'."

"Tray, y' can," said Deborah suddenly. "Wot's arringd is nearly, Mrs. Purr, ma'am, so jes' put on your bunnet an' go to Mr. Hurd as 'as 'is orfice at Scotlan' Yard and take 'im with you."

"Oh, but I couldn't"—

"You can," advised Mrs. Tawsey. "There's 15 offered for the brat's bein' found."

"Five pun!" gasped Mrs. Purr, trembling. "Lor', and me 'avin' a chanct of gittin' it. I'll go. I'll go. I knows where Mr. Hurd 'ad managed to put 'em dirty perlice in my time. Miss Sylvia"—

"Yes, go, Mrs. Purr, and see Mr. Hurd. He'll give you the £5 if you take him to Tray." Sylvia handed back the paper. "Tray seems to be ill."

"Ill or well, he shan't lose me five pun if I 'ave to drag 'im to the lockup m'self," said Mrs. Purr. She hurried out, hardly able to walk for excitement.

"There's a nice ole party for you, Miss Sylvia!"

"Debby," said the girl thoughtfully, "you take her in the 'bus to see Mr. Hurd and then go to Kensington to speak with your sister."

"Wot's I to go, as importance it is," said Mrs. Tawsey, rubbing her nose harder than ever. "But I 'opes you won't be long, my sunflower, for I"—

"Oh, no," said Sylvia, kissing her and pushing her toward the door. "I'll look after those four women in the washhouse and read this new book I have. Then I must get tea ready for Paul, who comes at 4. The afternoon will pass quite quickly."

"I'll be back at 5 if I can and neither Matilder ain't 'ad murdered my nephew," said Mrs. Tawsey, yielding.

In another quarter of an hour Mrs. Tawsey, dressed in her bridal gown and bonnet so as to crush Matilda with the sight of her splendor, walked down the garden path, attended by Mrs. Purr in a smutty black shawl and a kind of cobweb on her head which she called a "bonnet."

Sylvia, left alone, proceeded to arrange matters. She went to the washhouse, which was detached from the cottage, and saw that four women, who worked under Deborah's orders, were all there chattering and wearing in a cheerful way, so, after a word or two of commendation, she returned to the sitting room. Here she played a game of patience, arranged the tea things, although it was yet early, and finally settled down to one of Mrs. Wood's interesting novels.

Deborah had lighted a cheerful fire before she went that her mistress might be comfortable, as Sylvia had a dread of loneliness, and at half an hour, frequently stopping to think of Paul and wonder if he would come on the appointed day, she read on. What with the warmth and the reading and the dreaming she fell into a kind of doze, although she was awakened by a sharp and peremptory knock. Wondering if her lover had unexpectedly arrived, although she did not think he would rap in so decided a manner, Sylvia rubbed the sleep out of her eyes and went to attend to the door. On the steps she came face to face with Miss Maud Krill.

"Do you know me, Miss Norman?" asked Maud, who was smiling and suave, though rather white in the face.

"Yes. You came with your mother to Cheyne Street," replied Sylvia, wondering why she had been honored with a visit.

"Quite so. May I have a few minutes' conversation with you?"

"Certainly." Sylvia saw no reason to deny this request, although she did not like Miss Krill. But it struck her that something might be learned from Maud's unwonted rebuke to the father and thought she would have something to tell Paul about when he arrived.

"Are you quite alone?" asked Maud, entering and seating herself in the chair near the fire.

"Quite," answered Sylvia stiffly and wondering why Deborah had not attended—"that is, the four washerwomen are in the place at the back. But Mrs. Tawsey went to your house to see her sister."

"She arrived before I left," said Maud coolly. "I saw them quarreling in a most friendly way. Where is Mr. Beecot?"

"I expect him later."

"And Bart Tawsey, who married your nurse?"

"He is absent on his rounds. May I ask why you question me in this way, Miss Krill?" asked Sylvia coldly.

"Because I have much to say to you which no one else must hear," was the calm reply. "Dear me, how hot this fire is!" And she moved her chair so that it blocked Sylvia's way to the door; also Miss Krill cast a glance at the window. It was not unlibed, and she made a movement as if to go to it; but Sylvia, guessing herself, kept her calm, cold face to the girl. "I have much to say to you," she repeated.

"Indeed," replied Sylvia politely, "I don't think you have treated me so well that you should trouble to converse with me. Will you please to be brief? Mr. Beecot is coming at 4, and he will not be at all pleased to see you."

Maud glanced at the clock. "We have an hour," she said coldly. "It is just a few minutes after 3. My business will not take long." She added, with an unpleasant smile.

"What is your business?" asked Sylvia uneasily, for she did not like the smile.

"If you will sit down, I'll tell you." Miss Norman took a chair near the wall and as far from her visitor as was possible in so small a room. Maud took from her muff a black silk handkerchief which she wore, evidently as a protection against the cold, and, folding it lengthwise, laid it across her lap. Then she looked at Sylvia in a cold, critical way. "You are very pretty, my dear," she said insolently.

"Did you come to tell me that?" asked the girl, firing up at the tone.

"No. I came to tell you that my mother was arrested last night for the murder of our father."

"Oh," Sylvia gasped and lay back on her chair, "she killed him, that cruel woman!"

"She did not!" cried Maud passionately. "My mother is perfectly innocent. My mother did not kill our father."

"My father, not yours," said Sylvia firmly.

"How dare you! Lemuel Krill was my father."

"No," insisted Sylvia. "I don't know who your father was. But from your ear I know that you are not"—

"Leave my ego alone," cried the other sharply.

"I won't talk to you at all," said Sylvia, rising.

"Sit down and listen. You shall hear from me. I am not going to let my mother suffer for a deed she never committed, nor am I going to let you have the money."

"It's mine."

"It is not, and you shall not get it." Maud—Mr. Beecot will assert my rights."

"Will he indeed?" said the other, with a glance at the clock. "We'll see about that. There's no time to be lost. I have much to say"—

"Nothing that you can say to me."

"Oh, yes. I think you will find our conversation very interesting. I am going to be open with you, for what I tell you will never be told by you to any living soul."

"If I see fit it shall," cried Sylvia in a rage. "How dare you dictate to me?"

"Because I am driven into a corner. I wish to save my mother. Now it is to be done I don't know. And I wish to stop you getting the five thousand a year. I know for that is to be done."

"Leave the room!"

"When I please, not before. You listen! You are going to tell you about the murder"—

"Oh," said Sylvia, turning pale, "what do you know?"

"Listen," said the other, with a mournful laugh. "You'll be white enough before we've done with me. Do you see this?" and she held her finger in her face. "Do you see this scar? Look at that!" Sylvia noticed that she did not speak of Krill as her father. "He pinned my lip together when I was a child with that opal serpent."

Sylvia replied Sylvia, shuddering. "It was cruel. I heard about it from the detective and"—

"I don't want for your sympathy. I was a girl of fifteen when that was done, and I will carry the scar to my grave. Call it was then, I vowed revenge"—

"On your father," said Sylvia compassionately.

"Krill is not my father," said Maud, changing front all at once. "He is yours, but not mine. My father is Captain Jessop. I have known this for years. Captain Jessop told me I was his daughter. My mother thought that my father was drowned at sea and so married Krill, who was a travesty in jewelry. He and my mother rented the Red Fig at Christchurch, and for years they led an unhappy life."

"Oh," gasped Sylvia, "you confess! I'll tell Paul."

"You'll tell no one," retorted the other woman sharply. "Do you think I would speak so openly in order that you might tell all the world with your gabbling tongue? Yes, and I'll speak more openly still before I leave. Lady Rachel Sandal did not commit suicide, as she and her husband gave out. She was strangled, and by me."

Sylvia clapped her hands to her face with a scream. "My poor"—

"Yes. She had a beautiful brooch. I wanted it. I was put to bed by my mother and kept thinking of the brooch. My mother was down the stairs attending to your drunken father. I stole to Lady Rachel's room and found her asleep. I tried to take this brooch from her breast. She woke and caught my hand. But I tore away the brooch and before Lady Rachel could scream I twisted the silk round her throat, she wore, which was already around her throat, tighter. I am strong—I always was strong, even as a girl of fifteen. She was weak from exhaustion, so she soon died. My mother came into the room and saw what I had done. She was terrified and made me go back to bed. Then she tied Lady Rachel by the silk handkerchief to the bedpost, so that it might be thought she had committed suicide. My mother then came back to me and took the brooch, telling me I might be hanged if it was found on me. I was afraid, being only a girl, and gave up the brooch. Then Captain Jessop raised the alarm. I and my mother went downstairs, and my mother dropped the brooch on the floor, so that it might be supposed Lady Rachel had lost it there. Captain Jessop said I wanted to give the alarm and tell the neighbors that Krill had done it, for I knew then he was not my father, and I knew, moreover, how unhappy he made my mother. He caught me," said Maud, with a fierce look, "and bound a handkerchief over my mouth. I got free and screamed. Then he bound me hand and foot and pinned my lips together with the brooch which he picked off the floor. My mother fought for me, but he knocked her down. Then he fled, and after a long time Jessop came in. He removed the brooch from my mouth and unbound me. I was put to bed, and Jessop revived my mother. Then came the inquest, and it was thought that Lady Rachel had committed suicide. But she did not," cried Maud exultantly, and with a cruel light in her eyes, "I killed her—I"—

Undigested Food

When any portion of food remains in the stomach and refuses to digest, it causes the torments of indigestion. This undigested food rapidly fermenting, irritating the sensitive coating of the stomach, while other parts of the body, particularly the head, suffer in consequence.

So long as this undigested food remains in the stomach, the discomfort continues. A few doses of stop all fermentation, sweeten the contents of the stomach and give natural assistance that relieves the stomach of its burden. The use of Beecham's Pills gradually strengthens the stomach nerves and soon restores them to a normal, healthy condition.

Beecham's Pills positively cure all stomach troubles, while their beneficial effects on the liver and kidneys greatly improve the general health.

Beecham's Pills have been used and recommended by the general public for over fifty years.

Prepared only by the Proprietor, Thomas Beecham, St. Helens, Lancashire, Eng.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

An innocent Cockney, while in the country, asked a farmer how they managed to grow streaky bacon.

"Oh, it is simple enough," said the honest, agricultural. "The sows is shaved the parish feed him every week. That makes a layer of lean and fat. Next week we shaves him to the possibly rat, even working on Sundays, and that makes a layer of fat. So alternate starving and feeding, the beautiful streaky bacon."

"Dear me," said the Cockney, "and how do you make the lean?"

"Oh, we manage that by putting a ring in the pig's nose. See, then, it can't feed. It was the reply.

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

Our services on Sabbath, 24th, were very interesting. In the morning the choir, which is so good music, was assisted by Miss Horton, Morven, who sang with fine expression and feeling that ever welcome favorite, "My God and Father While I Stay." The Sabbath School service was of a patriotic nature, and was loyally entered into by all present. In the evening the choir gave a good rendering of the anthem ; the Quartette, Messrs. Black, Carson, Graham and Fisher, sang a fine selection and after an interesting discourse by the pastor, Rev. J. R. Real, Miss Horton again sang a beautiful solo, for which song Mr. Collins, of the Collegiate staff, gave a fine rendering of the violin obligato.

Early History of Canada as Exemplified by Visitors at Niagara.

Read before the annual meeting of the Historical Society by Miss Janet Carnothan of Niagara, Ontario:

It has been said by the present writer that to know the history of Niagara is to know much of the history of Canada, and the present paper will try to show that the names of visitors to Niagara will bring up much of the history of our country. It is a long story from La Salle the indomitable in 1678 to the redoubtable Blake premier to-day, governors and princes, soldiers and statesmen, traders and schoolmasters, American rebels, priests and exiles, Indian Chief and Confederate President, liberal and rabid reformer plodding on ever shifting Saskatchewan effort, but each name recalling some refreshing epoch in our history.

La Salle's visit to the spot where now stands Fort Niagara after the Te Deum had been sung and his visit to our side of the river when the fear of Indian ambushments had taken us back to 1613, almost two years before Champlain's visit, need not very vividly altogether of the latter, gives a picture of the 1678, mentioning that the roar of the waters was heard fifty miles and that the height was 500 feet.

Nearly a hundred years was then to lapse by, till the great struggle between France and Britain in the heart of the forest was heard, the upper river was dotted with canoes of the fur traders, English and French, but in 1759 Sir William Johnson's skill in the art of war and in the management of Indian warfare was taken by Wolfe, and we know that two British officers he carried there without anything to show that they gave their lives for Britain's glory. Sir William we know had wonderful influence over the Indians and made treaties with them, their meetings were generally at one side, and sometimes on the other. Two years after the fall of Niagara, in 1761, the two Georges, Irish and Johnson, During the period of the establishment of the Loyalists in Canada, many Indians, who were often bought from their captors by British officers of their tribes, compassionately, their condition. In the re-building of the fallen-of captives 63 were being restored in Pennsylvania by Johnson, many several of them brought to Niagara or vicinity, we find that one of the Indians who had been taken from the Mohawk valley to Canada, in 1782, showing that the Seconds were desirous of giving up some of the land that should be given to them. Sir William Johnson, Butler, Brant, Chief Joseph Brant, a half-breed, was travelling to Fort Niagara. Col. Butler went out early to bring them in, and it is recorded that out of thirty-one women and children that he met only four were Indians.

Catharine Butler came here when released from a prison at Quebec, where she had been confined simply because she was the wife of a leader of the Loyalists. Sir Guy Carleton, the distinguished of Britain's Rangers, and of that redoubtable fighter Colonel Butler, Brant, and their descendants were made in 1807 to Canada to take down the Indians.

In the year Simcoe as Governor for the first time visits us, the Duke Kent, the father of Queen Victoria, was in command of the Fusiliers, and one of the most interesting of the early days of the Province was the visit of the Duke of Kent, Prince Edward, to Niagara, where he lived at Navy Hall. We know that the Duke was a strict disciplinarian, and that the fashionable condition of the fair ladies of the Court of the Duke of Kent was a subject of much comment. Here Lord Selkirk, the philanthropist, and Lord Bathurst, the statesman, were entertained in Simcoe, who came to Canada with Lord Dorchester, and many of them deserve a full in which there were many Indians present. Some of these it is believed were Mohawks who had come with Brant from the Mohawk valley. One of them, the wife of Joseph Brant, Mrs. Brant, Mrs. Jemmy Brant, Mrs. Jacob Brant, Mrs. Peter Brant, Mrs. Isaac

DELICATE CHILDREN.

All Persons Who Have Delicate Children in Napanee Will be Interested in This Article.

Rapidly growing children need a great deal of vitality. They grow fast, play hard and work too hard at school. Then the appetite becomes fitful, the children are restless and they soon become weak, delicate and sickly.

We want to remind the parents of every such child in Napanee that our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol, will correct these troubles and make for such child new vitality, rich blood and muscle tissue, strong bone structure and pure rich red blood. It will build them up, fill out hollow cheeks and make them strong, robust and rosy.

Mrs. C. Allen, of New Bedford, Mass., writes: "With two puny, ailing children, I was very much worried, I had tried almost everything to build them up without success, and, as a last resort tried Vinol. The result was great in a very short time, they gained flesh and strength so rapidly."

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil, emulsions and other tonics for children is because Vinol is a delicious modern cod liver preparation without oil made by a scientific extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonated-of-iron all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil, and children love it. We ask parents of Napanee who have delicate children to try Vinol on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

DO YOU EAT RIGHT?

FEW PEOPLE IN NAPANEE REALLY KNOW HOW.

Slow eating and regular meals is of great benefit to a strong eating stomach. Those who suffer with indigestion and weak stomach can with ease and use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets restore the digestion to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few day's use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headaches, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, dizziness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach will disappear, and perfect digestion and good health will be restored.

TO AN APPLE BLOSSOM.

Sweet emblem of purity, fragrant, fair,
Whose chaste beauty and charms
Are the delight of each beholding eye,
And the theme of each poet's verse.
Thou art Canada's Valley's pride,
Of which it is justly proud;
That town's a-n' Omar's flood of life,
Proves their art for her whose bank
Hath plotted them from thy parent tree
And sent them abroad to me.
Though they art fading now, and e'en
To-day, the petals are falling,
Yet, for Spring's Fairy Queen,
She'll rest in Pomona's bosom,
Life's fruitage to bear and ripen
Portrays a noble and useful life,
And soon, alas, all, all is dust.
—Percy Gibbs, in the June Canadian Magazine.

JUST JUNE.

There's a moon not too obtrusive,
Sort of misty and delusive,
Just enough for spooning biding, way beneath the elosm;
And a modest, sweet and pretty,
Not too solemn or too witty,
Dove to whom you're cooing, free from worldly cares and gloom.
With a youth, it's love supreme;
Just a month, a honeymoon;
And a heart that's flitting "Sweet, oh, I love you!" like June.
Well, the rest is very simple;
Just a flat, a stove, a wife,
And a blue—ah, these things happen—taptap—Pots and pans, and squalling life.
—From Woman's Home Companion for June.

PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY WITH

The Cameron Steel Ladder and Fire Escape

It is practical, it is made of Bessimer steel, it is permanent, it is inexpensive, it is always ready for use, it is indestructible, it costs less than any fire escape and is without a competitor. Ice and snow will not adhere to it. No rot, as in the case of wooden ladders. It should be on all churches, schools, hotels, private houses, barns and outbuildings.

This flexible steel ladder is made in two sizes of selected Bessimer steel; 3-8 inches for dwellings, barns and outbuildings, and 7-16 inches for fire escapes. When adjusted to the wall they are as firm as the wall itself. It has been commended, amongst many others, by the following

E. J. Jewhurst, " Auburn, N.Y.
C. M. Hogg, " Binghampton, N.Y.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

An extremely sad accident happened here on Monday evening, about 6.45, resulting in the death of a little eight-year-old boy. Percy Johnston, son of Mrs. John Johnston, Union st., Kingston, was a great favorite of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Lewis, Napanee, and had been living with them for about two years and attending school here. Mr. Lewis drives the 'bus to the station, and Percy was in the habit of taking a ride quite often and sitting on the front seat with his uncle. On Monday evening they drove up to meet the 6.40 train, and in coming down John street some young playmates shouted to Percy, who, in looking around, let his balance and fell off the seat, both wheels of the heavy 'bus passing over his body. Medical aid was immediately summoned, but to no avail, as he died about 8.30 p.m. Percy was a general favorite around Napanee, being polite and generous to an extreme, and the sympathy of many friends here is extended to the parents and to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis. Service was held in S. Mary Magdalene church on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock thence to the 4.40 train to Kingston for interment. The schools were closed on Tuesday afternoon out of respect for their schoolmate and an abundance of flowers and wreaths showed tokens of esteem for the little boy.

DEATH OF A NAPANEE BOY.

On Saturday last the sad news was received here of the death of a former Napaneean, Mr. Thomas Mooney, who passed away at Kamloops, B.C., aged 38 years. "Tom," was a general favorite, and leaves many friends in Napanee and vicinity who sincerely regret his untimely demise. He was born in Clarkville on the 18th day of April, 1870, and remained with his parents an the old homestead for a number of years. In 1901 he purchased a half interest in the Bryson House, and in 1903 left for Winnipeg, Man., where he secured a lucrative position at the Manor House. On February 1st last he was taken ill with pneumonia, recovered, and later on ventured to be in fairly good health. After a short time he suffered a relapse, and under the advice of his physician moved to Kamloops, B.C., from Winnipeg, where he died on Saturday last, May 30th. Deceased was a strong adherent of the Roman Catholic church and was faithful by its last rights before the end came. The remains were placed in the R. C. cemetery at Kamloops. He leaves a loving wife and two children to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father. His aged mother, Mrs. Hugh Mooney, South Napanee, and five sisters and two brothers survive. The sisters are: Miss Della, at home; Mrs. H. McCormick, Mrs. Wm. Hopkins, Sheffield; Mrs. Patrick Hanahan and Mrs. Edward Mohan, Sharpton. The brothers are William, Pierson, Man.; Daniel and Hugh, at home; John and Charles, Westbrook. The sympathy of the whole community is extended to the sorrowing ones in their hour of bereavement.

Strawberries will soon be here. But non-poisonous Stew Kettles that will not discolor your fruit, and every kettle guaranteed perfect. BOYLE & SON.

—Mr. George Knox, who has been occupying the property of Mr. Duncan Bell, in the east end of the town, this week removed to Mr. R. W. Wales' house on Adelpi st.

To the Electors of the County of Lennox.

Fellow Electors.—The time is drawing near when the electors of this County in common with the entire constituencies will be required to elect a representative for the Provincial Assembly.

It may not be possible for me to see you all personally, and I adopt this method of placing myself before you and reminding as many of you as possible.

As you are aware, in December last in convention assembled my friends did me the honor of selecting me as their candidate for the Provincial Parliament. I am therefore now before you in that capacity asking your votes and influence at the approaching election.

I need not say that this honor was placed upon me unsought or unsolicited.

My opponent and myself are old friends, and, although we differ in politics, neither of us permit such a difference to interfere with our social or business relations, and I feel confident in saying that we shall continue and close the contest as good friends as we commenced it. I further myself that I do not need any personal introduction to you, but have been with you and among you for a long period of thirty-five years, and have taken a more or less active part in the public affairs and elections of Lennox. Whilst my politics have been Liberal, I have never been a violent partisan. I shall never consider myself bound to support any measure which I believe to be wrong, or to fight and struggle for the best interests of the party with which I am identified, when I do not believe the views of our own locality, and especially that part of it immediately within the bounds of Lennox, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations, and if I can consistently and properly do a political service to a friend, I shall be found ready at all times to do it. I will be to those attached to the Conservative party. Those opposed to me will find me a ready and willing friend and people to take.

I hope to have during the campaign the opportunity of discussing with you on the public platform, at greater length some of the many public questions which are at the present time interesting the people.

To those of you who I shall not be able to see personally I take this method of making an appeal to the intelligence and patriotism of the electors with the hope that you will see the necessity of your being present at the polls to cast their ballot for the man of good Conservative principles.

Again soliciting your votes, influence and support, and assuring you of my best and thanking you in advance, I am,

Your obedient servant,

M. S. MADOLE.

Carscallen's Majority is 15.

The Member-Elect Gained in Five Out of the Eight Municipalities in Lennox.

The battle at the polls is over, and M.P.P. Although his majority is cut down very considerably, still he has the satisfaction of knowing that he made gains in five out of the eight municipalities, as follows:—Adolphustown, 1; Amherst Island, 23; Bath, 13; Ernesttown, 6; Napanee, 64. Mr. Madole made gains in three out of the eight, as follows:—South Fredericksburgh, 59; North Fredericksburgh, 61; Richmond, 40. The day passed off very quietly in Napanee, the total vote polled being 88 less than in 1905; in Adolphustown 1 less; Amherst Island 3 more; Bath 21 less; Ernesttown, 42 less; South Fredericksburgh, 3 less; North Fredericksburgh, 33 less; Richmond 10 less. The total vote in Lennox is 195 below that of January, 1905. A great deal of uncertainty about the result in Lennox was only composed of rumors, but the Conservatives were not at all anxious as they had the correct returns. The following table gives the vote in 1905 and 1908, also the gains made on Monday by each candidate. The figures are absolutely correct in every detail, as the vote was copied in each case from the Deputy Returning Officer's certificate to the candidates:

NEWBURGH.

The game of baseball between the locals and Strathcona, played here on Saturday last, was the biggest kind of burlesque, the locals winning 25-3. At least that is the score when the men employed by the locals to credit the runs, ceased counting. If supper time hadn't interfered they would probably have been running yet. The team from Cona was not a match for the locals. But then Bill Dunn got what he was looking for. You know William as he likes to be called, is going to twirl some for the Napanee league team this year, and consequently wanted some practice. And he got some. The chief variety he got however was easing up when the game was practically won. For there wasn't much hitting done by the visitors. In fact hits were so few and far between that Piggy Dougan and John Aylesworth sat down and played marbles and argued politics alternately. Then to have a change Pink Madden went into the box to pitch, and the visitors hoped for something better. Now Richard, as some of the fair maidens call him, says he used to pitch some in a grain field in the west, and thought he ought to be in good shape. And so he was. Our good friend, Jamie Moore, did the back stopping for both Dick and Billie, and that means that it was well done, and since they were not playing in Deseronto that gentleman says he didn't fave any burrs thrown at him. The locals apparently thought they had a cinch for they started the game with five men. After the game someone said, "Are you going to garter it?" "No, supper?" And Dick replied, "Not much; we handed them enough runs during the game to last them until they get home," and wasn't it? One of these days the locals will go up against a good team, and then, oh my! there will be something doing, but just as well do the doing, we do not care to say anything. See you later.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant gloss in her hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the germ, and the dandruff disappears." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

The Reason Why

Zutoo

Is Used by Thousands.

It would probably surprise you to know how many thousands of people are using Zutoo Tablets who had never before used a headache cure.

This is due to three facts.
They tried the tablets.
The tablets cured their headache.
The tablets did not hurt them.

Like sensible people, they do not suffer from headache any more. They either let Zutoo ward off the headache—nip it in the bud—or assist nature in stopping it.

Which do you do? Do you suffer from headache or do you take Zutoo?

I have the largest assortment of Lap Dusters and Mohair Lap Rugs ever shown, and sold at prices within the reach of all, which range from 50c up. Call and get a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT for sores, sprains and scratches of all kinds.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain, neuralgia, pain in blood poisoning, pain in insanity. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and he gives it he created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—takes blood pressure away from pain centers, therefore harmonizing and equalizing the blood through safety, it actually equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If you're sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for by Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets my method of relieving it is simply chartlessly accurate.

Prove your theory, don't you? Then get, read, and learn and pain you? Of course it does. It's compelled—blood pressure. You'll find it when pain ceases. It's simply Common Sense.

THE OPAL SERPENT

By FERGUS HUME.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"Oh," moaned Sylvia, backing against the wall with widely open eyes.

"Bah, you kitten!" sneered Maud contemptuously, "I have not half done yet! You have yet to hear how I killed Krill."

Sylvia shrieked and sank back in her chair, staring with horrified eyes at the cruel face before her.

"Yes," cried Maud exultingly, "I killed him. My mother suspected me, but she never knew for certain. Listen. Hokar has told me that Krill was hiding as Norman in Gwynne street I determined to punish him for his cruelty to me. I did not say this, but I made Hay promise to get me the brooch from Beecot. On no other condition would I marry him. I wanted the brooch to pin Krill's lips together as he had pinned mine when I was a helpless child, but your fool of a lover would not part with the brooch.

"How do you know Tray?"

"Because I met him at Pash's office several times when I was up. He ran errands for Pash before he became regularly employed. I saw that Tray was a devil of whom I could make use. Oh, I know Tray, and I knew also Hokar, the Indian, who placed the sugar on the counter. He went to the shop to kill your father with strychnine. I wanted revenge and the money. Hokar was saved from starvation by my good mother. He came of the race of thugs, if you know anything about them!"

"Oh," moaned Sylvia, covering her face again.

"Ah, you do. So much the better. It will save me explaining, as there is not much time left before your fool arrives. Hokar saw that I loved to hurt living creatures, and he taught me how to strangle cats and dogs and things. No one knew but Hokar that I killed them, and it was thought he ate them. But he didn't. I strangled them because I loved to see them suffer and because I wished to learn how to strangle in the way the thugs did."

Sylvia was sick with fear and disgust. "For God's sake, don't tell me any more," she said imploringly.

But she might as well have spoken to a granite rock. "You shall hear everything," said Maud relentlessly. "I asked Hokar to strangle Krill. He went to the shop, but when he saw that Krill had only one eye he could not offer him to the goddess Shownee. He came to me at Judson's hotel after he left the sugar on the counter, and told me the goddess would not accept the offering of a maimed man. I did not know what to do. I went with my mother to Pash's office when she was arranging to prosecute Krill for bigamy. I met Tray there. He told me he had given the brooch to Pash and that it was in the inner office. My mother was talking to Pash within, and I chatted to Tray outside. I told Tray I wanted to kill Krill and that if he would help me I would give him a lot of money. He agreed, for he was a boy such as I was when a girl—fond of seeing things suffer. You can't wonder at it in me," went on Miss Krill coolly. "My grandmother was hanged for poisoning my grandfather, and I expect I inherit the love of murder from her."

"I won't listen," cried Sylvia, shuddering.

"Oh, yes, you will. I'll soon be done," went on her persecutor cruelly. "Well, then, when I found Tray was like myself I determined to get the brooch and hurt Krill—hurt him as he hurt me," she cried vehemently. "Tray told me of the cellar and of the side passage. When my mother and Pash came out of the inner office and went to the door I ran in and took the brooch. It is hidden under some papers and had escaped my mother's eye. But I searched till I got it. Then I made an appointment with Tray for 11 o'clock at the corner of Gwynne street. I went back to Judson's hotel, had my supper and I went to the theater. We had supper and retired to bed—that is, my mother did. We had left the theater early, as we reached had a headache, and I had plenty of time. Mother fell asleep almost immediately. I dressed myself and stole out in dark clothes. I slipped past the night porter and met Tray. We went by the side passage to the cellar. Thinking we were customers, Krill let us in. Tray locked the door, and I threw myself on Krill. He fell not here drinking much or I might not have mastered him. As it was he was too terrified when he recovered to struggle. In fact, he fainted. With Tray's assistance I bound his hands behind his back, and then we gagged ourselves."

Sylvia rose and staggered to the door. "No more—no more!"

Maud pushed her back into her chair. "Stop where you are, you whimpering fool!" she snarled excitingly. "I have you safe." Then she continued quickly and with another glance at the clock, the long hand of which now pointed to a quarter to 4. "With Tray's assistance I carried Krill up to the shop. Tray found an easy chair and bored a hole in the floor. Then I picked up a coil of copper wire which was being used in packing things for Krill to make his escape. I took it up. We laid Krill's neck over the hole and passed the wire around his neck and through the hole. Tray went down and tied a cross stick on the end of the wire so that he could put his weight on it when we strangled."

"Oh, great heaven!" moaned Sylvia, stopping her ears.

Maud beat over her and pulled her hands away. "You shall hear, you little beast," she snarled. "All the time Krill was searching. He recovered his senses after he was bound. I prolonged his agony as much as possible. When Tray went down to see after the wire, I knelt beside Krill and told him that I knew I was not his daughter; that I intended to strangle him as I had strangled Lady Rachel. He shrieked with horror. That was the cry you heard, you cat, and which brought you downstairs. I never expected that," she added, clapping her hands. "That was a treat for Krill I never intended. I stopped his crying very soon for assistance by pushing his mouth together, as he had done mine over twenty years before. Then I got down and kissed him. He bit. I heard the policeman pass and the church clock strike the quarter. Then I heard footsteps on the stairs. They were coming. It occurred to me to give you a treat by strangling the man before your eyes and punish him more severely, since the brooch stopped him calling out—as it stopped me—me," she cried, striking her breast.

"Oh, how could you—how could"—

"You feeble thing," said Maud contemptuously and patting the girl's cheek, "you would not have done it, I know. But I loved it—I loved it! That was living indeed. I went down to the cellar and fastened the door behind me. Tray was already pressing on the cross stick at the end of the wire and laughed as he pressed. But he stopped then. I heard you and that woman enter the shop and heard what you said. I prolonged Krill's agony, and then I pressed the wire down myself for such a time as I thought it would take to squeeze the life out of him. Together with Tray, I locked the cellar door and left by the side passage. We dodged all the police and got into Strand. I did not return to the hotel, but walked about with Tray all the night, talking with—joy," cried Maud, clasping her hands, "with you, do you hear? When it was 8, I went to Judson's. The porter thought I had been out for an early walk. My mother"—

Here Maud broke off, for Sylvia, who was leaning over her shoulder out of the window, saw a form she knew well at the gate. "Paul—Paul," she shrieked, "come—come!"

Maud whipped the black silk handkerchief round the girl's neck. "You shall never get that money," she whispered cruelly, "You shall never tell any one what I have told you. Now I'll shew you how Hokar taught me." She jerked the handkerchief tight, but Sylvia had slipped under the cruel bandage and shrieked aloud in despair. At once she heard an answering shriek. It was the voice of Deborah.

"You shall never get that money."

Maud darted to the door and locked it. Then she turned, and, clinging Sylvia down, tried again to tighten the handkerchief, her face white and fierce and her eyes glittering like a demon's.

"Help—help!" cried Sylvia, and her voice grew weaker. But she struggled and kept her hands between the handkerchief and her throat. Maud tried to drag them away fiercely. Deborah was battering frantically at the door. Paul ran round to the window. It was not locked. He lifted it, climbed with Sylvia, had no time to close it. With a cry of alarm Paul threw up the window and jumped into the room. At the same moment Deborah, putting her sturdy shoulder to the door, burst it open. Beecot flung himself on the woman and dragged her back. But she rushed like a leech to Sylvia with the black handkerchief in her grip.

Deborah, silent and fierce, grabbed at the handkerchief and tore it from Maud's grasp. Sylvia, half strangled, fell back in a faint, white as a corpse, while Paul struggled with the savage and baffled woman.

"You've killed her," shouted Deborah and flung a leech to Sylvia. "Oh, you devil!" She shook her fiercely. "I'll kill you!" and she shook her again.

Paul threw himself on his knees beside the insensible form of Sylvia and left Deborah to deal with Maud. That creature was gasping as Mrs. Tawsey swung her to and fro. Then she flung her against the wall, which crashed around the little room, upsetting the furniture. Paul took Sylvia in his arms and shrank against the wall to protect her.

A new person suddenly appeared, so new a woman was Matilda. When Deborah let Maud's throat go she flew at her sister like a tigress and dragged her off. Maud was free for a moment. Seeing her chance, she scrambled out of the window and ran through the garden down the road toward the station. Perhaps she had a vague idea of escape. Deborah, exerting her great strength, threw Matilda aside and without a cry ran out of the house and after the assassin who had tried to strangle Sylvia. Matilda, true to her salt, ran also to help Maud Krill, and the two women sped up the walks of the insane creature who was swiftly running in the direction of the station. People began to look round, a crowd gathered like magic, and in a few moments Maud was being chased by quite a mob of people. She ran like a hare. Heaven only knows if she hoped to escape after her failure to kill Sylvia, but she ran on blindly. Into the near street of Jubilectown she sped, with the roaring mob at her heels. She darted down a side thoroughfare, but Deborah gained on her silently and with a savage look in her eyes. Several policemen joined in the chase, though no one knew what the flying woman had done. Maud turned suddenly up the slope that led to the station. She gained the door, darted through it, upset the man at the barrier and with clinched fists stood at bay, her back to the rails. Deborah darted forward. Maud gave a wild scream and sprang aside. Then she reeled and fell over the platform. The next moment a train came slowly into the station, and immediately the wretched woman was under the cruel wheels. When she was picked up she was dead and almost cut to pieces. Lady Rachel and Lemuel Krill were revenged.

CHAPTER XXVI.

SYLVIA was ill for a long time after that terrible hour. Although Maud had not succeeded in strangling her, yet the black silk handkerchief left marks on her neck. Then the struggle, the shock and the remembrance of the horrors related by the miserable woman threw her into a nervous fever, and it was some weeks before she recovered sufficiently to enjoy life. Deborah never forgave herself for having left the room and entrusted her with a fierce tenderness which was the result of remorse.

"If that wretch 'ad killed my pretty," she said to Paul, "I'd 'ave killed her, if I was hanged for it five times over." Paul also punished the woman," said Paul solemnly.

"Serve 'er right," rejoined Deborah mercilessly. "What kin you expect for good folk if wicked ones, as go strangulating people, don't git the Lord down on 'em. Oh, Mr. Beecot," Deborah broke down into noisy tears, "the 'orrors that my lovely one 'ave tole me, livin murderers and gory assassins!"

"I gathered something of this from what Sylvia let drop when we came back from the station," said Paul anxiously. "Tell me exactly what she said, Deborah."

"Why that thing as is dead, an' may she rest in a peace she don't deserve, tole how she murdered Lady Rachel Kindal an' my ole master."

"Deborah," cried Beecot, amazed. "You must be mistaken."

"No, I ain't, sir. That thing gave my lilly queen the 'orrors. Jes' you 'ear, Mr. Beecot, and creeps will go up your back. Lady Rachel went to Pash's office she was arranging to prosecute Krill for bigamy. I met Tray there. He told me he had given the brooch to Pash and that it was in the inner office. is nothing but a wicked little fool."

"Will you?" Beecot apparently was ignorant that Maud killed Krill, though she might have guessed it, after the way in which Lady Rachel was murdered. I dare say she'll get off. I'm going to see her shortly and tell her of the terrible death of her daughter."

Paul did not pursue the conversation. He was sick with the horror of the business, and, moreover, was too anxious about Sylvia's health to take much interest in the grisly goings up of the case. That he left in the hands of Hurd and assured him that the £1,000 would be paid to him by Miss Norman. Of course, Pash had known for a long time that Maud was a fiend-child and one knew what the fying woman had done. Maud turned suddenly up the slope that led to the station. She gained the door, darted through it, upset the man at the barrier and with clinched fists stood at bay, her back to the rails. Deborah darted forward. Maud gave a wild scream and sprang aside. made it up, and Matilda has gone back to the Red Pig. She's ah decent a creature as Deborah, in another way, and is absolutely ignorant of Maud's wickedness. Hurd guessed that when she spoke to him so freely of Christabel's first husband."

"And the thug?"

"Hokar! Oh, he is not really a thug but the descendant of one. However, they can't prove that he strangled anything beyond a few cats and dogs when he showed Maud how to use the rosmal—that's the handkerchief with which the thugs strangled their victims."

"I'm not absolutely ignorant," growled his father. "I know that. So this Hokar goes free?"

"Yes. He would not strangle Aaron Norman because he had but one eye, and Bhowanee won't accept maimed persons. Failing him, Maud had to attend to the job herself, with the assistance of Tray."

"And this detective?"

"Oh, Paul, with Sylvia's sanction, has paid him the £1,000, which he shares with his sister, Aurora Qan. But for her searching at Stoney and Beechill we should never have known about the marriage, you know."

"No, I don't know. They're far too highly paid. The marriage would have to be done all over again another way. However, waste your own money if you like. It isn't mine."

"For the time, father," said Paul sharply. "Sylvia will keep her own fortune. I am not a man to live on my wife. I intend to take a house in town when we are married, and then I'll still continue to write."

"Without the spur of poverty you'll never make a hit," grinned the old gentleman. "However, you can live where you please. It's no business of mine, but I demand as your indulgent father that you'll bring Sylvia down here at least three times a year. Whenever she is well I want to see her."

"I'll bring her next week," said Paul, thinking of his mother. "But Deborah must come too. She won't leave Sylvia."

"For the present, father," said Paul sharply. "Sylvia will keep her own fortune. I am not a man to live on my wife. I intend to take a house in town when we are married, and then I'll still continue to write."

"Without the spur of poverty you'll never make a hit," grinned the old gentleman. "However, you can live where you please. It's no business of mine, but I demand as your indulgent father that you'll bring Sylvia down here at least three times a year. Whenever she is well I want to see her."

"I'll bring her next week," said Paul, thinking of his mother. "But Deborah must come too. She won't leave Sylvia."

"The house is big enough. Bring Mrs. Tawsey also. I'm rather anxious to see her. And Sylvia will be a good companion for your mother."

So matters were arranged in this way, and when Paul returned to town he went at once to tell Sylvia of the reconciliation. He found her, propped up with pillows, seated by the fire, looking much better, although she was still thin and rather haggard.

"I am so glad, darling," she said, holding Paul's hand in her thin ones. "I should not have liked your mother to have kept you from your father."

Mrs. Tawsey snorted. "His frantic pa?" she said, "ah, well, when I mope 'im if he dares to say a word agin my pretty"—

"My father is quite ready to welcome her as a daughter," said Paul quickly.

"An' no poor one either!" cried Deborah triumphantly. "Five thousand a year, as that nice young man Mr. Ford have told us is right. Lor', my lovely queen, you'll drive in your chariot and forget Debby."

"You foolish old thing," said the girl fondly. "You hald to me in my troubles, and you shall share in my joy."

"Allays purvide! I don't 'ave to leave the laundry in charge of Bart an' Mrs. Pure, both bein' infants of sillyness, one with gin and t'other with weaknese of brain. It's well I made Bart promise to love, honor and obey me, Mr. Beecot, the same as you must do to my own lily flower there."

"Yes, I am to love, honor and obey Paul," cried Sylvia.

"When?" he asked, taking her in his arms.

"As soon as I can stand at the altar," she replied, blushing, whereat Deborah clapped her hands.

"Weddin's an' weddin's an' weddin's ag'in," cried Mrs. Tawsey, "which my sister Matilder being weary of 'er agin, sterting 'ome 'ave made up 'er mind to marry the first as offers. An' now I'm a-'oldin' a-a-a-dance neither—oh, no not at all."

"Well, Deborah," said Beecot, "we have much to be thankful for, all of us. Let us try and show our gratitude in our lives."

OBITUARY.

We regret to have to chronicle this week the death of another of our old and esteemed citizens of this county, in the person of Mrs. Catharine Hambly, of North Fredericksburgh. Mrs. Hambly was a lady very much esteemed by all those who enjoyed the pleasure of her society. Deceased was a life long member of the Methodist church, a faithful and consistent Christian, and her end was peaceful. Mrs. Hambly died at the ripe age of 79 years, 3 months and 23 days, and leaves to mourn the loss of an affectionate and kind mother, two sons, Mr. Geo. R. Hambly and Mr. C. W. Hambly, the present Warden of the Counties, both of North Fredericksburgh, and two daughters, Mrs. Milo Huffman, of Moscow, and Mrs. Norman Perry, of Ogdensburg, N.Y. Mrs. Hambly will be much missed on earth, but she has gone to swell the ranks of the redeemed in the mansions above.

Mr. W. H. Hunter had quite an experience on Monday last. He was out at his farm cutting, when what sent a bullet close to his head. He looked up to see where it came from when another flew by close enough to make him grow nervous. He evidently had a premonition that he was being shot at, so he took to his heels and gave him such a lecture that he will not soon forget it. He brought the rifle to town and gave it to Chief Graham, who we hear will have to make application for it and get another before on the earliest use of firearms.

Dr. C. M. Stratton leaves for the old country on June 20th, and requests all persons who have not settled their accounts with him, to call at P. L. Hooper's drug store on Saturday, 13th inst., and settle with him there.
